OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
STATE OF MISSOURI
JEFFERSON CITY 65101

Dear Fellow Missourians,

I am pleased to present you with the 2009–2010 Official Manual of the State of Missouri, which you can also find online at www.sos.mo.gov/bluebook. Since its creation in 1878, the "Blue Book" has been a key resource for exploring Missouri's past, present and future. In addition to providing information on our local, state and federal governments, we include stories, essays and pictures that help preserve our state's heritage.

Countless Missourians have devoted their lives to public service. Every day elected officials and citizens alike give their time to improving the lives of their neighbors and communities. The Official Manual is filled with information about many of these people, as well as the organizations, committees, boards, and government branches that strive to provide good customer service and to make government work for all of us. By volunteering their time or dedicating their careers to public service, the men and women found within these pages are leaving their mark on Missouri's history.

The desire to give back to one's state and country is deeply embodied in those to whom this book is dedicated: the Missouri National Guard. I am pleased to commemorate the 2009–2010 "Blue Book" to the courageous troops who have served our communities, state, and nation since their start as the Missouri Militia in 1808. True to their motto, Always Ready, Always There, the Missouri National Guard has served nobly in times of peace, natural disaster, and war. Whether fighting the Flood of '93, the Katrina disaster, or wars in Europe and the Middle East, the men and women of the Missouri National Guard have met every challenge put to them.

One of the most notable Missouri Guardsmen, President Harry S. Truman, once remarked that "America was built on courage, on imagination and an unbeatable determination to do the job at hand." Missouri was certainly built the same way, by ordinary people with the grit and tenacity to work hard and leave the world a little better for their children.

Very truly yours,

Robin Carnahan
Secretary of State

Missouri's National Guard
Always Ready, Always There

A History

Since its beginning as the Missouri Militia, the Missouri National Guard's presence has been felt in almost every major American military campaign.

During the Civil War, Missouri soldiers saw combat in the major battles at Forts Henry and Donaldson, Vicksburg, Chattanooga, Chickamauga, and Atlanta, with the majority of the soldiers fighting on the side of the Union. The Missouri National Guard's largest manpower presence occurred almost 50 years later, during World War I, when the Guard sent 14,756 Missourians to eastern France. It was in this combat that future president and Missouri Guardsman Harry S. Truman fought side-by-side with his fellow Missourians as commander of Battery D, 129th Field Artillery.

Since that time, the Missouri National Guard has grown to a force of 11,500 Citizen-Soldiers and Airmen. Their continued service at home and abroad reinforces the Missouri National Guard's motto of Always Ready, Always There.

Recent Missions Abroad

Operations in Iraq and Afghanistan have benefited from the presence of the Missouri National Guard. In August 2009, the 1138th Military Police Company was deployed to Iraq to aid in detainee operations. Missouri's third Agribusiness Development Team was also deployed to Afghanistan to teach farmers new agriculture techniques. Later this year, the 1141st Engineer Company of Kansas City will head to Afghanistan, charged with neutralizing roadside bombs to clear roads for convoys. Overall, thousands of Missouri National Guard members have served in Iraq and Afghanistan and, as of September 2009, 10 have lost their lives in the conflicts.

Staff Sgt. Kermit Simmerman and his daughter, Alexis, were among the hundreds of Missouri National Guard Families reunited in March 2008 following the Kosovo Force-10 mission.

Working to foster democracy, Missouri National Guardsmen have also been a major presence in Kosovo. To this day, more than 1,000 Missouri Guardsmen have been deployed to support the United Nations' peacekeeping mission in the country – the Missouri Guard's largest overseas deployment since World War I. A major milestone for the Missouri National Guard came as Kosovo declared its independence from Serbia on February 17, 2008, and troops worked closely with Kosovars to help stabilize the emerging nation.

Helping Neighbors

Along with displaying their courage on the battlefield, Missouri Guardsmen have been there in times of natural disaster throughout the United States.

The Guard was called upon to assist in the Midwest during the Great Flood of 1993, when flooding spread across nine different states and covered 400,000 square miles. Families were displaced, levees failed, farmland was destroyed, and water encroached upon the Missouri State Capitol. Despite the rising water, the men and women of the Guard tried to thwart disaster by sandbagging the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. In the end, the Missouri National Guard used almost every one of its members to protect, rescue, and rebuild the lives of those affected by the catastrophe.

On August 28, 2005, the United States experienced another great force of nature, this time devastating the southern coast. Hurricane Katrina ravaged parts of Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, inundating them with heavy rain and strong winds. The aftermath of Hurricane Katrina left desolation and despair for the victims of the storm. The Missouri National Guard sent more than 2,000 members to aid law enforcement officials and families in need.

Patrick Phillips, of the 1138th Engineer Company, cuts away debris to clear a path following the January 2008 ice storm in Bertrand, MO.

Giving Back to Missouri

In 2009, ice storms plagued our state and created a need for National Guard services in many counties that experienced power outages, blocked roads, and boil orders. About 100,000 homes and businesses lost electricity – including 80 percent of Butler County, 95 percent of New Madrid County and all but the city of Kennett in Dunklin County, where over 450 people were forced into shelters. Even one week after the storms, more than 50,000 homes and businesses were still without power. Overall, eight people died in the storms, and FEMA estimated the total damages to be almost $200 million.

Over 400 National Guardsmen were deployed to 10 counties to assist Missourians in the aftermath of the storms. The Missouri Army National Guard's 1138th Engineer Company provided much-needed relief to residents of Mississippi County, which reported that 85 percent of its residents were without power. The soldiers supplied wellness checks to the residents and cleared roads that were blocked with debris, allowing emergency services and supplies to reach those in need.

According to Sergeant Lawrence Johnson, of Farmington, "in a small community like this, people want you here and want the help. And we're glad to help them out."

The People Behind the Uniform

The thousands of Missourians who serve in the National Guard come from every county in the state and range from 18 to 60 years of age. Women comprise more than 13 percent of both enlisted members and officers. The members of the Guard represent the diversity of our state: farmers, doctors, accountants, policemen, firemen, teachers, corrections officers, truck drivers, homemakers, journalists, small business owners, and clergymen – you name it, chances are there's somebody in the Missouri Guard who does it. True to their Missouri roots, stories of Guard members' unending dedication to service and freedom are plentiful.

Keeping Peace in the World's Newest Nation

In Kosovo, three Missouri Guardsmen from Detachment 1, Headquarters, 35th Infantry Division, voluntarily extended their stay. With a sense of duty to the United Nations' peacekeeping mission, Captain Raines Warford, of Platte City, Staff Sergeant Jeffrey Crowder, of Florissant, and Specialist Lee Walker, of Knox City, chose to forfeit their tickets home in order to work around the clock to maintain peace in the world's newest nation.

Each soldier worked within the Analysis and Control Element (ACE). The soldiers working within ACE are in charge of managing and collecting intelligence and circulating the data so that command officers can make the most intelligent decisions for their troops. Warford, Crowder, and Walker remained in Kosovo to teach the newly deployed soldiers working within ACE about the situation in Kosovo and to continue their day-to-day duties. They led with dignity and respect, working every day so that the soldiers under their command were able to take a day off.

Bridging Cultural Divides in Salah Ad Din

Staff Sergeant Justin Copley, of Plato, saw a void in the relationships between Iraqi police and the American soldiers in Salah Ad Din Province. American soldiers were training new Iraqi police officers to patrol their neighborhoods, but the relationships between the two camps were strained, largely due to a lack of interpreters. Staff Sergeant Copley took the initiative to learn Arabic, starting with colloquial phrases he learned from Iraqi policemen and progressing to subtitles from Arabic movies. Copley discovered that the best way to learn the language and the intricacies of the culture was to force himself "into situations where I had no other option but to try to understand what a person or group was trying to say."

Staff Sgt. Justin Copley stands with some of the 800 Iraqi school children to whom the Guardsmen of the 1175th Military Police Company donated school supplies. The 1175th spent a year in Iraq training police in the Salah Ad Din Province.

The relationships that Sergeant Copley built through more effectively communicating with the Iraqis inevitably saved lives. When several Iraqis told Sergeant Copley that it was unsafe to conduct a planned joint patrol mission in an Iraqi district, the patrol was cancelled. The next day a hole was found indicating the removal of a roadside bomb from a stretch of road the patrol was scheduled to take.

Sergeant Copley's job was to manage a police headquarters and four police stations. However, by building relationships with Iraqis he managed to save lives and forge a bond of trust that continues to make the jobs of American soldiers safer.

Jumpstarting Agricultural Development in Jalalabad

When she isn't on a National Guard mission, Specialist Heather Cunningham is a student at the University of Missouri-Columbia majoring in psychology. Cunningham is part of an Agribusiness Development Team from Missouri working in Jalalabad, Afghanistan. Her job is to prepare logistics for the team so that they can build a sustainable and modern economy in Afghanistan. Cunningham's team is tasked with developing effective solutions to water management and feed mill issues, creating innovative crop and soil enhancements, and implementing business concepts for the marketing and delivery of Afghan goods.

Lt. Col David Boyle, Maj. Timothy Hartman and Master Sgt. Richard Frink discuss agricultural needs with the Lalo Por sub-governor and members of his staff. The Guardsmen are part of Missouri's second Agribusiness Development Team, which is helping Afghanistan rebuild its agriculture industry after decades of war.

Specialist Cunningham is "excited to be able to have the opportunity to serve my country and help others in need." After her military career, she plans to apply her studies in psychology toward helping Missourians, including her fellow soldiers, with mental health needs.

A Tribute

All of the individuals serving in the Missouri National Guard fearlessly and selflessly devote themselves to public service. President Harry S. Truman surely had his fellow guard members in mind when he declared, "Men make history and not the other way around. In periods where there is no leadership, society stands still. Progress occurs when courageous, skillful leaders seize the opportunity to change things for the better." Members of the Missouri National Guard seize the opportunity to make the world a better place, as evidenced by the guardsmen highlighted in this dedication and the thousands more who have served our state.

This year's "Blue Book" pays special tribute to the Missouri National Guard, but also recognizes and appreciates the hard work of every individual who strives to make a difference through public service.

Picture This: The Photography of Domino Danzero

Leslie James

Domino Danzero epitomized what many consider typical of an immigrant's ambition when he came to the United States. He was an entrepreneur and a self-motivated man, determined to make a good life for himself.

Domino was born January 13, 1871, near Turin, Italy. By the time he immigrated to the U.S. at age nineteen, he had lost his mother and his only brother. He held jobs at a coal mine in Illinois, as a cook for restaurants in Chicago, and worked for a bakery in St. Louis before becoming a chef for the Harvey House restaurant chain associated with the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company (Frisco). As a chef, and later a supervisor with Harvey House, Danzero used his amateur photography skills to document the landscape and communities along the Frisco (c. 1900-1908) between St. Louis and Galveston, Texas. Remarkably, railroad management gave special permission to him to stop any train that he was on for the purpose of photographing the local area.

Danzero met his future wife during his travels for Harvey House and Frisco Railroad. He married Bridget Roetto of Monett, Missouri, in August 1902. Bridget became his business associate during their fifty years of marriage, helping with the various businesses Domino founded. The Danzeros began their family in 1903 with the birth of daughter Angelina, followed four years later by a second daughter, Leola. The Danzeros lived in Rogers, Arkansas, for a few years in the early 1900s before settling in Springfield, Missouri, in 1907.

After a decade of service to Harvey House, Danzero decided to embark on his own entrepreneurial path. He started Domino's Café in 1908, Domino's Bakery in 1910, and Domino's Macaroni in 1918. Domino's Bakery produced Butter-Krust Bread and Honey-Nut Bread. Danzero promoted the bread with the slogan, "Eat Domino's Bread and Be Happy." He later modified this slogan to promote homemade products he manufactured in the basement of his house.

In 1923, Danzero received news from his doctor that he suffered from a terminal case of diabetes and would not likely live another year. Domino and Bridget decided to liquidate their assets in the bakery and macaroni factory. The unexpected retirement gave Danzero and his family time to travel, and the energetic Domino focused on smaller entrepreneurial projects and photography. The family took two extended trips west in 1923 and 1925, both of which are well documented in his photograph collection. Domino and Bridget also made a trip to Europe in 1931. Little did they know that Domino would actually live to be eighty-one.

Despite relinquishing his assets, Danzero still had a desire to produce consumable products. In 1935, he set up shop in his basement and manufactured the Domino Food Products line. His output included hot tamales, ravioli, chop suey, mayonnaise, soups, spaghetti sauce, chili, salad dressings, and custom canned food products.

It is not known exactly when Danzero took up the hobby of photography, but some of the earliest photographs within the collection date between 1891 and 1895. Danzero used an Al-Vista Camera #4-B produced by Multiscope and Film Company for many of his early panoramic photographs. He was able to manipulate the camera to allow himself to pose multiple times in one panoramic image, selling patent rights to Kodak.

His photography documents the communities he lived in, the careers he pursued, his travels, and his family life. The images highlight the Italian immigrant in the Midwest ranging from Tontitown, Arkansas, to Kansas City, St. Louis, and Springfield, Missouri.

Domino died on December 18, 1952. Family members recall that in his later years, when his eyesight was poor, he longed to be able to look at his photograph collection again.

After Domino Danzero's death, his photographs stayed within his family – with his daughters, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren – who took an avid interest in the photographs. The collection is now part of a collaborative effort between the Missouri State Archives, which has digitized Missouri and Ozarks images for Missouri Digital Heritage Initiative, and the Missouri State University's Special Collections and Archives Department, which will house the entire collection.

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the talented and dedicated team that produced this book. It is no easy feat to compile thousands of biographies, pictures, statistics and historical data, but the staff in the Secretary of State's Office approached the task with enthusiasm and a deep commitment to accuracy. It was a pleasure to work with such devoted public servants.

Julie Stegeman, Deputy Director of Publications, has contributed to the design, layout and proofing of nine Official Manuals. As we assembled each chapter, Julie consistently went the extra mile to ensure it was done correctly and completed on time. Michael Douglas-Llyr, a talented graphic designer, filled our office with good humor as he applied his creativity and keen eye to the pages of the book. When tough, complicated projects arose, Meghan Lewis was willing to take them on. Always expeditious, Meghan brought momentum to our work. Anna Compton was charged with gathering content from dozens of sources, and she handled that task with a pleasant demeanor and a meticulous attention to detail. Her hard work is evident on literally every page of this book.

This summer, our office faced the untimely loss of two dedicated team members. Marvin Peirick, always quick with a joke and a smile, made sure mail and supplies were delivered throughout our office for more than two decades. Lynne Haake worked in the State Archives, where she captivated countless visitors with stories about the history of our state. Throughout their time in our office, they became best friends and, ultimately, husband and wife. Marvin and Lynne are greatly missed.

Every two years, copies of the "Blue Book" make their way into schools, libraries, offices and homes across Missouri. It is my hope that the information published here will help Missourians better understand and interact with their government. If a rural farmer is able to contact a state agency to solve a problem, a college student sees an opportunity to suggest a piece of legislation, or a young girl reads about our state government and decides she wants to be the governor of Missouri when she grows up – every minute of our hard work has been worth it.

All my best,

Pathways to Progress

Margot Ford McMillen

The very name of our state reflects the importance transportation has played in Missouri's history: It means "people of the big canoes." In 1673, Father Jacques Marquette drew the first map of the area, arriving with trader Louis Jolliet on the Mississippi River from Canada. "Missouri" was taken from the word used by Marquette and Jolliet's Native American guides to describe the people living here. Today, canoes still travel the Missouri, and the rivers remain public property shared by citizens and commerce. But our transportation system has become extensive, and Missouri has become a crossroads — a place where rivers, trails and roads from all across the country meet.

There are more than 32,000 miles of highways and 10,224 bridges in Missouri, including 55 major river bridges, more than any other state. Although cars and trucks continue to increase their efficiency, other modes of transportation continue to move people, produce and freight through the state. Barges, floating on river currents, use small amounts of energy and can utilize the state's 1,050 miles of navigable waterways. Missouri is a crossroad of rail networks, with nineteen railroads operating in the state and some 4,255 miles of main line track. Missourians travel in the air as well, with 120 airports and an estimated 12.6 million airline passengers moving through the state in 2008.

The numbers are impressive, but the real history of transportation in Missouri is a story of opportunity, job creation, and the shaping of communities. As Missourian and former Federal Highway Administration administrator Rex Whitton put it, "transportation and land-use planning to a very large extent will determine the future character of the city." From early times, goods and people have moved into the most remote places because someone created a path. And, as innovations have become necessities, the pathways have led to progress.

Water

Prehistoric humans followed the rivers to our state, traveling here while hunting animal herds. These early humans arrived at the end of the last Ice Age, about 11,000 or 12,000 years ago. When the animals moved from one area to another seeking fresh pasture, so did the people.

Because of this ancient travel, there are prehistoric sites all over Missouri, especially near the rivers. Scientists have more questions than answers about the end of the prehistoric humans, but they disappeared when the animals died. Later, new groups of migrating humans entered the land. By the 1500s, organized tribes of Native Americans had settled along the rivers.

Like the prehistoric people, Native Americans came for resources. Building their villages near rivers, which provided water and easy transportation by canoe, they moved according to the seasons. In the village they planted gardens of corn, squash and melons in the spring, before beginning the long journey, sometimes as long as 200 miles, to the bison grounds in the West. Spending the months of June (which the Osage called the Buffalo-Pawing Moon) and July (Buffalo-Breeding Moon) on the prairie, they returned to their villages in August (Yellow-Flower Moon). While the men continued to follow deer and smaller game on the rivers and woodland paths, women preserved the garden produce, buffalo meat and sinews in preparation for winter.

By the time European explorers traveled those same rivers to our area, there were well-established villages of Osage and Missouri tribes, with Native Americans still migrating from their villages to hunting grounds. At the time, the rivers were slow-moving, wide and shallow. Canoes, skimming the surface of the water, were the perfect transportation method. They could navigate shallow creeks and be carried over land where there was no water. When early European entrepreneurs needed more space, they lashed two canoes together and put a deck between them. Later, they devised flat-bottomed boats, followed by keel boats. The downstream trip was a relatively simple float of 25 to 30 days, but to get upstream the boats were poled, or dragged by men walking on towpaths on the river bank.

The journey of French explorers Marquette and Jolliet, who led an expedition down the Mississippi River in the late 1600s, gave us the first maps and journals of our region. Not long after, other Europeans traveled here in search of resources that could be sold in markets back in Europe. The French explorer Etienne de Bourgmont arrived in 1714 and wrote his Exact Description of Louisiana, of Its Harbors, Lands and Rivers, and Names of the Indian Tribes That Occupy It, and the Commerce and Advantages to Be Derived Therefrom for the Establishment of a Colony. The title leaves no question about the motives of the new travelers. As with travelers of the past, they moved from Europe to the new world for its resources. Many river and creek names today remind us of the French exploration. Naming the rivers "Platte" (meaning flat), or "Auxvasse" (meaning muddy), or "Cuivre" (meaning coppery), the early French explorers left their marks all over the waterways.

De Bourgmont spent most of his time in a Missouri Indian village of longhouses in present-day Saline County. Today the site is part of Van Meter State Park and provides a perfect example of a site typical of Native American river villages. It is close to water, but also buffered by forests. On a hill with views of the river in both directions, the location was secure and provided easy transportation to gather river plants and track animals. De Bourgmont liked the location enough to attempt to build a fort nearby. A team of archaeologists led by Carl Chapman and Robert T. Bray excavated the fort in the 1950s, and estimated that the village was home to a thousand or more families. The archaeologists even found ocean shells and pipes made from Minnesota stone, indicating that the Missouri traveled as consumers, using the rivers as highways to new resources and trade with other tribal groups.

when the French explorers Marquette and Jolliet first journeyed through the area, the governor of French Louisiana reported that there were 110 French traders along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers. Lively communities of mixed-blood people, or metis, were appearing in the region. By 1715, lead was discovered at Mine La Motte, in present-day Madison County, and settlement by French miners, mine developers and their slaves proceeded in fits and starts. By 1762, when the territory was transferred to the Spanish, there were about seventy Creole families, mostly farming and digging for lead, in the outpost called Ste. Genevieve, the first permanent settlement claimed in Missouri.

The famed Boone family, invited to the area by the Spanish government, brought some of the first American settlers. Daniel Boone's sons, Daniel Morgan Boone and Nathan, began an enterprise to purify salt from a saline spring in present-day Howard County. After boiling off the water in huge kettles, the salt was shipped to St. Louis by keelboat. The timing was perfect, as salt was a necessity for the settlers that were beginning to arrive along the Mississippi River.

When Lewis and Clark returned safely from their voyage to the Pacific coast in 1806, the message was that pioneer families, along with supplies, could travel west safely. The heyday of transportation by horseback and covered wagon would soon begin, but the same transportation that brought pioneers from the east also brought salt from eastern factories, which forced the Boone salt factory to close. Today it is the home to Boonslick State Park near Napton.

By 1821, there were enough Americans in the Missouri territory to achieve statehood. This meant security for most settlers, but the urge for adventures pushed others farther west. By 1822, the trail west to Santa Fe was established, followed by the Oregon Trail northwest, which crossed the Rocky Mountains. Nearly as soon as it was created, that trail split in two directions—one to Oregon and one to California. River towns like Arrow Rock, Franklin, Independence and Westport quickly became prosperous as starting places for pioneer wagon trains heading west.

In such a town, a family could buy a wagon and team, plus food and supplies, then join a convoy of other wagons with a guide who was familiar with the route. A wagon measuring 4 feet by 12 feet could be purchased for $80 to $90. A list of supplies for a man, published in 1859, included two flannel overshirts, two woolen undershirts, two pairs of thick cotton drawers, four pairs woolen socks, two pairs cotton socks, four silk handkerchiefs, two pairs of shoes, two ponchos, one coat, one overcoat, one comb, one brush, two toothbrushes, four pounds of soap, one knife, needles, thread, buttons, pins, a thimble and some beeswax. Some river towns developed hearty Main Streets with merchants, hotels and restaurants. Missouri, in the middle of the nation, had become the crossroads state, a place where trails and rivers came together — the Gateway to the West.

Steamboats

In 1817, the Zebulon M. Pike became the first steamboat to arrive in St. Louis on the Mississippi River, taking six days to get to Missouri from Louisville. Two years later, the Independence ascended the Missouri River to Franklin. Soon after, the Western Engineer traveled the upper Missouri. This steamboat was built to look like a steam-blowing dragon, purposely to intimidate Native Americans and send the message that the waterways would now be dominated by Americans.

Not long after Samuel Clemens was born in 1835, his family moved to the great Mississippi River town of Hannibal. Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, noted: "When I was a boy, there was but one permanent ambition among my comrades in our village on the west bank of the Mississippi River. That was, to be a steamboatman."

At the height of the steamboat era, wealthy Missourians took pleasure trips on the Missouri River on fine boats like the Montana and The Belle of St. Louis. In 1857, over 720 steamboats docked in Kansas City, some loaded with people and goods for business and others packed with travelers watching the river banks. Parties of fashionable young people and their chaperones might start in St. Joseph and end up in Kansas City, dancing quadrilles and Virginia reels and dining on fine foods.

Despite that success, river transportation was being challenged by the railroads. In 1836, fifty-nine delegates from across Missouri met to petition Congress for 800,000 acres of land on which to build two rail lines. A year later, financial panic killed the attempt, but boom times would return. By 1849, plans were laid for a transcontinental railroad.

On November 1, 1855, Jefferson City had spent months preparing for the arrival of the city's first "iron horse," and a great crowd had arrived to see the sight. Residents had prepared a meal for the ten train cars filled with 600 St. Louisans, including many of the state's dignitaries. In an era of crossings on river ferries rather than bridges, the route included travel over the state's first railroad bridge, spanning the Gasconade River. It had not been completed but had passed tests to determine its fitness. As the train began to cross, the first trestle collapsed and the engine and nine cars fell 30 feet to the river bed. Over two dozen people died.

Rails

River transportation was so successful that many Missouri counties with river ports refused to let the rail lines cross their land. To make things more contentious, some rail backers were northerners at a time when the south was considering secession. Despite these setbacks, a few short lines were completed, and, in 1859, the first railroad reached across the state, from the Mississippi River town of Hannibal to the Missouri River town of St. Joseph. Early locomotives required wood and water every few miles, so the new line spawned new villages. Connecting major river towns on the east and west sides of the state also opened the way for a daring experiment: the Pony Express, which picked up mail in St. Joseph and carried it by galloping horsemen to California.

The "Hannibal and St. Joe" was the only rail line across Missouri during the Civil War, but after the Civil War, peace brought progress. Nearly one-third of Missouri's population had disappeared in the violent times. In the years following, speculators and new immigrants began arriving from the north. This led to the railroad industry becoming one of the first building booms after the Civil War. By 1868, there was a railroad bridge across the Mississippi River at Hannibal.

While some of the old railroad service towns died as locomotives were developed to travel longer between stops, other towns became even more important. One such town, Moberly, was named for Colonel William E. Moberly, first president of the Chariton and Randolph Railroad. Established in 1866 as a main hub, it grew so fast that it earned the nickname "The Magic City." An 1867 advertising bulletin noted that "In the east, the towns and cities make the railroads – here the railroads make the cities and towns."

Moberly became a major stop for the Wabash Railroad, with a turntable, repair shops and switch yards. The turntable was necessary because early locomotives could not go backwards, so they needed a piece of track that turned them around. After the turn, they were driven into a switch yard, where lines of cars were sorted according to destination. From the grain fields and coal mines in the north, to the logging camps and lead mines in the south, Missouri products helped build the nation.

Missouri's economic future looked secure with rail transportation as a major player. Along the main lines, spur routes were built to serve communities and individual businesses. In Callaway County, which had voted 1,025 to 627 against building the railroad in 1853, a bond was floated in 1871 to build a spur line. The line ran from Mexico to Cedar City, with stops in many Callaway County towns. The main depot was in Guthrie, a town of about 100. Besides picking up and delivering people and products from local businesses, the line carried all of the parts for at least one house ordered from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

As overland travel continued to boom, many river towns went into decline. Others were able to successfully move from one mode of transportation to the other. St. Charles had been a successful river town and then housed the car repair shop of the North Missouri Railroad. When the shop closed, the city again backed the transportation business. The St. Charles Car Company first built horse-drawn street cars, trolleys and freight cars for steam railroads. They began building railroad passenger cars in 1886, during the height of the railroad building boom. The company quickly became a major employer with 1,800 workers. In 1889, it merged with 12 other companies to form American Car and Foundry, a major producer of passenger cars.

As the century turned, the business prospered, but two World Wars meant that production shifted from civilian to military items. During World War I, St. Charles turned out 50,000 wagons and parts for artillery vehicles. In World War II, it produced 1,800 light tanks and 1 hospital car per day in 1944. After the wars, a return to civilian production again saw business boom as modern railroads replaced old equipment. The plant also built sleeping cars for a time, but by 1959, 100 years after the first railroad crossed the state from Hannibal to St. Joseph, the shops were closed permanently.

Harvey Houses and Pullman Cars

Missouri railroads not only connected people throughout the state, they created jobs for two groups emerging on the labor scene. From the beginning, the Pullman Company was a primary employer of African-American men, and the Harvey House restaurants were primary employers of white women.

Frederick Henry Harvey came to America in 1850 as a 15-year-old from England and found his way west. Working on railroads, he worked on the Hannibal and St. Joseph, which became the first line in the nation to include a car where mail was sorted as it traveled. But the train, with its board seats and rough tracks, was so uncomfortable that it earned the nickname, "Horrible and Slow Jolting." Harvey quickly realized that he could make money providing comfort to exhausted travelers.

At major stops, hungry travelers came off the train, stiff and uncomfortable. In many railroad towns, food was hard to find, and when they found it, travelers would be served dry biscuits, greasy ham and weak coffee. Harvey had operated a restaurant in St. Louis, and he knew that if he served good food on china from France, with silver from England and linen from Ireland, he would send the message that dining, and railroad traveling, could be civilized. Furthermore, he realized that if he had a railroad line as a partner, he would have a more reliable base of clients for his services. He made a deal with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe lines, and "Meals by Fred Harvey" soon became a slogan of the line. The Santa Fe supplied space in their depots and brought fresh ingredients on their trains. The menus included Kansas City beef and California seafood and produce. At the same time, Harvey created a system that could feed hundreds of passengers in the time it took to service an engine.

The first "Harvey Restaurant" opened in 1876. Twenty years later, he had seventeen, including an elegant restaurant in St. Louis Union Station. To speed service and keep the passengers on schedule, a brakeman on the train would take orders and send them by telegraph to the Harvey House cooks. A mile from town, the engineer would blow the train whistle to let the restaurant know they were close. They would be greeted at the station by a servant in a spotless white coat hitting a brass gong. Heading for the sound, the passengers would be guided to the door and to the dining room, where the Harvey Girls served the meals. When Fred Harvey died in 1901, his company held 15 hotels, 47 restaurants, and 30 dining car operations, and about half the employees were women. The company was continued by Harvey's sons.

While Harvey Houses were a major employer of women, The Pullman Company, operators of railroad sleeping cars that provided the most luxurious transportation of the time, offered jobs to African-American men. Pullman-Standard's history dates from 1859, when George M. Pullman remodeled two coaches into overnight sleeping cars that ran between Chicago and St. Louis for the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis Railroad. By 1886, the cars, also built by Pullman, boasted padded chairs and "toilet rooms." They were each 65 feet long and 9 feet 8 inches wide. Perhaps most innovative, the cars had large, plate glass windows with satin curtains. In the early years most overnight travelers were businessmen, and Pullman recognized that their accommodations would have to be clean and their attendants discreet. Each Pullman car had a conductor and a porter, who was in charge of cleaning, running errands and generally taking care of the travelers. Porters would also direct the white travelers to the best entertainment in their home cities, and the black entertainment districts in St. Louis and Kansas City became favorite stopping places for businessmen. The distinctive St. Louis blues sound and Kansas City jazz became part of the railroad experience, and soon Missouri musicians were touring the world and making recordings that would become the soundtracks of America in the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s.

At its peak, Pullman employed 20,000 black porters, and, in the 1920s, porters formed the first black labor union, the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. Through this organization, African Americans were able to improve their working conditions, laying the ground work for future generations to follow their footsteps in the labor movement.

Air

There is no doubt that the twentieth century changed transportation in remarkable ways. At statehood in 1821, pioneers crossed Missouri in covered wagons. By 1921, transportation by rail was becoming commonplace. Yet, there was another form of transportation – the desire to take flight – competing for our attention.

Perhaps the oldest art in Missouri is a collection of rock carvings in Washington State Park, which record flocks of birds and single birds in flight. Do the petroglyphs celebrate a record sighting of birds? A longing by the artist to take wing? Do they represent the people's myths and beliefs? While we will never know the meaning of the birds carved in stone, it is clear that flight has always fascinated humans. If we could fly, early travelers thought, there would be no need for bridges, roads or rails. We could cross rivers and prairies easily and quickly, and leave rocks and trees in their places.

In July of 1859, a hot-air balloon was launched to carry mail from St. Louis to New York. The businessmen in the balloon carried food and drink and had a boat tied under the craft, just in case they landed on water. After a night in the air, they found themselves in a fast wind over Lake Erie. In a panic, they threw the mail overboard and cut the boat loose. When the wind tossed them into the woods, the balloon burst and the wild ride was over – but they were, miraculously, in New York. They had traveled 809 miles in fewer than 20 hours – more than 40 miles per hour in a basket. That record was unbroken until 1910.

A few days after the eventful landing, the mail was rescued and delivered, but the mail delivery plan was abandoned. Despite the setback, ballooning continued to be a popular hobby. Designs improved, and at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, there was the introduction of a lighter-than-air machine with steering. The hydrogen airship "Arrow" or "California Arrow" had a small motor with a propeller to control its direction. The Fair was a demonstration site for transportation of all kinds. Besides demonstrations of "Arrow," there were parades with people mounted on camels and horses, steam engines and carriages. On the artificial canals, fairgoers could enjoy a ride in a gondola.

Missouri's most famous aviator, Charles Lindbergh, was only 2 years old the summer of the World's Fair, but by the time he was twenty, he was learning to fly an airplane. Lindbergh was an experienced pilot by 1926, when he flew the first air mail route between St. Louis and Chicago in a machine that had wings made of wood covered with canvas. The 1859 balloonists would have been impressed. Taking off in farm fields and navigating by watching for landmarks, flying the mail route turned out to be excellent experience for Lindbergh. In 1927, motivated by a prize for the first pilot to fly across the Atlantic Ocean, Lindbergh was backed by St. Louis businessmen to compete. To honor the city that had always led the nation in transportation, they named his plane "Spirit of St. Louis."

The flight took 33 hours and 30 minutes, with Lindbergh sitting in a cramped chamber with no front window, navigating by periscope. With the engine in front, and fuel tanks behind it, piloting the airplane was like sitting inside a flying bomb. He wrote that he used fuel from the "nose tank" first, draining it so that the airplane's weight would shift to the back in case of a crash. "Lucky Lindy" made it from New York to Paris, where he was greeted by thousands of well-wishers after landing.

Having proven that long-distance air flight was possible, Lindbergh founded an airline that would fly across the United States. He also helped develop airports in St. Louis and Kansas City, which today link our state with the world.

Roadways

At the same time air travel was becoming feasible, there was great progress and innovation happening on the ground. In 1893, the first "horseless carriage" came to St. Louis. Soon, Missouri manufacturers were building cars with names like Moon, Dorris and St. Louis Motor Carriage. By 1921, there were 16,387 registered cars in the state, which at that point was home to more than three million residents. Automobiles began as expensive novelties, but drivers quickly saw the potential of convenience and exploration of new places.

For the most part, road travel was slow and hazardous. Each county had planned their own road systems until 1907, when the General Assembly passed laws that enabled counties to hire highway engineers. Then in 1916, federal lawmakers passed a law to provide dollar-for-dollar matches for road improvement. In his 1917 inaugural speech, Governor Frederick D. Gardner pledged to press forward with laws that allowed the state to benefit from $2.5 million in federal funds. Despite the improvements, the funding was not enough to provide safe passage for the thousands of new drivers coming into the market every year. As the "Roaring Twenties" began, debate in the state hit a fever pitch.

In 1920, a constitutional amendment was proposed to finally "lift Missouri out of the mud." The amendment would allow the state to issue $60 million in bonds, financing over 6,000 miles of hard-surfaced state roads to connect counties throughout the state. A tremendous bi-partisan effort emerged in support of the measure, and Missourians passed the amendment with more than 52 percent of the vote.

What followed was a long, hot summer of negotiation in the General Assembly to determine how the money would be spent. A flurry of bills, amendments, proposals, and withdrawals led to a compromise: $29 million went to the "peacock lanes," which connected urban centers to tourist attractions, and $31 million would finance the first state highways. Each county also received a complete cross-county road before work started on any of the ancillary roads.

The "Centennial Road Law of 1921" represented the most expensive special session in Missouri history to that point. A year later, the state highway system was established. Four years after that, Missouri's system was used in planning the U.S. system. After World War II, a national network of road transportation would connect towns and cities across state lines. Throughout this period of development, Missouri continued to be a transportation leader.

By 1952, the state maintained a vast network of farm-to-market roads, state highways and connecting routes – a total of nearly 20,000 miles of roadway. To label the roads, the state developed a system of labels in black letters on white signs. The system of using single or double letters (like "M" or "MM") originated here and has been adopted by other states. Although may appear unpredictable, the highway labeling system has rules, even though the rules are occasionally broken. Combinations of letters are allowed, but only with A as the first letter, as in "Route AD," unless the road goes to a recreational area. In that case, the road may have a name that begins with "R," like "RA." At county lines, the roads traditionally change names.

In the 1950s, the apex of the post-war boom, Americans took to the road as never before. The summer after leaving Washington and returning to life as ordinary citizens in Independence, Harry and Bess Truman took a three-week road trip to the East Coast and back. Logging 2,500 miles, the Trumans ate in roadside diners and slept in average lodgings, trying to blend in with American life. "I like to take trips – any kind of trip," Truman wrote. "They are about the only recreation I have besides reading."

The time had come to create a seamless path of pavement and bridges from coast to coast, and it began in Missouri when the first three contracts under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 were signed here. The first contract was to create U.S. 66, better known as Route 66, which connected Chicago to Los Angeles and included 317 miles of road across Missouri. A few years after that historic beginning, in 1961, Missouri native son Rex Whitton was appointed administrator of the Federal Highway Administration. Whitton encouraged roadside landscaping and noted that there are social implications to new highways, stating that "an investment in the highway plant, to increase its capacity, in turn increases the potential of economic and social development."

Even today, our economy depends on transportation, and in recent years, we have put many resources into our infrastructure. A new project, launched in 2007, promises to bring bridges and highways up-to-date, with wider yellow stripes, brighter signs, rumble strips, paved shoulders and smoother pavement. We also became the first state to rebuild parts of the old highway system by using federal funds from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

And the future beckons…

Missouri is on the cusp of change, and much of that change has to do with transportation. Some of the excitement still has to do with the sheer joy of moving around and seeing new sights. Travel on the original freeways – the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers – is now rare, but there is an exciting new trail beside the Missouri River. The Katy Trail extends across the state in a magnificent 225 miles of manageable, nearly flat hiking and bike path. The trail takes riders into wine country, past prairie land, river glades, and limestone bluffs, and through the stone tunnels and steel trestles of the old Missouri-Kansas-Texas, or MKT, Railroad. Much of the trail follows the Lewis and Clark Trail along the Missouri River, and it is the longest rails-to-trails project in the United States. Like the old spur railroads, the Katy Trail has spawned paths into the country side including a side trail nearly nine miles long from the river into downtown Columbia and the University of Missouri.

With the age of cheap oil behind us, Missourians are exploring new ways to move people and goods. Engineering students at the University of Missouri have built a race car that runs on hydrogen. In Neosho, college students fit solar panels onto electric golf cars. In Rockport and other Missouri towns, consumers can plug electric vehicles into a wind-generated electrical grid and charge batteries to drive on energy that can go on forever.

The future may be unknown, but one thing is sure: Missourians are innovators and creators. Throughout the history of the Show-Me State, we have traveled across waterways, built networks of roads, and took to the skies. As technology and times change, the people of our state will continue to lead the nation by finding new ways to connect people and goods with the rest of the world.

Missouri in Motion

Dear Fellow Missourians:

The people of our state have never been inclined to sit on the sidelines. Whether it's hauling logs by horse in Rich Hill, traveling on a riverboat in Washington, or wakeboarding on the Missouri River near the Capitol, we're always in motion. Missouri moves — and that is the inspiration for this year's photo contest.

This is the 12th statewide photo contest, and for the first time you decided which photos made it into the Blue Book. A committee from the Secretary of State's office narrowed down the hundreds of great submissions sent in from all over the state to 10 photos in three categories: transportation and travels in Missouri, Missouri's weather and environment, and family and friends playing sports. Then, more than 12,000 Missourians voted for their favorite pictures online at www.sos.mo.gov to select the winners.

I'd like to thank everyone who submitted entries and voted online. This year, photography clubs got involved like never before, encouraging folks in communities across the state to dust off their cameras and send in their very best. I hope you enjoy the photographs, and that they show you how Missouri moves today and how, together, we are moving into the future.

Very truly yours,

Robin Carnahan

State Symbols of Missouri

The Great Seal of Missouri

The Great Seal was designed by Judge Robert William Wells and adopted by the Missouri General Assembly on January 11, 1822. The center of the state seal is composed of two parts. On the right is the United States coat-of-arms containing the bald eagle. In its claws are arrows and olive branches, signifying that the power of war and peace lies with the U.S. federal government. On the left side of the shield, the state side, are a grizzly bear and a silver crescent moon. The crescent symbolizes Missouri at the time of the state seal's creation, a state of small population and wealth which would increase like the new or crescent moon; it also symbolizes the "second son," meaning Missouri was the second state formed out of the Louisiana Territory.

This shield is encircled by a belt inscribed with the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall," which indicates Missouri's advantage as a member of the United States. The two grizzlies on either side of the shield symbolize the state's strength and its citizens' bravery. The bears stand atop a scroll bearing the state motto, "Salus Populi Suprema Lex Esto," which means, "The welfare of the people shall be the supreme law." Below this scroll are the Roman numerals for 1820, the year Missouri began its functions as a state.

The helmet above the shield represents state sovereignty, and the large star atop the helmet surrounded by 23 smaller stars signifies Missouri's status as the 24th state. The cloud around the large star indicates the problems Missouri had in becoming a state. The whole state seal is enclosed by a scroll bearing the words, "The Great Seal of the State of Missouri." (RSMo 10.060)

The State Flag

Nearly 100 years after achieving statehood, Missouri adopted an official flag on March 22, 1913. The flag was designed by the late Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Watkins Oliver, wife of former State Senator R.B. Oliver. The flag consists of three horizontal stripes of red, white and blue. These represent valor, purity, vigilance and justice. In the center white stripe is the Missouri coat-of-arms, circled by a blue band containing 24 stars, denoting that Missouri was the 24th state. The Oliver flag embraced national pride, and at the same time expressed characteristics of Missouri and Missourians.

The three large stripes were symbolic of the people of the state—the blue stripe represented vigilance, permanency, and justice, the red represented valor, and the white stripe symbolized purity. The Missouri coat-of-arms appeared in the center of the flag, signifying both Missouri's independence as a state, and its place as a part of the whole United States. Having the coat-of-arms in the center of the national colors represents Missouri, as it is—the geographical center of the nation. By mingling the state coat-of-arms with the national colors of red, white, and blue, the flag signified the harmony existing between the two. Twenty-four stars surrounded the coat-of-arms, representative of Missouri's position as the 24th state admitted to the Union. (RSMo 10.020)

Missouri Day

On March 22, 1915, the 48th General Assembly set aside the first Monday in October each year as "Missouri Day," due to the efforts of Mrs. Anna Brosius Korn, a native Missourian. In 1969, the 75th General Assembly changed the date to the third Wednesday in October. Missouri Day is a time for schools to honor the state and for the people of the state to celebrate the achievements of all Missourians. (RSMo 9.040)

The State Floral Emblem

On March 16, 1923, a bill was signed naming the white hawthorn blossom the official state floral emblem of Missouri. Known as the "red haw" or "white haw," the hawthorn (Crataegus) is a member of the great rose family, which resembles the apple group. The hawthorn blossoms have greenish-yellow centers and form in white clusters. More than 75 species of the hawthorn grow in Missouri, particularly in the Ozarks. (RSMo 10.030)

The State Bird

On March 30, 1927, the native bluebird (Sialia Sialis) became the official state bird of Missouri. The bluebird, considered a symbol of happiness, is usually 6½ to 7 inches long. While its upper parts are covered with light blue plumage, its breast is cinnamon red, turning rust-colored in the fall. The bluebird is common in Missouri from early spring until late November. (RSMo 10.010)

The State Tree

On June 20, 1955, the flowering dogwood (Cornus Florida L.) became Missouri's official tree. The tree is small in size, rarely growing over 40 feet in height or 18 inches in diameter. The dogwood sprouts tiny greenish-yellow flowers in clusters, with each flower surrounded by four white petals. The paried, oval leaves are olive green above and covered with silvery hairs underneath. In the fall, the upper part of the leaves turn scarlet or orange and bright red fruits grow on the tree. (RSMo 10.040)

The State Song

The "Missouri Waltz" became the state song under an act adopted by the General Assembly on June 30, 1949. The song came from a melody by John V. Eppel and was arranged by Frederic Knight Logan, using lyrics written by J.R. Shannon. First published in 1914, the song did not sell well and was considered a failure. By 1939, the song had gained popularity and six million copies had been sold. Sales increased substantially after Missourian Harry S Truman became president. (RSMo 10.050)

The State Mineral

On July 21, 1967, the mineral galena was adopted as the official mineral of Missouri. Galena is the major source of lead ore, and the recognition of this mineral by the state legislature was to emphasize Missouri's status as the nation's top producer of lead. Galena is dark gray in color and breaks into small cubes. Mining of galena has flourished in the Joplin-Granby area of southwest Missouri, and rich deposits have been located in such places as Crawford, Washington, Iron and Reynolds counties. (RSMo 10.047)

The State Rock

Mozarkite was adopted as the official state rock on July 21, 1967, by the 74th General Assembly. An attractive rock, mozarkite appears in a variety of colors, most predominantly green, red or purple. The rock's beauty is enhanced by cutting and polishing into ornamental shapes for jewelry. Mozarkite is most commonly found in Benton County. (RSMo 10.045)

The State Insect

On July 3, 1985, the honeybee was designated as Missouri's state insect. The honeybee, (Apis Mellifera) yellow or orange and black in color, is a social insect which collects nectar and pollen from flower blossoms in order to produce honey. The honeybee is common to Missouri and is cultivated by beekeepers for honey production. (RSMo 10.070)

The State Musical Instrument

The fiddle became the state's official musical instrument on July 17, 1987. Brought to Missouri in the late 1700s by fur traders and settlers, the fiddle quickly became popular. The instrument was adaptable to many forms of music, could be played without extensive formal training and was light and easy to carry. For generations, the local fiddle player was the sole source of entertainment in many communities and held a position of great respect in the region. (RSMo 10.080)

The State Fossil

The crinoid became the state's official fossil on June 16, 1989, after a group of Lee's Summit school students worked through the legislative process to promote it as a state symbol. The crinoid (Delocrinus missouriensis) is a mineralization of an animal which, because of its plant-like appearance, was called the "sea lily." Related to the starfish, the crinoid which covered Missouri lived in the ocean more than 250 million years ago. (RSMo 10.090)

The State Tree Nut

The nut produced by the black walnut tree (Juglans Nigra), known as the eastern black walnut, became the state tree nut on July 9, 1990. The nut has a variety of uses. The meat is used in ice cream, baked goods and candies. The shell provides the soft grit abrasive used in metal cleaning and polishing, and oil well drilling. It is also used in paint products and as a filler in dynamite. (RSMo 10.100)

The State Animal

On May 31, 1995, the Missouri mule was designated as the official state animal. The mule is a hybrid, the offspring of a mare (female horse) and a jack (male donkey). After its introduction to the state in the 1820s, the mule quickly became popular with farmers and settlers because of its hardy nature. Missouri mules pulled pioneer wagons to the Wild West during the 19th century and played a crucial role in moving troops and supplies in World Wars I and II. For decades, Missouri was the nation's premier mule producer. (RSMo 10.110)

The State American Folk Dance

The square dance was adopted as Missouri's official American folk dance on May 31, 1995. Square dances are derived from folk and courtship dances brought to the United States by European immigrants. Lively music and callers are hallmarks of square dancing. The caller directs the dancers by singing the names of figures and steps to be performed. (RSMo 10.120)

The State Aquatic Animal

The paddlefish (Polyodon Spathula) became Missouri's official aquatic animal on May 23, 1997. Only three rivers in Missouri support substantial populations of the paddlefish: the Mississippi, Missouri and the Osage. They are also present in some of the state's larger lakes. The paddlefish is primitive, with a cartilage skeleton, rather than bone.They commonly exceed five feet in length and weights of 60 pounds; 20-year olds are common, and some live 30 years or more. (RSMo 10.130)

The State Fish

On May 23, 1997, the channel catfish became the official fish of Missouri. The channel catfish (Ictalurus Punctatus) is slender, with a deeply forked tail. Young have spots that disappear with age. The catfish does not rely on sight to find its food; instead, it uses cat-like whiskers to assist in the hunt. The channel cat is the most abundant large catfish in Missouri streams. Its diet includes animal and plant material. Adults are normally 12 to 32 inches long and weigh from a half-pound to 15 pounds. (RSMo 10.135)

The State Horse

On June 4, 2002, the Missouri fox trotting horse became Missouri's official state horse. Missouri fox trotters were developed in the rugged Ozark hills of Missouri during the early 19th century. Bloodlines can be traced from early settlers to Missouri from the neighboring states of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee and Arkansas. The distinguishing characteristic of the fox trotter is its rhythmic gait, in which the horse walks with the front feet and trots with the hind feet. This gait gives the rider a smooth gentle ride. (RSMo 10.140)

The State Grape

On July 11, 2003, the Norton/Cynthiana grape (Vitis Aestivalis) was adopted as the official state grape. This adaptable, self-pollinating variety has been cultivated since the 1830s and is likely North America's oldest grape variety still commercially grown. Norton/Cynthiana has long been prized by Missouri vintners for its hardy growth habit and intense flavor characteristics, which produce lush, dry premium red wines of world-class quality and distinction. (RSMo 10.160)

The Purple Martin Capital

The City of Adrian, located in Bates County, was declared the purple martin capital of the state of Missouri on August 28, 2003. Purple martins are largely dependent on humans to build and maintain their housing and are happy in large bird houses or in gourds. These creatures are partial to living near water, in open parts of a yard, or along rural roadsides. Purple martins are popular among bird lovers because of their melodic singing and aerial feats. (RSMo 10.141)

The State Dinosaur

Hypsibema missouriense is a type of dinosaur called a Hadrosaur or "duck billed" dinosaur. It was a herbivore with jaws that contained over 1,000 teeth. Hypsibema had evolved specialized teeth to handle the tough, fibrous vegetation of the time. Hypsibema lived in Missouri during the Late Cretaceous Period. Hypsibema was first discovered in 1942 by Dan Stewart, near the town of Glen Allen, MO, and became the state's offical dinosaur on July 9, 2004. (RSMo 10.095)

The State Amphibian

On June 5, 2005, the American Bullfrog (Rana catesbeiana) became the official state amphibian. The bullfrog is the largest frog native to Missouri and is found in every county. Most Missourians are familiar with the deep, resonant "jug-of-rum" call, which is typically heard on warm, rainy nights between mid-May and early July. The idea for the bullfrog designation came from a fourth grade class at Chinn Elementary School in Kansas City. (RSMo 10.170)

The State Game Bird

The bobwhite quail (Colinus virginianus), also known as the northern bobwhite, became the official state game bird on July 13, 2007. The northern bobwhite is found throughout Missouri in a variety of habitats. In the fall and winter, northern bobwhites form loose social groups better known as a covey. A covey will generally contain ten to twelve quail, but can have as many as twenty or thirty birds. The familiar two- or three-note "bobwhite" whistle is made by males in the spring and summer to attract females. (RSMo 10.012).

The State Invertebrate

On June 21, 2007, the crayfish (also known as crawfish and crawdad) became the official state invertebrate. Crayfish are an important food source for Missouri fishes. Missouri supports more than 30 species of crayfish (including seven species that occur nowhere else in the world). Crayfish are found in every county of the state and contribute to our unique biodiversity and conservation heritage. The nomination of crayfish for state invertebrate came from Mrs. Janna Elfrink's elementary school class in Reeds Spring, Missouri. (RSMo 10.125)

The State Reptile

On June 21, 2007, the three-toed box turtle (Terrapene carolina triunguis) became the official state reptile. Most Missourians are familiar with this land-dwelling turtle. Three-toed box turtles, as their name implies, typically have three hind toes. The hinged bottom shell allows the turtle to retreat inside as if enclosed in a box. Males have red eyes and females have brown eyes. (RSMo 10.175).

The State Grass

Big bluestem (Andropogon gerardii) was designated as Missouri's stategrass on June 11, 2007 as a result of efforts by the Fourth Grade class at Truman Elementary School in Rolla. Big bluestem is native to Missouri and occurs throughout the state, with the exception of a few southeastern-most counties. It is a major component of Missouri's tallgrass prairies where it impressed the first explorers by sometimes growing tall enough to hide a person on horseback. The name bluestem comes from the bluish-green color of the leaves and stems that turn an attractive reddish-copper color in autumn. (RSMo 10.150).

The State Dessert

The ice cream cone became the state of Missouri's official dessert on August 28, 2008. The 1904 World's Fair in St Louis was the birthplace of the treat and has become a staple at many community events across the state, such as the State Fair. The University of Missouri–Columbia has played a large role in the development of ice cream products for over a century. Missouri presently ranks tenth in ice cream production. (RSMo 10.180).

Jeremiah W. (Jay) Nixon

Governor

Elected November 4, 2008
Term expires January 2013

JAY NIXON (Democrat) is serving his first term as governor of Missouri. Garnering the highest margin of victory for a non-incumbent governor in 44 years, Nixon was overwhelmingly elected by Missourians as their 55th governor on Nov. 4, 2008, to lead the state in a new direction.

Governor Nixon has put forward an agenda to make government more efficient, effective and responsive to the needs of Missouri families. He is committed to attracting the jobs of the future to Missouri, making health care more affordable and placing a college education within reach for middle-class students.

As he did while serving in the state Senate and during his four terms as attorney general, Governor Nixon is reaching across the aisle to put Missouri families first. During his first legislative session as governor in 2009, Nixon successfully worked with the Republican-controlled legislature to pass his comprehensive jobs bill to put Missourians back to work in the face of a 25-year high in unemployment. The legislature also passed Caring for Missourians, an initiative by Governor Nixon that will enable Missouri's public colleges and universities to graduate an additional 900 professionals in high-demand health care fields each year.

The General Assembly also made permanent the reforms Governor Nixon enacted during his first week in office when he opened up every license fee office in Missouri for competitive bid, a move that ended a decades-long system of political patronage.

Governor Nixon has made a strong public education system one of his chief priorities. During his first year in office, Missouri's public elementary and secondary schools received a record amount of funding. Similarly, even as other states were cutting funding for their universities and raising tuition by double digits, Governor Nixon reached a historic agreement to freeze tuition rates for the 2009–2010 school year and keep funding for those schools stable.

Prior to becoming Governor, Jay Nixon was elected to a record four terms as Missouri's attorney general, beginning in 1992. Inheriting an office tainted by scandal, Nixon restored integrity to the Attorney General's Office by cleaning up corruption, cracking down on crime, and protecting consumers and the environment. Under his leadership, the Attorney General's Office became one of the most efficient and effective in state government.

As attorney general, Nixon earned a reputation for taking on the toughest fights and winning. Nixon himself argued before the United States Supreme Court in Nixon v. Shrink, a landmark victory that reinstated Missouri's campaign contribution limits and cleared the way nationally for campaign finance reform. His lawsuit against the big tobacco companies continues to collect billions of dollars for Missourians, and his settlements with the insurance industry and hospitals led to the formation of two of the largest health care foundations in state history. One of Nixon's most successful programs, Missouri's popular No-Call List, has become a model for states across the nation to stop unwanted telemarketing calls.

A native of De Soto, Jay Nixon was raised in a family of public servants. His mother, the late Betty Nixon, was a teacher and served as president of the local school board. His father, Jerry Nixon, was elected mayor of De Soto and was a judge for the community.

Growing up in a home with these strong examples, Nixon learned at a young age that faith and family come first – and giving back to the community comes next. It is a philosophy that has guided him throughout his career in public service.

After earning both his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Missouri-Columbia, Nixon returned to De Soto to practice as an attorney. In 1986, he was elected to his first term in the Missouri Senate, where he would represent the people of Jefferson County for six years. As a State Senator, Nixon reached across the aisle to pass several major pieces of legislation, including an expansion of pre-natal care for expectant mothers.

Governor Nixon and his wife, Georganne Wheeler Nixon, have two sons, Jeremiah and Willson. They belong to the First United Methodist Church in Jefferson City.

Qualifications

The chief executive officer of the state of Missouri must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for at least 15 years and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected governor.

The governor is elected to a four-year term during the same year as a presidential election and may seek re-election to a second four-year term. No person may hold the office for more than two terms.

Responsibilities

The governor appoints the members of all boards and commissions, all department heads in state government and fills all vacancies in public offices unless otherwise provided by law. The board members of Missouri's state universities and colleges are appointed by the governor. The governor also selects the members of the Supreme and Appellate Courts of Missouri from names submitted by the State Judicial Commission. The governor appoints members to the state's six urban election boards, two police boards and the Board of Probation and Parole. Most appointments require the advice and consent of the Senate.

The governor addresses the General Assembly on the state of government and recommends changes or other actions to be taken. A budget is submitted by the governor to the General Assembly within 30 days after the assembly convenes. The budget contains the governor's estimates of available state revenues and an itemized plan for proposed expenditures.

All bills passed by both houses of the legislature are submitted to the governor for consideration. The governor must return the legislation to the house of its inception within 15 days after receiving it. The governor may either approve a bill, making it law, or return it to the legislature with objections. When the legislature is adjourned, the governor has 45 days in which to consider a bill.

The governor may object to one or more items or portions of items of an appropriations bill while approving other items or portions of the appropriations bill. Upon signing the appropriations bill, appended to it is a statement of the items or portions of items to which there are objections and such items or portions will not take effect. The governor may control the rate of expenditure in other areas whenever the actual revenues are less than the revenue estimates upon which the appropriations were based.

Additional Duties and Powers

The governor performs many other duties assigned by constitution, statute or custom. For example, the governor issues writs of election to fill vacancies in either house of the General Assembly. The governor also has the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, but this does not include the power to parole.

In addition to other duties, the governor is a member of a number of boards and commissions, such as the Board of Public Buildings and the State Board of Fund Commissioners.

Moreover, the governor is the conservator of peace throughout Missouri and is commander-in-chief of the state's militia. The militia may be called out to execute laws, suppress threats of danger to the state, and prevent and repel invasion.

The governor has the authority to remit fines and forfeitures when it is believed that an injustice was done or great hardship was suffered by the defendant.

The executive department consists of all state elective and appointive employees, except those of the legislative and judicial departments.

Governor's Mansion

Missouri Governor's Mansion

The Missouri Governor's Mansion serves as the official residence of Governor Jay Nixon, First Lady Georganne Nixon, and their sons, Jeremiah and Willson. The first family extends an invitation to all Missourians to tour "the people's house," which each year hosts approximately 60,000 visitors.

First occupied by Governor G. Gratz Brown and his family in 1872, this stately three-story brick building is one of the oldest and most beautifully restored governors' homes in the United States. Built and finished in the Renaissance Revival style, the entry consists of an imposing portico with four dignified pink granite columns. A Victorian atmosphere greets visitors as they enter the great hall with its 17-foot ceilings, a rare free-flowing staircase of solid walnut, and one of the best collections of period furnishings in the country. Missouri First Ladies' portraits are featured throughout the Mansion, along with loaned works of art created by the world-famous Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham. Designed by George Ingham Barnett of St. Louis, the Mansion is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Since moving to the Mansion, the Nixons have added a vegetable and herb garden. Food from the garden is used in meals served at the Mansion, and Mrs. Nixon enjoys encouraging schoolchildren to start their own gardens. The Missouri Botanical Gardens and Powell Gardens provided assistance in planning the garden at the Mansion.

Missouri's First Lady

Like the governor, first lady Georganne Wheeler Nixon earned her undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Missouri–Columbia. Her support of Governor Nixon's call for strong public education in Missouri comes naturally: her father, the late Hubert Wheeler, served as Missouri's first commissioner of education, and Mrs. Nixon has taught in the public schools.

Mrs. Nixon is an avid supporter of women's causes, the arts and literature. She has been involved with the Women's Leadership Academy, the Zonta Club Yellow Rose Luncheon, Winning Women, and in proclaiming Women's History Month. Mrs. Nixon also serves as honorary chair for Missouri Citizens for the Arts and presents the Missouri Art Education Association awards to young artists whose artworks are selected to be on display at the Capitol and in the Missouri Governor's Mansion. She also is involved with the HALO (Helping Arts Liberate Orphans) Foundation and is a member of the Missouri River Regional Library board.

The first lady believes in standing up for all of Missouri's citizens. She has been involved with Youth Advocacy Day and with the Court Appointed Special Advocate Program (CASA), and has visited with employees of sheltered workshops and their families to show her support for them as valued, productive Missourians.

[1]At the time of the elections of McNair, Bates and Williams, and of the first election of Miller in 1825, there were no organized political parties in Missouri. Individual popularity prevailed. All called themselves Jeffersonian Republicans, or what now are called Democrats.

[2]Marmaduke was elected Lt. Governor in 1840. Upon the death of Governor Thomas Reynolds in February 1844, Marmaduke became Governor. He served the remainder of that year, because John Cummins Edwards was elected.

[3]Soon after Polk was inaugurated the Legislature convened and elected him by 101 votes to be a U.S. Senator. He resigned to take that office in February 1857. His occupancy of the Governor's office was shorter than any other Governor of Missouri.

[4]Jackson was Lt. Governor under Polk and became acting governor after Polk resigned in February 1857. He served until October of that year when Robert Stewart took office. Stewart was elected at a special election in August 1857.

[5]Gamble was elected provisional governor by the Missouri State Convention on July 31, 1861. The office had been declared vacated after Governor Claiborne Fox Jackson joined the Confederacy.

Missouri's State Capitol

State government in Missouri is centered in the state's beautiful, domed Capitol, dominating the bluffs of the Missouri River in Jefferson City.

The dome, rising 238 feet above ground level and topped by a bronze statue of Ceres, goddess of agriculture, is the first view of Jefferson City for travelers arriving from the north. The structure is Jefferson City's leading tourist attraction and is a mecca for school groups who arrive by busloads, particularly during General Assembly sessions when they fill the galleries to watch the Senate and House of Representatives in action.

In addition to housing the two legislative bodies, the Capitol provides office space for the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, state auditor and some administrative agencies. The structure is also notable for its architectural features, including its eight 48-foot columns on the south portico and six 48-foot columns on the north side; its 30-foot-wide grand stairway and its bronze front doors, each 13 by 18 feet, among the largest cast since the Roman era.

The Capitol's first floor features the State Mu-seum. Outstanding paintings, pediments and friezes decorate the Capitol interior. Of historical significance is a series of Thomas Hart Benton murals in the House Lounge.

Statuary is a prominent feature of the Capitol grounds. Heroic bronze figures depicting Missouri's two great rivers, the Mississippi and Missouri, and a 13-foot statue of Thomas Jefferson dominate the south entrance. A bronze relief depicting the signing of the Louisiana Purchase by Livingston, Monroe and Marbois and the Fountain of the Centaurs are the most outstanding features on the north grounds.

The present Capitol, completed in 1917, and dedicated in 1924, is the fourth Capitol in Jefferson City. Before the seat of government was moved to Jefferson City, the functions of Missouri territorial government were based in the Mansion House, a hotel in St. Louis, and later at the Missouri Hotel, also in St. Louis. The upper story of a mercantile store in St. Charles was designated as temporary capital of the state in 1821 and remained the seat of government until 1826 when Jefferson City became the permanent capital city. The first Capitol in Jefferson City was located on land now occupied by the Governor's Mansion. It burned in 1837, apparently after some hot coals fell out of one of its fireplaces. A second structure completed in 1840 and expanded in 1887-88 burned when the dome was struck by lightning on February 5, 1911. A temporary Capitol made of lathe and stucco was erected in an area to the east of the present building and was used from 1912 to 1917.

The present Capitol was constructed for $4,215,000, including site and furnishings. It is five stories high, 437 feet long, 300 feet wide in the center and 200 feet wide in the wings. The dome is 238 feet high and the height of the wings is 88 feet. It includes over 650,000 square feet of floor space.

Robin Carnahan

Secretary of State

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2013

ROBIN CARNAHAN (Democrat) was sworn in as Missouri's 38th Secretary of State in January 2005. Since taking office, Secretary Carnahan has focused on providing excellent customer service, protecting investors, cutting red tape and costs for Missouri businesses and ensuring the integrity and fairness of our elections.

Carnahan was quickly recognized as one of the most effective public servants in Missouri and our nation. In 2005, the non-partisan think tank The Aspen Institute identified Carnahan as a "rising star" in American politics for her ability to work across party lines and deliver results.

As Secretary of State, Carnahan works tirelessly to crackdown on financial scams and protect Missourians from fraud. In 2009, she championed the bipartisan Senior Investor Protection Act, which is recognized as one of the toughest investor protection laws in the nation and improves opportunities for seniors to recover lost savings. Carnahan also launched the Missouri Investor Protection Center and expanded educational efforts to help Missourians learn how to protect themselves from financial fraud. And her efforts have paid off. Since taking office, Secretary Carnahan has helped tens of thousands of investors recover over $10 billion, earning her recognition as a national leader in securities law enforcement.

Through expanded use of technology, Secretary Carnahan has dramatically increased efficiency and cut red tape and costs for Missouri's small businesses. Since taking office, these innovations have saved Missouri businesses more than $10 million and countless tax dollars. Carnahan's Red Tape Reduction Act, which passed with bipartisan support in 2009, cuts government paperwork in half and reduces costs for thousands of Missouri businesses. And Carnahan led the effort to develop the Missouri Business Portal, which provides an online one-stop-shop for those looking to do business in Missouri.

Secretary Carnahan believes good customer service means making information more accessible to Missourians. As the guardian of Missouri's State Archives, she has not only ensured the preservation of historical documents and treasures, but also expanded access to those records by making tens of thousands of records available on-line for the first time. These pioneering efforts have earned praise from historians and genealogists worldwide.

In 2008, Carnahan unveiled the Missouri Digital Heritage website, which digitally links historical information and resources from the Missouri State Archives, the State Library, and local organizations together for the first time. Since its launch, Missouri Digital Heritage has been named one of the 101 best websites for genealogy by Family Tree Magazine and has been visited over 70 million times.

As the state's chief elections official, Secretary Carnahan is dedicated to ensuring integrity and fairness in Missouri elections. Since taking office, she has partnered with local election officials to clean up Missouri's voter rolls by establishing the state's first statewide voter registration list and improved election day operations by recruiting and training additional poll workers.

Since 2007, Missourians who need protection from domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking have had access to the Safe at Home address confidentiality program designed by Secretary Carnahan to help prevent future attacks. To date, Safe at Home has helped protect more than 500 men, women and children in the state of Missouri.

Secretary Carnahan grew up in Rolla, Missouri, and is a member of the Baptist Church. After graduating from Rolla High School, she continued her studies at William Jewell College and at the University of Southampton and earned a bachelor's degree in economics, graduating magna cum laude. Carnahan went on to earn her law degree from the University of Virginia and then returned to Missouri to practice business law with the St. Louis law firm of Thompson & Mitchell. In 1990, Carnahan went to work with the National Democratic Institute in Central and Eastern Europe, where she worked to promote democracy and fair elections. Carnahan also served at the Export-Import Bank of the United States, where she explored innovative ways to help American companies increase their sales of goods and services abroad.

Today, in addition to carrying out her duties as Secretary of State, Carnahan continues to manage her family's 900 acre Angus cattle farm near Rolla. Her husband, Juan Carlos Antolinez, develops and maintains business computer systems.

Carnahan's family has a proud history of devotion to public service. Her father, Mel Carnahan, served as Missouri's Governor, and her mother, Jean Carnahan, was the first woman to serve Missouri in the U.S. Senate.

The Secretary of State's office serves Missourians in a number of diverse and important ways. The major divisions within the Secretary of State's office are: Business Services, Elections, Securities, State Library, Records Services, and Administrative Rules.

At Secretary Robin Carnahan's direction, the office has focused on providing outstanding service to its broad scope of customers and making information more accessible to all Missourians. In business services, Carnahan has cut red tape for small businesses and streamlined operations with her office. Through the securities division, she has protected consumers by cracking down on firms that defraud investors and educating Missourians about responsible investing. As Missouri's chief elections official, Carnahan has worked to ensure fair, accessible and transparent elections for Missouri voters.

In addition, the office is responsible for compiling, storing and publishing a variety of documents. As the keeper of the Great Seal of the State of Missouri, the Secretary of State is also responsible for authenticating official acts of the Governor. The office also includes the following divisions: Information Technology, Communications and Publications, Fiscal and Facilities, and Human Resources.

Business Services Division

www.sos.mo.gov/business/

The Business Services Division has three sections: Commissions, Corporations and Uniform Commercial Code. The division oversees regional offices for business filings in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield and the Safe at Home address confidentiality program. The Business Services Division is committed to providing excellent customer service to all its customers.

Commissions

The Commissions Section commissions notaries public; maintains the official bonds of over 75,000 Missouri notaries; and is responsible for certifying notaries for foreign documents, elected officials, and the State Registrar of Vital Statistics.

The Commissions Section authenticates official acts of the Governor. The Great Seal of the State of Missouri is affixed to more than 35,000 documents annually, including all commissions of state and county elected officials; appointments made by the governor; and proclamations, executive orders, extraditions, commutations of sentence, and restoration of citizenship issued by the Governor. The Commissions Section maintains bonds and oaths of office for state officials as required by law and is responsible for the official signature, facsimile signature filings, resident agent filings, and trademark and service mark filings.

Corporations

The secretary of state is responsible for the registration of all Missouri and out-of-state businesses doing business in Missouri. These businesses may be for-profit and nonprofit corporations, as well as other business classifications such as: professional corporations, close corporations, agricultural cooperatives, mutual associations, limited liability companies, limited partnerships, limited liability partnerships, limited liability limited partnerships, and other business entities. Corporations file various documents required by law: creation documents, annual reports, amendments, mergers, consolidations, dissolutions, terminations and withdrawals.

There are approximately 178,000 active corporations doing business in Missouri and 515,000 inactive corporations on file. Each corporation must annually register with the Corporations Section the names of its officers and directors. The section processes more than 150,000 annual reports each year; approximately 80 percent are filed online for a reduced fee by using the Secretary of State's website, saving businesses millions of dollars each year.

Limited liability company (LLC) filings are increasing, with more than 32,000 new LLCs being filed each year. Most businesses are required to file a fictitious name registration with the Secretary of State's office. More than 27,500 new fictitious name registrations are processed annually; the majority of these filings are completed online.

Additional online services include: organizing a limited liability company, obtaining and verifying a certificate of good standing, printing copies of filed documents, obtaining forms for filing a new business entity, and accessing the business entity database to search for a business or corporation. The Small Business Advocacy Center (www.sos.mo.gov/business/sbac/), and the Missouri Business Portal (www.business.mo.gov) continue to help Missouri businesses navigate state government and help their businesses grow.

Uniform Commercial Code

The Secretary of State's office is the centralized office for perfecting personal property liens and other creditor interests under the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). These liens are "perfected" by filing a financing statement in the accepted national format indicating the debtor name and address and the secured party name and address along with a description of the collateral. Once a lien or other interest is filed and perfected, the public is considered "on notice" regarding those liens. These financing statements are effective for five years; they may be continued for an additional five-year term by filing a continuation statement within six months prior to expiration. Eighty five percent of the UCC filings with the Secretary of State are now completed online. UCC forms and the fee schedule for filing are available online.

Safe at Home Address Confidentiality Program

The Safe at Home address confidentiality program was created in 2007 to help protect survivors of domestic violence, rape, sexual assault, or stalking through the use of a designated address. Through the Safe at Home program, survivors and their minor children may use a substitute mailing address through the Secretary of State's office for all their first class, legal, and certified mail. The program allows survivors to use a substitute address on their government records and public filings to keep their address confidential and out of the hands of potential abusers.

For more than 80 years, the Secretary of State has been responsible for ensuring compliance with state securities laws through activities of the Securities Division. This responsibility includes enforcement of the law when violations occur, and the registration of securities, broker-dealers, agents, investment advisers and investment adviser representatives. State securities laws are intended to protect investors from unsuitable investment recommendations, dishonest or unethical practices, and fraudulent investment schemes. The Secretary of State appoints the securities commissioner, who administers these laws and oversees the Securities Division.

The enforcement section of the Securities Division receives and investigates complaints from Missouri investors. A toll-free Investor Protection Hotline (800-721-7996) is maintained so investors can report complaints or make inquiries about firms or professionals in the securities business. Each year the office fields hundreds of investor complaints which result in the initiation of hundreds of investigations, many of which result in cease and desist orders, licensing revocations, civil penalties, criminal prosecutions, or investor restitution. The attorneys and investigators in the enforcement section typically collect millions of dollars in penalties, payments, and restitution each year, and are leaders in national enforcement actions and task forces.

The registration section regulates the registration of individuals, firms and securities. The audit unit of the registration section performs routine and for-cause inspections of the offices of broker-dealers and investment advisers to ensure compliance with the Missouri securities laws.

As of Summer 2009, there were 113,340 agents, 1,771 broker-dealers, 6,623 investment adviser representatives and 1,258 investment advisers registered in Missouri. Prior to granting each registration, an application review process is conducted to determine if applicants are sufficiently qualified to participate in the securities business. The registration section also reviews proposed securities offerings to ensure that Missouri approved offerings are "fair, just and equitable." The staff receives filings of federal covered securities and reviews requests for exemption from the registration provisions, provides interpretative opinions of the securities laws and assists Missouri issuers seeking to raise funds with securities law compliance. In the 2009 fiscal year, the registration section staff received filings or exemption notices for over 2,000 securities offerings and collected over $10 million in revenues for the state of Missouri.

The Securities Division also oversees the Missouri Investor Protection Center, which creates and promotes investor education initiatives designed to educate and assist both current and future investors. The center also includes a website and a Senior Investor Protection Unit to help educate and protect Missouri's older investors.

The Office of Secretary of State oversees all statewide elections for both candidates and issues. Candidates for the six constitutional state offices, U.S. Congress, the General Assembly, and various circuit judges file for election with the Secretary of State's Office. Statewide ballots for primary, general, and certain special elections are also prepared by the Secretary of State, and certified copies of those ballots are sent to local election officials. It is the responsibility of the office to canvass, certify, and publish election results.

Missouri has nearly 4 million registered voters. In the 2008 November general election, 2.9 million voters went to the polls.

WAYLENE HILES
Deputy Secretary of State for Elections

KAY DINOLFO
Director of Elections

In Missouri, elections are run at the local level by local election authorities (county clerks or election boards). In addition to assisting Missouri's 116 local election authorities with their duties in administering elections, the Secretary of State promulgates rules governing elections and electronic voting systems. The Secretary of State is required to publish the Missouri Election Laws for use by county clerks and election boards. Additionally, the office produces various election materials, including instructions for poll workers, calendars of annual election deadlines, a website, training videos, and a manual for election authorities. The elections division cooperates with other officials, schools, and civic organizations to provide materials to support voter registration, responsibility, and education, and oversees the "Democracy is on the line. Be a Poll Worker" statewide poll worker recruitment initiative. In the fall of 2008, the Secretary of State unveiled the Missouri Voting Rights Center and launched the www.GoVoteMissouri.com website which provides important information to voters registered in Missouri. In April 2009, the office released Voters First 2008: An Examination of Missouri's 2008 State and Federal Elections, which identified issues and proposed improvements in Missouri's election administration.

The Secretary of State also certifies statewide ballot measures that are proposed by the General Assembly or through the initiative and referendum petition process, including the oversight of signature verification. Before an initiative petition can be circulated, the petition and a summary statement must be approved by the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, and the State Auditor adds a fiscal impact statement. For an initiative changing state law to be placed on the ballot, signatures must be obtained from registered voters equal to five (5) percent of the total votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of Missouri's nine congressional districts. For an initiative changing the state constitution to be placed on the ballot, signatures are needed from registered voters equal to eight (8) percent of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of the state's nine congressional districts. The full texts of ballot issues are published in newspapers around the state and printed for display at polling places. The elections division also oversees the signature verification process for the formation of new political parties and the nomination of independent candidates for offices that file with the Secretary of State. In 2008, 25 initiative petitions were approved for circulation. Five were returned with signatures for approval and were ultimately certified for the November 2008 ballot.

The Secretary of State is responsible for coordinating Missouri's compliance with federal election law, including the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA), which requires increased training for election officials, poll workers, and voters; at least one voting system per polling place that is accessible for voters with disabilities; and a statewide voter registration list. The creation of an interactive statewide voter registration list database has improved the ability of local election officials to manage their voter registration records and keep Missouri's voter list up to date and accurate.

Missouri citizens. Through research, publications and personal contacts, consultants provide assistance on general library issues and needs, promote the organization and development of library services, manage statewide projects and maintain statistics on public library services in the state.

The State Library administers several programs to provide funds and services for libraries. State-funded programs include state aid for public libraries, both per capita funds and equalization payments to libraries. Public library costs for materials are supported through funds appropriated from the income tax on earnings of out-of-state athletes and entertainers. State funds also support summer reading programs in public libraries. The State Library coordinates the funding for the REAL (Remote Electronic Access to Libraries) Program which provides Internet access for public libraries through MOREnet and database content for public, K-12, and academic libraries. The federal Library Services and Technology Act provides funding for grants to libraries and statewide projects, including continuing education and training, technology infrastructure, and development of library service for underserved populations, such as seniors and persons with disabilities. The State Library also partners with several private sponsors to administer projects and grants to support library services.

Ongoing projects include digitization of primary resource material for the Missouri Digital Heritage Initiative, development of literacy programs in libraries and coordination of literacy efforts with other state agencies and the statewide literacy center, and a statewide calendar for library-related continuing education events.

As one of 50 state affiliates with the National Center for the Book in the Library of Congress, the Missouri Center for the Book promotes the state's book culture and library heritage.

The State Library also serves as the lead agency for the State Census Data Center program, a cooperative venture with the U.S. Census Bureau.

Secretary's Council on Library Development

The Secretary's Council on Library Development advises the Secretary of State and the State Librarian on matters that relate to the state's libraries and library service to Missouri citizens. Current Council members are listed at www.sos.mo.gov/library/council/sosc.asp.

Reference Services

Telephone: (573) 751-3615 / FAX: (573) 526-1142

The Reference Services section delivers library services to meet the informational and research needs of state government. This objective is achieved through current awareness services, library materials collections in multiple formats, electronic publications and online databases provided to the state employees. Reference Services offers training sessions to state employees on online databases.

Keeping Up, a daily newspaper clipping summary of news about the activities and operation of state government, is distributed electronically to the legislature and state agencies. An online version is available to the public. Table of contents service allows state employees to receive full text articles from current periodicals that assist in the performance of their duties.

To support the research work done for state government, the State Library maintains a materials collection of books, magazine and newspaper subscriptions, and microform holdings of government documents, journals and newspapers. Through the State Library's membership, state employees have access to MOBIUS, the statewide union catalog of academic libraries. In addition, Reference Services subscribes to numerous online databases geared to the needs of state government. Most of these databases are provided to state employees at their desktop.

The State Library is a congressionally designated selective depository for U.S. government publications. The library is statutorily responsible for collecting state government publications and providing access to them for the citizens of Missouri. This is now done through a trusted, electronic repository making the full text of the publications available via the Internet.

While the State Library's research services and other service initiatives are directed to the legislature and employees of state government agencies, the materials collection is open for use by the general public.

Wolfner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped serves as the public library for Missourians unable to use standard print because of a visual or physical disability. The library loans a half million books and magazines in Braille, recorded audio, and large print from its collection of more than 300,000 volumes. Audio players are also loaned to users of the recorded materials. More than 8,500 individuals and 1,700 institutions, including nursing homes, schools, hospitals and hospices use the library. Wolfner also provides reference and information services, children's programming, interlibrary loan, a newsletter, catalogs and bibliographies and descriptive DVDs and videos. Access to the collection is available online.

Wolfner services are available to qualified Missourians at no charge. Applications for service are available directly from Wolfner, local Missouri public libraries, or on the Secretary of State's website. Wolfner is Missouri's regional library in the national network of libraries serving individuals who are blind and disabled, in cooperation with the National Library Service of the Library of Congress.

The Wolfner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped has a rich history of library service, predating the Missouri State Library and the Library of Congress network. Loaning Braille books to a multi-state region in 1924, Wolfner became one of the first 18 regional libraries for the blind designated by the Library of Congress. Named in memory of noted ophthalmologist Henry L. Wolfner and originally administered by the St. Louis Public Library, Wolfner became part of the Missouri State Library in 1977, and physically moved to Jefferson City in 1985.

It is also responsible for assisting local governments in records preservation and management.

Missouri State Archives

Telephone: (573) 751-3280 / FAX: (573) 526-7333

The Missouri State Archives is the official repository for government records of permanent value. Its mission is to foster an appreciation of Missouri history and illuminate contemporary public issues by preserving and making available the state's permanent records to its citizens and their government.

Records in the Archives holdings date from 1770 to the present. They include executive, legislative and judicial records; records of state departments and agencies; Missouri's history under French and Spanish colonial and U.S. territorial rule; military records from the War of 1812 through World War I; the region's role in the nineteenth century fur trade and America's westward expansion; trademarks and business records; and womens and African-American history.

Holdings currently total more than 338 million pages of paper, 500,000 photographs, 199,000 reels of microfilm, and 270,000 microfiche. The Missouri State Archives is one of the most utilized state repositories in the nation and has been formally acknowledged by historical and genealogical organizations for its service to its patrons. While thousands of researchers visit or write to the Archives each year, the majority of researchers have turned to the Internet as their preferred research medium. In FY08, the Archives received more than 9,439,684 multiple page searches of its web site, an increase from previous years. Over the last few years the Missouri State Archives has become involved in a number of important initiatives: The African-American History Initiative is designed to stimulate interest in African-American History through educational projects and the promotion of a broad awareness of the holdings of the Missouri State Archives. The Missouri State Archives has also played a leading role in the bicentennial commemoration of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. The nationally recognized St. Louis Circuit Court Records Project, begun as a traditional archival project, is now part of a complex consortium. At the instigation of the Missouri State Archives, an academic advisory board composed of scholars representing nine institutions helps guide its work.

While the St. Louis Circuit Court records project is large, it is just one of many court projects currently being conducted across Missouri. The Archives preserves on microfilm the probate and circuit court records of Missouri's county courts. To date, the Archives has been involved in 581 preservation projects in every county in the state. There are currently 40 such projects. The Missouri State Archives also partners with the Supreme Court of Missouri Historical Society, which funds two legal internships and a legal fellowship for the Archives.

The Archives is devoted to educating the public about materials in the Archives' holdings. It accordingly provides programs for schools and civic groups, sponsors traveling exhibits, offers tours, and supports and maintains a regular calendar of monthly educational programs and historical entertainments. "Archives Alive," brings history to life for thousands of Missouri fourth and fifth grade students each spring through live musical performances. The "Friends of the Missouri State Archives," formed in 1989, which promotes and supports the Archives, has underwritten many of the costs associated with these outreach activities. The State Archives also hosts student interns and practicum students from Missouri colleges and universities; creates historical exhibits, offers a public speakers series, sponsors regional National History Day activities; and provides tours and talks for school and civic organizations.

Volunteers are an important resource of the Missouri State Archives. In Jefferson City they provide invaluable assistance to the staff, helping with reference services and acting as guides. Across Missouri, volunteers help process county and court records and special collections. More novel is the Archives innovative, "e-volunteer" program in which volunteers can provide indexing and transcription services for the Archives from their home computers. Completed transcriptions are posted online providing greater access to the collection. Access to the Archives is provided through the research room. The reference staff answers written requests. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Saturday hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board

The Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board was created by statute in 1989 and assigned to the office of the Secretary of State. The board is the central advisory body for historical records planning within the state. In addition, the board serves as the state affiliate of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, the grant-awarding arm of the National Archives and Records Administration, and is responsible for reviewing grant proposals to that program from Missouri applicants, as well as applications to the Local Records Preservation Grant Program.

Local Records Preservation Program

Telephone: (573) 751-9047 / FAX: (573) 526-3867

The Missouri State Archives Local Records Preservation program is an effort to improve long-term local public record management by advising, educating and encouraging the custodians of those records in the use of sound records management and archival practices. Archivists provide their expertise to local government officials on the retention of records. A part-time local records and analyst program began in 1986. In 1989, legislation converted this to a full-time program. Through the local records program, documents of great historical value have been identified and preserved and the State Archives reference collections have been dramatically enhanced. Because of this program, all records are more accessible to the public. They are properly organized, and in many instances, space in public buildings is freed up for purposes other than storage.

Records Management Division

Telephone: (573) 751-3319 / FAX: (573) 526-5327

The mission of the Records Management Division is to provide state agencies with the necessary instruments to effectively and efficiently manage information and records, in order to promote the efficiency and continuity of government, document the rights of Missouri citizens, hold state officials accountable for their activities, and preserve Missouri's heritage. To achieve this mission, the division is divided into three sections: Records Management Services, the State Records Center, and Imaging Services.

Sound records management programs consist of a planned and coordinated set of policies, procedures and activities to manage recorded information in all media. Records Management Services assists state government agencies in identifying and effectively managing their official records. Records analysts are assigned to specified agencies. They consult with agency officials to develop retention schedules that list the agency's records and specify the retention period and the ultimate disposition of inactive records. Analysts advise agencies on cost and technical matters related to microfilm digital imaging, and low-cost storage of inactive and semi-active records.

The State Records Center provides state agencies with a storage solution for inactive records. Inactive records are those with a reference rate that does not warrant retention in expensive agency office or storage space. Records Center services include pick-up, delivery, reference pulls and re-filing, and destruction of agency records. All records remain in the legal custody of the transferring agency and access to stored documents is restricted to the agency's authorized personnel. The transferring of inactive files to the Records Center allows agencies to free up office space and equipment, saving Missouri taxpayers millions of dollars of costs over the life of the records. State agencies are not charged for these services. As of June 2009, 295,600 cubic feet of records were stored in the State Records Center's three facilities.

Imaging Services provides micrographics and digital imaging services to state agencies and local governments. Agencies can reduce the volume of, improve access to, and ensure archival preservation for their long-term and significant records by utilizing these services. Micrographics services include microfilming, processing, quality control, and silver and diazo microfilm duplication. Digital imaging services include image production from microfilm or original documents. The unit provides secure protection for silver original microfilm within a climate-controlled vault.

State Records Commission

Chapter 109.250, RSMo established the State Records Commission. The Commission's task is to guide the records management program in the determination of retention periods for all records in the executive branch of state government. Currently, more than 900 state agencies, commissions, bureaus and boards operate under approved record retention schedules. Additionally, the commission reviews, approves and recommends guidelines for the management of electronic records generated by the state of Missouri.

Carnahan, Robin, chair, Secretary of State;
Koster, Chris, Attorney General;
Montee, Susan, State Auditor;

Administrative Rules Division

Telephone: (573) 751-4015 / FAX: (573) 751-3032

Since 1976, the Administrative Rules Division has been charged by the Revised Statutes of Missouri with setting uniform standards, procedures and guidelines for the preparation and publishing of rules in the Missouri Register and the Missouri Code of State Regulations. The Administrative Rules Division initially publishes rulemakings proposed by state agencies in the Missouri Register. The rulemakings are published in the Missouri Register to provide public notice, and to allow agencies to receive comments and to revise the proposed rulemakings based on the comments. Agencies then file the final version of the rulemakings, the orders of rulemaking, with the division for final publication in the Missouri Register and subsequently in the Missouri Code of State Regulations. The division provides a user's guide for the proper preparation and filing of agency rules entitled Rulemaking 1-2-3, Drafting and Style Manual, that is available on line on the Secretary of State's website at www.sos.mo.gov/adrules or in hard copy.

The Administrative Rules Division also publishes emergency rules in the Missouri Register. An agency may file an emergency rule if the agency finds an immediate danger to the public health, safety or welfare or if the emergency rule is necessary to preserve a compelling governmental interest that requires an early effective date, prior to that allowed by the traditional rulemaking process. An emergency rule is only in effect for a limited period of time and normally has a corresponding proposed rulemaking that allows for public notice and comment. Once an emergency rule is approved and processed, it may be viewed on the Secretary of State's website at www.sos.mo.gov/adrules under the Emergency Rules section until it is published in the Missouri Register.

The Missouri Register is published twice a month and updates to the 15-volume Missouri Code of State Regulations are published once a month. Both the Missouri Register and Missouri Code of State Regulations are available on the Secretary of State's website. Additionally, Missourians who are interested in particular rules may sign up on the Secretary of State's website for email notification of rule filings by rule number or subject matter.

Susan Montee

State Auditor

Elected November 7, 2006
Term expires January 2011

SUSAN MONTEE (Democrat) was sworn in as Missouri's 35th state auditor in January 2007. She won her election with more votes and by a wider margin than any previous state auditor. Susan emphasized her experience as a certified public accountant and county auditor and subsequently became the first state auditor in Missouri history who is both a CPA and attorney. Susan was the first statewide official elected from Buchanan County, in Northwest Missouri, in over 125 years.

Susan used her background as a small business owner to identify overlap in the state auditor's office and make significant organizational changes. She streamlined procedures and standardized reporting. The increase of shared staff and resources allows the office to run more efficiently. Susan also merged divisions of the state auditor's office, reducing the number of divisions from four to three. She implemented an instantaneous electronic alert system where Missouri citizens can be notified when new audit reports are issued.

She has conducted several audits that have yielded a positive impact for Missouri taxpayers and citizens. The audit of the Missouri Higher Education Loan Authority (MOHELA) uncovered blatant waste and abuse, including severance packages to former executives that total almost $2.3 million. Susan's audit of the Riverview Gardens School District identified fraud on the part of the superintendent, who was subsequently convicted of his crimes. A citizens' petition prompted an audit of the City of Springfield and City Utilities of Springfield. By the end of the following year, a majority of the audit recommendations had been implemented. Susan alerted the public, general assembly and executive branch of the pending insolvency of the Second Injury Fund. She has urged legislators to make the Second Injury Fund a top priority because of the benefits it conveys to injured workers and veterans. She was petitioned by citizens to audit the City of St. Louis, a process that took over two years and resulted in 23 separate audit reports.

Susan has tackled issues relating to public education, child safety and protection of our most vulnerable citizens. Her audits of student immunization compliance, day care and senior center licensing, and the Safe Schools Initiative have resulted in legislative proposals to solve the inadequacies she uncovered. Susan brought national attention to Missouri when she released her audit that unveiled insufficient school bus driver compliance and background checks.

Born and raised in St. Joseph, the daughter of Arlene Humphrey of St. Joseph and U.S. Marine Galen Humphrey, Missing-in-Action in Vietnam since 1966. Susan graduated from Bishop LeBlond High School in St. Joseph and received an undergraduate degree in accounting from Drury College in Springfield, with minors in economics and business administration.

After receiving her accounting degree, Susan worked as a CPA in both private practice and in one of the nation's largest accounting firms. Susan then obtained her law degree from the University of Missouri-Kansas City. During her tenure there, she served as business editor for the Law Review. Susan graduated With Distinction in 2000.

Susan's first elective post was to an at-large, four-year term on the St. Joseph City Council in 1998. In 2000, Susan was elected Buchanan County Auditor. She served the county for two years concurrently with her service on the City Council. In 2002, she was re-elected to a four-year term as County Auditor. During her six years as Buchanan County Auditor, Susan transformed the office, taking it from handwritten ledgers to computers and modern accounting practices.

She is a member of the Missouri Society of CPAs and the Missouri Association of Trial Attorneys. She also serves on the advisory committee for the Sue Shear Institute for Women in Public Life, the executive committee of the Mid-America Intergovernmental Audit Forum and the membership development committee for the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers. Susan is a member of the Kansas City Association of Women Lawyers, and the American Association of Justice.

Susan was the 2008 "Woman of the Year" award recipient from the Association for Women Lawyers of Greater Kansas City.

She is the mother of three children, Amanda, Andy and Austin. The family are members of the Christ Episcopal Church.

The state auditor's office is Missouri's independent watchdog agency, charged with auditing all state agencies, boards and commissions, the state court system, and the 89 counties in Missouri that do not have a county auditor. The state auditor may also be called on to audit local units of government by citizen petition.

Audits are performed to determine if tax dollars are being spent efficiently, economically and legally, and to determine how well governmental units and agencies protect against fraud and abuse of the public funds under their control. Approximately 200 state agencies and programs, the state's 45 judicial circuits (including approximately 400 municipal divisions) and 89 counties must be regularly audited by the state auditor. Approximately 20 audits of local government entities, petitioned by local voters, are performed each year.

In addition to fulfilling the primary auditing duties of the office, the state auditor assists local governments in development of proper accounting procedures, approves depositaries selected by the state treasurer and serves as a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners and the State Records Commission, and as an ex officio member of the Joint Committee on Transportation Oversight. The state auditor also examines and registers general obligation bonds issued by political subdivisions of the state to ensure that each one complies with state law and reviews all property tax rates set by local political subdivisions.

The powers of the state auditor are constitutional, derived from Article IV, Section 13 of the Missouri Constitution. Most legal duties are detailed in Chapter 29 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri.

Organization

The chief of staff works with the state auditor in developing office policies, supervising staff and special projects, and consulting with directors concerning the day-to-day operations of the office. The chief of staff works with areas such as human resources, budget and finance, information technology, and public affairs. Audit directors aid the state auditor and supervise the work of audit managers in charge of auditing various aspects of government operations or government agencies and units. Audit directors, the director of quality control and planning, and audit managers review audit reports before the audits are delivered to the state auditor for final review and approval.

JOE MARTIN, JD
Chief of Staff

KEN JACOB, JD
General Counsel

In addition to coordinating audits, audit directors and managers also track changes in policies and laws affecting the agencies or areas of government for which they are responsible for possible revision of audit plans or priorities as needed to review compliance.

Individual audits are supervised by an auditor-in-charge, who usually is a senior auditor. Audit fieldwork is performed by senior and staff auditors.

The state auditor's office has approximately 130 employees. One hundred percent of current audit management staff, including the state auditor, are CPAs, and over 57 percent of all audit staff have at least one professional license, certification, or advanced degree. The office hires professional audit staff with undergraduate and graduate degrees, and actively recruits candidates on campuses of many Missouri universities. Audit staff are hired on the basis of professional and academic qualifications.

Employment as an auditor with the state auditor's office qualifies as mandatory experience required for licensure by the Missouri State Board of Accountancy as a certified public accountant.

Audits

The state auditor's office performs financial and performance audits, which also include review of management practices. Financial records of auditees are examined to determine how the funds under the auditee's control were actually recorded and spent. The systems and controls the auditee uses to protect funds and property against fraud, waste and abuse are checked. The auditee's compliance with constitutional provisions, laws, legislative appropriation levels and administrative rules is also reviewed. Management practices are reviewed for efficiency and accountability.

Audits are conducted in accordance with government auditing standards established by the Comptroller General of the United States. Completed financial audits contain a formal opinion from the state auditor regarding the fair presentation of financial statements. A management advisory report listing any management weaknesses disclosed during the audit is also included. Findings and recommendations in the management advisory report are reviewed with the auditee at an exit conference prior to the release of the audit so the responses from the auditee to the recommendations may be printed in the final report.

The state auditor performs special reviews and audits of selected programs or agencies when needed.

The state auditor works closely with other audit agencies and offices at the local, state and national level. This is done to avoid duplication of effort in the audits of programs that may receive funding from several sources.

Citizen Awareness

Information from citizens, legislators and government employees aid the state auditor when performing special reviews and audits.

Citizens are urged to contact the state auditor if they have information they feel would be useful to auditors performing the audits. All sources of information are kept confidential. Citizens can contact the state auditor's office by calling our toll-free Hotline at (800) 347-8597, or through our website at www.auditor.mo.gov.

Public Information

All audit reports produced by the state auditor's office are public documents issued by the state auditor. Reports dealing with state agencies are provided to the press corps covering the State Capitol and to any regional or local newspaper, radio or television station requesting a copy. Audits dealing with county or local government are delivered to the media in that area. Reports are also delivered to the Missouri State Library and are available through the state's library system. Citizens may request copies of any audit report by writing to PO Box 869, Jefferson City, MO 65102, calling (573) 751-4213 or 800-347-8597, or by visiting our website at www.auditor.mo.gov.

Clint Zweifel

State Treasurer

Elected November 4, 2008
Term expires January 2013

CLINT ZWEIFEL (Democrat) was sworn in as Missouri's 45th State Treasurer on Jan. 12, 2009. At 35, Treasurer Zweifel is Missouri's youngest State Treasurer in more than a century. He was elected Nov. 4, 2008, winning by more than 92,000 votes.

Zweifel's strategic priorities for his office include rebuilding the economy and putting Missourians back to work, increasing college affordability, furthering open government and renewing the promise of affordable and responsible homeownership.

Upon taking office, Zweifel focused on creating and retaining Missouri jobs and reinvesting in communities by championing Invest in Missouri. The legislation targets economic development by reinvesting more than $1 billion in Missouri communities. The legislative package expands the Missouri Linked Deposit Program, which provides low-interest loans to small businesses and farms. Invest in Missouri also provides taxpayers a fair return on state investments for the first time in more than half a century. The legislation passed the legislature without receiving one "no" vote, and was signed into law.

Zweifel pushed for college affordability through use of the MOST 529 College Savings Program, which his office administers. He led efforts to provide incentives to encourage more Missourians to use the program to save for college education. Additionally, he worked to expand awareness of the plan and its benefits, including tax deductions and tax-free capital gains. MOST 529 has more than $1 billion in assets, with more than 117,000 account owners.

As State Treasurer, Zweifel oversees the management of the state's investments. His office manages $20 billion in annual state revenues, directs the state's banking services and oversees Missouri's $3.5 billion investment portfolio. Treasurer Zweifel's office is also responsible for safeguarding $550 million in unclaimed assets turned over to the state by banks, businesses, insurance companies and government agencies, and aggressively tries to locate owners.

Zweifel serves as chair of the Missouri Higher Education Savings Program Board, which oversees MOST 529: Missouri's College Savings Plan, and the Missouri Investment Trust. In addition, he sits on the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System and the Missouri Cultural Trust Board.

Prior to serving as State Treasurer, Zweifel represented the 78th District in the Missouri House of Representatives for six years. His district covered parts of northwest St. Louis County, including parts of Bridgeton, Hazelwood and Florissant.

Zweifel won election to the House in 2002 by a 67-vote margin among more than 13,000 votes cast. He won again in 2004 with 70 percent of the vote, and was uncontested in 2006. While in the House, Zweifel led policy strategy and developed real solutions to help Missouri families. He created proposals on early-childhood education, higher education, helping seniors cope with property taxes and guarding citizen privacy.

Focusing on college affordability, Zweifel developed and sponsored Missouri Promise. The legislation guaranteed any child in Missouri a four-year college degree by expanding the A+ Program. Missouri Promise allowed any student who graduated from an accredited A+ high school to then go to a two-year community college free of charge. If the student maintained the required grades and completed community service while at the community college, he or she would be eligible to complete a four-year degree at any Missouri public university or college at no cost.

In the House, Zweifel was the ranking member on the Ways and Means Committee and the Special Committee on Tax Reform.

Treasurer Zweifel was born Nov. 3, 1973, in St. Louis, and grew up in nearby Florissant. His dad is a retired union carpenter and his mom is a hairdresser. Zweifel graduated from Hazelwood West High School in 1992.

Zweifel was the first member of his family to attend college. He graduated from the University of Missouri-St. Louis with a Bachelors of Arts in Political Science in 1996. In 2001, he graduated from UMSL with a Master of Business Administration. While pursuing his undergraduate degree, Zweifel was Vice President of the UMSL Student Government Association.

Treasurer Zweifel worked for Teamsters Local 688 in the St. Louis area before he was elected Treasurer. While there, he worked with members to plan out their retirements. He is married to Janice, and they are parents to two wonderful girls, Selma and Elma. They reside in Columbia.

Duties

State Treasurer Clint Zweifel oversees all investments made by the State of Missouri. His office manages Missouri's $20 billion in annual State revenues, directs its banking services and manages its $3.5 billion investment portfolio. Treasurer Zweifel's office safeguards more than $550 million in unclaimed assets that have been turned over to the State by banks, businesses, insurance companies and government agencies, and tries to locate the owners. Treasurer Zweifel also serves on the management boards of a number of public entities. He is one of six statewide elected officials, and serves a term of four years. A person may only serve as State Treasurer for two terms.

Investments

Treasurer Zweifel determines the amount of State funds not needed for current operating expenses, and invests those funds in interest-bearing time deposits in Missouri banks, U.S. Treasury and federal agency securities, repurchase agreements, banker's acceptances and top-rated commercial paper. Safety is Treasurer Zweifel's number one priority in the investment of the public's funds. Staff investment specialists monitor major investment markets, and work to maximize the State's return on investments without compromising safety. Treasurer Zweifel's has an average of $3.5 billion invested daily, earning the State millions of dollars in interest income each year.

Missouri Linked Deposit Program

The Missouri Linked Deposit Program is designed to provide low-interest loans to small businesses and farms in Missouri. Under this program, State funds are placed with financial institutions at below-market interest rates so the institution can issue loans at a reduced rate to eligible borrowers. Loan savings is usually 2 to 3 percent to the borrower. There is a $720 million statutory cap for the program. The program can be used by small businesses with less than 100 employees, agricultural operations, beginning farmers, businesses that are adding jobs, entities making alternative energy investments, multi-family housing developments and local governments making community improvements.

This program was expanded by Treasurer Zweifel through Invest in Missouri, legislation he championed in 2009. The legislation enhanced program eligibility to stimulate job creation, job retention and community reinvestment.

Financial institutions and borrowers should visit www.treasurer.mo.gov or their local financial institution to learn more about the program. The application process has been streamlined and takes about one week to complete within Treasurer Zweifel's office.

Unclaimed Property – www.ShowMeMoney.com

Treasurer Zweifel's office is responsible for Missouri's largest Lost and Found, the State's Unclaimed Property Division. State law requires financial institutions, insurance companies, public agencies and other business entities to turn over assets that belong to a customer, client, employee or other owner if there have been no documented transactions or contact with the owner for five or more years. Treasurer Zweifel's office operates an aggressive program to return unclaimed assets to the original owners or their legal heirs. Most unclaimed property consists of cash from bank accounts, stocks, bonds and contents of safe deposit boxes that have been abandoned. It also can include uncollected insurance policy proceeds, government refunds, utility deposits and wages from past jobs. The Unclaimed Property Division does not handle real property such as land, houses, cars or boats.

Treasurer Zweifel's office currently is holding more than $550 million in unclaimed property and funds in more than 3.5 million owner accounts. In fiscal year 2008, the Unclaimed Property Division returned a record $34.5 million. All unclaimed property is held in trust by Treasurer Zweifel's office forever. It can be claimed at any time. To recover unclaimed property, claimants must be either the original owner of the property or a legal heir. All services of the Unclaimed Property Division are free of charge.

Individuals can check to see if the Treasurer Zweifel's office is holding unclaimed property that may belong to them by using its searchable database at www.ShowMeMoney.com.

MOST 529: Missouri's College Savings Plan – www.MissouriMost.org

Treasurer Zweifel chairs the Missouri Higher Education Savings Program Board, which oversees MOST 529. Developed by the State Treasurer's Office in 1999, the MOST 529 program encourages Missouri families to save for higher education, while taking advantage of significant federal and state tax benefits. Accounts can be opened with as little as $25 or $15 through payroll deduction. Contributions of up to $8,000 ($16,000 for married couples) annually can be deducted from Missouri income taxes, and all earnings are free of federal and State income taxes. Funds from MOST 529 accounts can be used to pay for all eligible educational expenses at virtually any two-year or four-year college or university, vocational, technical or professional school anywhere in the country.

For more information about MOST 529, call toll free: 1-888-414-MOST, or visit www.missourimost.org.

Banking Services

Treasurer Zweifel serves as Missouri government's banking director. While not a bank itself, his office must authorize payments and balance accounts. To protect taxpayers' money, Treasurer Zweifel's office maintains a separate accounting system to provide a check and balance on the State accounting system, and distributes investment earnings to the proper funds. Treasurer Zweifel's office contracts with Missouri banks to process the State's receipts and disbursements, handle money and security transfers, report on the State's accounts, balances and payment activities and provide related banking services. Bidding for State banking services contracts is open to all Missouri banks.

Boards and Commissions

Treasurer Zweifel serves on the governing boards of four large public entities: the Missouri Housing Development Commission, which assists in the creation of affordable housing for Missourians; the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System, which manages retirement funds for more than 56,000 state employees and retirees; the Board of Fund Commissioners, which issues, redeems and cancels State general obligation bonds and other debt; and the Missouri Higher Education Savings Program Board, which oversees MOST 529: Missouri's College Savings Plan. Treasurer Zweifel also serves on the boards of the Missouri Investment Trust and the Missouri Cultural Trust Board.

Chris Koster

Attorney General

Elected November 4, 2008
Term expires January 2013

CHRIS KOSTER (Democrat) was sworn in on January 12, 2009, as the 41st Attorney General of the state of Missouri. Koster campaigned on a platform of prosecuting corporate and mortgage fraud, cracking down on fraudulent Medicaid providers, and protecting against violations of workers' rights. Koster also pledged to work aggressively to enforce Missouri's environmental laws, and support law enforcement in fighting the spread of illegal methamphetamines.

Shortly after taking office, Attorney General Koster created a new division, called the Division of Civil, Disability & Worker's Rights, to place new emphasis on the enforcement of civil rights in discrimination cases, the protection of the rights of Missouri's disabled community, and the protection of the rights of workers in our state's workplaces.

The Attorney General also has made educating public officials about the Sunshine Law a priority of his office. Koster created the first full-time position of Sunshine Law educator to travel to every county in Missouri giving presentations and seminars to state, county and municipal agencies on Missouri's open meetings and records law.

Through the office's Consumer Division, Koster is working to focus efforts on the biggest threats to consumers. Early in his term, as the state and nation were deep in a housing-foreclosure crisis, the Attorney General demanded a "zero tolerance" campaign against businesses that promised foreclosure relief without delivering services, as well as against businesses that used deceptive practices to entice consumers to refinance. The Attorney General also is aggressively targeting businesses that violate Missouri's no-call list, pursuing substantial penalties against them.

Before his election as Attorney General, Koster represented the 31st district in the Missouri Senate from 2004 to 2008, which covers Cass, Johnson, Bates and Vernon counties.

During his time in the General Assembly, Koster played key roles in the debates over stem cell research, tort reform, and the elimination of Medicaid fraud. Additionally, in 2006 Koster successfully carried legislation in the Senate to dramatically overhaul Missouri's eminent domain laws.

Prior to his election to the Missouri Senate in 2004, Koster served as Prosecuting Attorney of Cass County for 10 years. He was first elected prosecutor in 1994 and was subsequently re-elected in 1998 and 2002 by wide margins. As prosecutor, Koster supervised a staff of 20 individuals dedicated to enforcing Missouri's criminal laws in Cass County. Additionally, his office served as the civil counsel for all non-criminal matters before the county government.

During his tenure, Koster supervised litigation in approximately 20,000 cases. He led investigations into many of Kansas City's most notorious criminal cases, including the investigation and prosecution of serial killer John E. Robinson. He has developed extensive trial experience and has argued and won cases before the Missouri Supreme Court. He played a leading role in the construction of the Cass County Justice Center, which opened in 2002 in Harrisonville.

Koster is active in his community. He has served on the Missouri Sentencing Advisory Commission and our state's Bioterrorism Task Force. Additionally, Koster has served as a director of the Missouri Association of Prosecuting Attorneys, a member of the U.S. Attorney's Anti-Terrorism Task Force and director of the Hope Haven Women's Shelter. In 2002, Ingram's Magazine named Koster "one of Kansas City's most influential citizens under 40 years old." In 2004, the Kansas City Business Journal named Koster to its list of Kansas City's best attorneys. On multiple occasions, he has been included among Missouri's most influential lawyers by Missouri Lawyers Weekly.

Prior to becoming prosecuting attorney, Koster practiced law with the Kansas City law firm of Blackwell Sanders from 1993 to 1994. He also served as a Missouri Assistant Attorney General from 1991 to 1993.

Koster was born and raised in St. Louis. After graduating from St. Louis University High School in 1982, he received a liberal arts degree from the University of Missouri–Columbia in 1987 and his law degree from University of Missouri–Columbia School of Law in 1991. Additionally, Koster earned a Masters in Business Administration from Washington University–St. Louis in 2002.

The attorney general is the attorney for the state, representing the legal interests of Missouri and its state agencies.

As the state's chief legal officer, the attorney general must prosecute or defend all appeals to which the state is a party, including every felony criminal case appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court and Courts of Appeal. The attorney general also is required to institute, in the name and on behalf of the state, all civil suits and other proceedings that are necessary to protect the state's rights, interests or claims. The attorney general may appear, interplead, answer or defend any proceedings that involve the state's interests, or appear on behalf of the state in declaratory judgment proceedings when the constitutionality of a statute is challenged.

The attorney general also renders official opinions to the executive and legislative branch and the county prosecuting attorneys on questions of law relating to their duties. The attorney general may institute quo warranto proceedings against anyone unlawfully holding office or move to oust any public official for malfeasance in office.

The attorney general's office was created in 1806 when Missouri was part of the Louisiana Territory. Missouri's first Constitution in 1820 provided for an appointed attorney general, but, since the 1865 Constitution, the attorney general has been elected.

By law, the attorney general is a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners, the Board of Public Buildings, the Governor's Committee on Interstate Cooperation, the Missouri Highway Reciprocity Commission and the Missouri Housing Development Commission.

To fulfill these and other responsibilities, the attorney general's office is organized into nine divisions.

Agriculture and Environment Division

The Agriculture and Environment Division aggressively protects Missouri's natural resources and agricultural productivity. The division's attorneys take legal action to stop pollution, to seek monetary fines and penalties, and in the most serious cases, to criminally prosecute those who violate Missouri's environmental laws.

The division works to protect and enhance agriculture and the quality of life for rural Missourians by enforcing Missouri's agricultural laws and advocating responsible public policy. The attorney general protects the state's interests in the Missouri River and other valuable resources, including state parks, and waterways such as the Meramec and White River basin.

Division attorneys represent the Department of Natural Resources and its constituent boards and commissions, as well as the Department of Agriculture, in hundreds of active enforcement cases and administrative appeals. The division also cooperates with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Attorney's office to enforce state and federal environmental laws.

Civil, Disability and Workers' Rights Division

The Civil, Disability and Workers' Rights Division was created in 2009 to spotlight issues of importance that have been previously assigned to several other divisions within the attorney general's office.

The division represents the Missouri Commission on Human Rights in cases before the Administrative Hearing Commission and in all subsequent court actions. The division enforces the Missouri Human Rights Act and takes action on behalf of Missouri citizens in discrimination cases. The division enforces state interests regarding the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Federal Fair Housing Act.

Workers' rights in Missouri are protected and enforced by the division under the prevailing wage and minimum wage laws and Missouri's new unauthorized worker statute. This new law gives the attorney general's office the authority to investigate and pursue legal action against employers who knowingly employ workers not authorized by law to work in the United States. The division receives and investigates formal complaints of violations of the new law. Division attorneys pursue cases against employers who do not comply with the statute.

Consumer Protection Division

The attorney general has the responsibility of protecting the public's interests in an open and honest marketplace. The Consumer Protection Division enforces Missouri's Consumer Protection Act and antitrust laws, and has the responsibility of representing the commissioner of securities of the Secretary of State's Office. Missouri's consumer protection statutes prohibit deception, fraud, unfair practices and misrepresentation or concealment of material facts in the sale or advertisement of goods or services. These laws authorize the attorney general to take action against such fraud and ensure that consumers' rights are protected.

The division also has an active consumer education program. Consumers can file complaints or obtain information by calling the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline at (800) 392-8222 or online to www.ago.mo.gov. The division receives more than 90,000 consumer complaints and inquiries each year.

JOAN GUMMELS
Legislative Director

JACK McMANUS
Chief Counsel, Agriculture and Environment Division

BARBARA CRANCER
Chief Counsel, Civil, Disability and Workers' Rights Division

DOUG OMMEN
Chief Counsel, Consumer Protection Division

Under the Missouri Antitrust Law, the attorney general has the authority to represent the state or any of its political subdivisions, public agencies, school districts or municipalities in actions to prohibit monopolies and trade restraints. The attorney general also may act under federal antitrust statutes to bring civil actions in the name of the state and on behalf of Missouri residents to recover damages for injuries caused by certain antitrust violations.

The attorney general is the state's chief prosecutor for securities fraud, and may initiate legal actions for civil injunctive relief, penalties and restitution under the Missouri Merchandising Practices Law. Attorneys in this division also protect Missourians by enforcing compliance with state laws by trusts, foundations and nonprofit corporations.

The No Call program to reduce unwanted telemarketing calls also is under the Consumer Protection Division. Missourians may register for No Call by calling 1-866-BUZZOFF or online at www.ago.mo.gov.

Criminal Division

The Attorney General represents the state in every felony case appealed to the Supreme Court of Missouri and Missouri Court of Appeals. Each year, attorneys in the Criminal Division brief and argue more than 700 cases in the Missouri Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of our state.

Division attorneys also assist local and state authorities with extraditions to and from Missouri of those charged in criminal cases.

Financial Services Division

The Financial Services Division protects Missourians by recouping money owed to the state or state agencies, including providing collection services to several divisions of the attorney general's office and more than 40 other state agencies. Division attorneys also take legal action to establish, maintain and modify child support obligations, and work to recover money owed by inmates to reimburse the state for the cost of their care.

Governmental Affairs Division

The Governmental Affairs Division protects the safety and well-being of Missourians by ensuring that regulated professionals adhere to state laws and disciplinary rules, by enforcing state ethics and campaign finance laws, and by enforcing penalties against nursing homes for violating standards of care and removing caregivers who abuse or neglect vulnerable citizens. They also help mentally ill and physically challenged Missourians obtain guardians to help obtain care.

The division provides legal representation to state officers, including the secretary of state, treasurer and auditor, as well as several state agencies, including the departments of Health and Senior Services, Mental Health, and Social Services; the Missouri Ethics Commission; the Health Facilities Review Committee; and more than 30 professional licensing boards. Division attorneys also defend constitutional challenges to state laws and ballot issues. Division attorneys enforce the provisions of the tobacco Master Settlement Agreement, which has brought in more than $1.5 billion to the state as of April 2009. Attorneys in the division also address questions from the public, from government officials and from the media about Missouri's open meetings and records law, commonly known as the Sunshine Law.

Labor Division

The Labor Division provides general counsel and litigation services for the Missouri Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and its officers and agencies. The division also represents the state in crime victims' claims and workers' compensation cases of state employees, including claims involving the Second Injury Fund.

Litigation Division

Litigation division attorneys handle major and complex litigation for Missouri, providing legal defense to state officials, state agencies and their employees. Cases in the division include damage claims, contract actions, class-action lawsuits, employment issues, constitutional challenges, suits seeking injunctive relief and other types of civil litigation.

The division defends the state in lawsuits brought by inmates of Missouri's correctional facilities. Division attorneys also defend constitutional challenges to state laws and ballot issues. Finally, attorneys in the litigation division defend lawsuits filed against the police boards and the police officers of the cities of St. Louis and Kansas City, Missouri.

Public Safety Division

The Public Safety Division is involved in a wide range of criminal prosecutions at the trial level. The division's special prosecution unit prosecutes or assists in the prosecution of cases throughout Missouri, many of them homicide cases. In 2008, division attorneys had more than 600 active special prosecutions throughout the state's 114 counties and the City of St. Louis.

The methamphetamine prosecution unit specializes in handling criminal cases involving the manufacture, sale or possession of methamphetamine. The workers' compensation fraud unit prosecutes fraud or misconduct involving workers' compensation, and the Medicaid fraud control unit prosecutes cases involving fraud of the state Medicaid program by health professionals, and prosecutes abuse or neglect of Medicaid recipients by caregivers.

The division's high technology and computer crime unit assists local law enforcement with investigations and prosecutions of computer and Internet crime cases. The sexually violent predator unit seeks the civil commitment of sexual predators who suffer from a mental abnormality making them more likely than not to commit additional predatory acts of sexual violence.

Attorneys in the division also serve as legal counsel for the Department of Public Safety, the Missouri State Highway Patrol, the Missouri State Water Patrol and other state law enforcement agencies, and represent those agencies in all civil litigation to which they are a party. Division attorneys also defend the state in all habeas corpus actions filed by prison inmates in state and federal courts. Each year they litigate some 500 federal habeas corpus actions in the federal district courts, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Executive Branch

Barack H. Obama, President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20500
Telephone: (202) 456-1414
www.whitehouse.gov

The president and the vice president of the United States are elected every four years by a majority of votes cast in the electoral college. These votes are cast by delegates from each state who vote in accordance, traditionally, with the majority of the state's voters. States have as many electoral college votes as they have congressional delegates. Missouri has 11 electoral college votes—one for each of the nine U.S. Congress districts and two for the state's two seats in the U.S. Senate.

The president is the chief executive of the United States, with powers to command the armed forces, control foreign policy, grant reprieves and pardons, make certain appointments, execute all laws passed by Congress and present the administration's budget. The president earns $400,000 annually, with an allowance for expenses.

The vice president is selected by members of each national political committee and runs on the same ticket for the same term as the president. The vice president assumes the presidency if the president dies or resigns the office, is incapacitated to the extent that he or she cannot exercise presidential duties for an extended period, or is impeached. The vice president presides over the functions of the U.S. Senate and acts as emissary of the president. The vice president earns $227,300 annually, plus an allowance for expenses.

Although not mentioned in the Constitution, the president's cabinet is the advisory arm of the office. It is made up of 15 cabinet members (or secretaries) who have the responsibility to operate each department. Secretaries are appointed by the president and serve at his or her pleasure. Cabinet secretaries earn $191,300 annually.

Legislative Branch

www.house.gov / www.senate.gov

The U.S. Constitution provides for two legislative houses, known as the Congress. The Senate is composed of 100 members; two senators are elected from each state. The House of Representatives is composed of 435 members; the number of representatives is determined based on the population of each state. Missouri is allotted nine U.S. Representative seats.

Senators must be at least 30 years of age and be residents of the United States for at least nine years. They also must reside in the state they are elected to represent. Senators serve terms of six years, with one-third of the Senate membership elected every two years. Senators earn $174,000 annually, plus expenses.

Representatives must be at least 25 years of age and must have been residents of the United States for at least seven years. They also must reside in the state they represent. Representatives serve two-year terms and earn $174,000 annually, plus expenses.

Congress is in session for two years, beginning on January 3 of each year unless another date is specified. The presiding officer of the Senate is the vice president of the United States. The Senate also elects a president pro tem of the Senate to serve in the absence of the vice president. The president pro tem also represents the party in power and earns $193,400. The presiding officer of the House is called the speaker. The speaker traditionally represents the party in majority and earns $223,500.

Judicial Branch

The U.S. Supreme Court heads the nation's judicial branch of government. The Supreme Court is composed of nine justices, appointed for life. Supreme Court justices may only be removed by impeachment and trial by Congress. Justices receive $208,100 annually while the chief justice, who leads the court, earns $217,400.

The Supreme Court concerns itself with national issues or matters concerning the constitutionality of certain laws or findings. Decisions of the court are binding and overrule any other court decision.

There are 94 U.S. District Court districts with federal jurisdiction. Two of these are located in Missouri: the Eastern Missouri District and the Western Missouri District. Eastern District courts are located in St. Louis, Hannibal and Cape Girardeau while Western District courts are in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Jefferson City and Joplin. Barack H. Obama

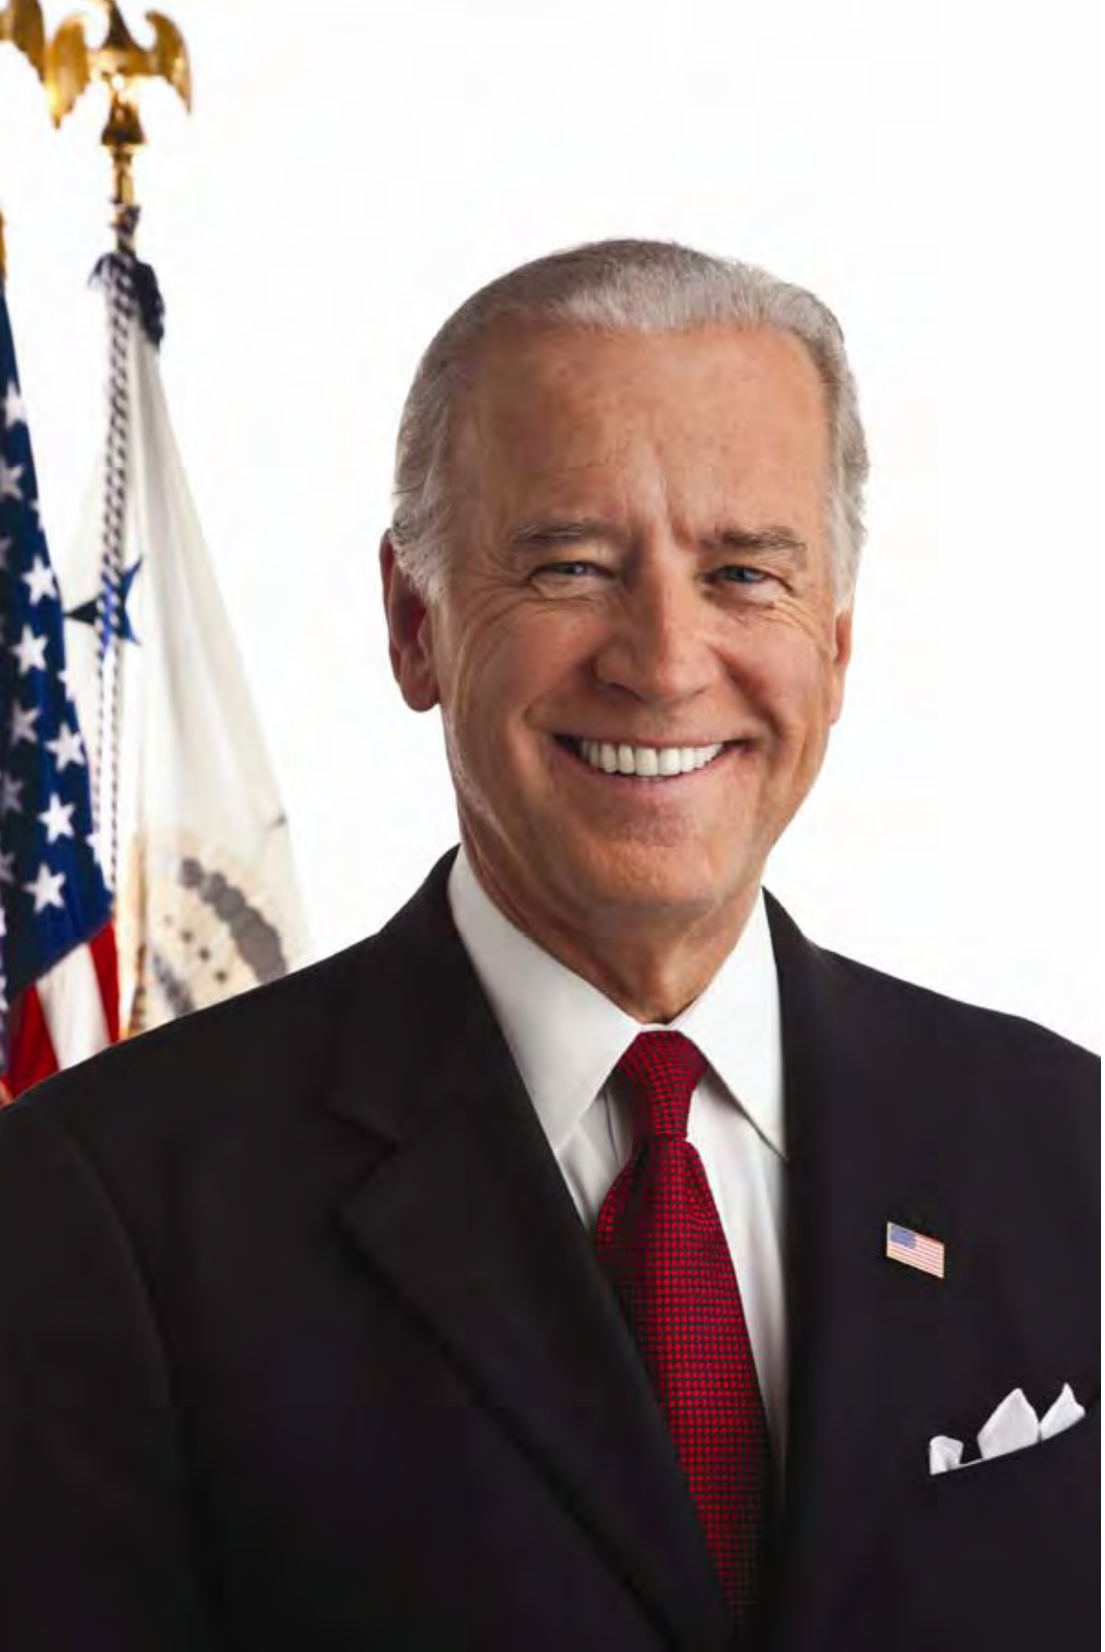
United States President

Elected November 4, 2008
Term expires January 2013

BARACK H. OBAMA (Democrat) is the 44th President of the United States.

His story is the American story — values from the heartland, a middle-class upbringing in a strong family, hard work and education as the means of getting ahead, and the conviction that a life so blessed should be lived in service to others.



With a father from Kenya and a mother from Kansas, President Obama was born in Hawaii on August 4, 1961. He was raised with help from his grandfather, who served in Patton's army, and his grandmother, who worked her way up from the secretarial pool to middle management at a bank.

After working his way through college with the help of scholarships and student loans, President Obama moved to Chicago, where he worked with a group of churches to help rebuild communities devastated by the closure of local steel plants.

He went on to attend law school, where he became the first African-American president of the Harvard Law Review. Upon graduation, he returned to Chicago to help lead a voter registration drive, teach constitutional law at the University of Chicago, and remain active in his community.

President Obama's years of public service are based around his unwavering belief in the ability to unite people around a politics of purpose. In the Illinois State Senate, he passed the first major ethics reform in 25 years, cut taxes for working families, and expanded health care for children and their parents. As a United States Senator, he reached across the aisle to pass groundbreaking lobbying reform, lock up the world's most dangerous weapons, and bring transparency to government by putting federal spending online.

He was elected the 44th President of the United States on November 4, 2008, and sworn in on January 20, 2009. He and his wife, Michelle, are the proud parents of two daughters, Malia, 10, and Sasha, 7.

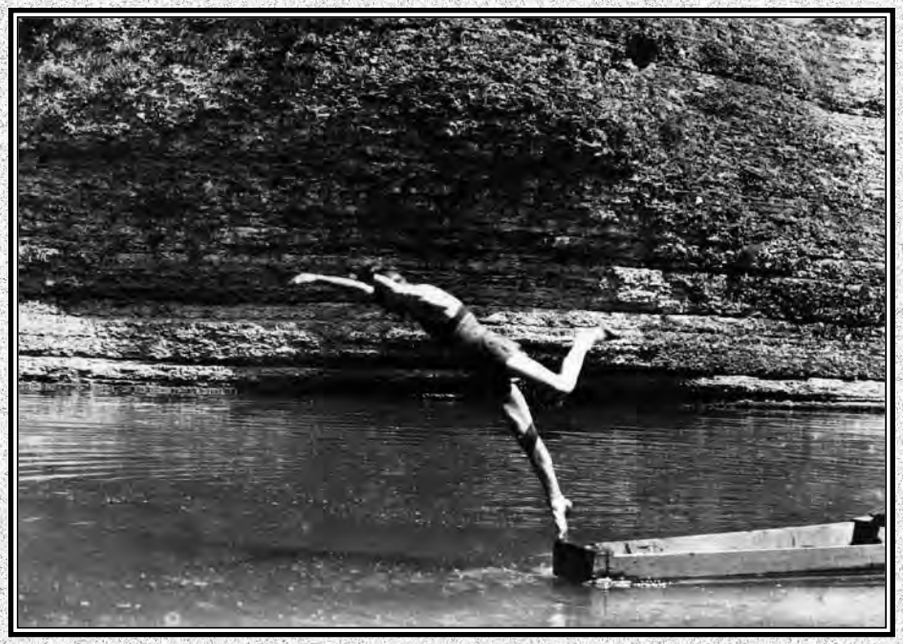
Joseph R. Biden Jr.

United States Vice President

Elected November 4, 2008
Term expires January 2013

JOSEPH ROBINETTE BIDEN JR., was born November 20, 1942, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, the first of four siblings. In 1953, the Biden family moved from Pennsylvania to Claymont, Delaware. He graduated from the University of Delaware and Syracuse Law School and served on the New Castle County Council. Then, at age 29, he became one of the youngest people ever elected to the United States Senate.

Just weeks after the election, tragedy struck the Biden family, when Biden's wife, Neilia, and their 1-year old daughter, Naomi, were killed and their two young sons critically injured in an auto accident. Biden was sworn in at his sons' hospital bedside and began commuting to Washington every day by train, a practice he maintained throughout his career in the Senate.



In 1977, Biden married Jill Jacobs. Jill Biden, who holds a Ph.D. in Education, has been an educator for over two decades in Delaware schools. Vice President Biden has three children: Beau, Hunter, and Ashley. Beau serves as Delaware's Attorney General and is currently deployed to Iraq as a Captain in the 261st Signal Brigade of the Delaware National Guard. Ashley is a social worker and Hunter is an attorney. Vice President Biden has five grandchildren: Naomi, Finnegan, Roberta Mabel ("Maisy"), Natalie, and Robert Hunter.

As a Senator from Delaware for 36 years, Biden has been a leader on some of our nation's most important domestic and international challenges. As Chairman or Ranking Member of the Senate Judiciary Committee for 17 years, Biden was widely recognized for his work on criminal justice issues including the landmark 1994 Crime Bill and the Violence Against Women Act. As Chairman or Ranking Member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee since 1997, Biden played a pivotal role in shaping U.S. foreign policy. He has been at the forefront of issues and legislation related to terrorism, weapons of mass destruction, post-Cold War Europe, the Middle East, and Southwest Asia.

CHRISTOPHER S. (KIT) BOND (Republican) is a sixth generation Missourian, born in St. Louis in 1939. He grew up in Mexico, Mo., where he still resides and tends to several groves of trees he planted by hand.

Bond graduated from Princeton University in 1960 and received his law degree from the University of Virginia, having graduated first in his class.

After serving as a clerk to the Chief Judge of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, Bond practiced law in Washington, D.C. before returning home to Missouri.

In 1969, Bond became an assistant attorney general under former Senator John Danforth. Before being elected state auditor in 1970, Bond was chief counsel of Missouri's Consumer Protection Division.

At age 33, Kit Bond became the 47th governor of the State of Missouri on January 8, 1973 - the youngest governor the state has ever had.

Bond was re-elected to a second term as governor in 1980. Among his greatest accomplishments as governor was to take the Parents as Teachers program statewide.

After his second successful term as governor, Bond continued his service to Missouri from his newly won seat in the United States Senate. In that 1986 election year, he was the only Republican to capture a seat previously held by a Democrat.

Based upon his solid ability to protect and advance Missouri's interests in the United States Senate, Bond was returned by Missouri voters to the U.S. Senate in 1992, 1998 and in 2004.

While serving in the United States Senate, Bond has built a reputation as a statesman who advocates for a strong U.S. military, improved care for our nation's veterans and men and women in uniform, an expert on Southeast Asia, and a reformer of our nation's intelligence community. He is also recognized as a national leader in the promotion of plant biotechnology.

As a senior member of the Senate Appropriations Committee and ranking member of the subcommittee that funds the nation's housing and transportation needs, Bond has worked to increase access to safe and affordable housing and improve critical infrastructure in Missouri and across the country.

Bond has worked to ensure that Missouri receives a fair share of money to improve roads and highways. As the then-chairman of the subcommittee responsible for writing federal highway legislation, Bond used his clout to bring $1.3 billion in new federal highway funds to Missouri in the most recent transportation bill.

Bond has fought for economic security by protecting jobs from being driven abroad by overreaching regulations, ensuring that the weapons systems defending our soldiers continue to be built by Missouri's fine engineering and production work force, and working to make Missouri the premier plant biotechnology and life sciences corridor in the country.

Bond serves as the Vice Chairman on the Senate Select Intelligence Committee, where he is working to give the Intelligence Community the tools to detect and disrupt planned terrorist attacks on America.

Bond is married to Linda Bond. His son, Samuel Bond, was 1st Lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps, and served two tours in Iraq – the last as a scout-sniper platoon leader. Sam recently married Margaret Crews, an attorney from Richmond, Virginia.

CLAIRE McCASKILL (Democrat) is a 4th-generation Missourian who has spent her entire life in the Show-Me State. Born in Rolla and raised in Lebanon and Columbia, Claire has never forgotten her roots. Claire's first home was Houston, Missouri, where her father William worked at the McCaskill feed mill. Later, the family moved to Lebanon, hometown of Claire's mother, Betty Anne, where her mother's family ran the corner drugstore in town.

After another move, Claire attended Hickman High School in Columbia, while her father served as a state insurance commissioner and her mother became Columbia's first woman city council member. At Hickman High School, Claire graduated near the top of her class and was deeply involved in student activities, while also working in a fabric store since she sewed many of her own clothes.

The day after graduation, Claire left town for a job busing tables at Lodge of the Four Seasons at Lake of the Ozarks. Waitressing for six years helped Claire work her way through college and law school at the University of Missouri in Columbia.

Claire clerked for the Missouri Court of Appeals in Kansas City and then got a job as an assistant prosecutor in Kansas City, where she was a felony trial prosecutor handling sex crimes, homicides, and specializing in arson cases. In 1982, McCaskill won a seat in the State Legislature. She juggled the responsibilities of both mother and legislator and was the first woman to ever give birth while she was an active member of the Missouri Legislature.

Claire broke new ground again in 1993 when she became the first female Jackson County Prosecutor, which included Kansas City. This was the largest prosecutor's office in the state, and she began many new programs, including a domestic violence unit and one of the nation's first Drug Courts. She held this position until she was sworn in as Missouri Auditor in 1999.

As State Auditor, Claire has been credited for revolutionizing the office and making it into a true watchdog for taxpayers and citizens. In 2004, Claire took on her own party establishment and became the first person to ever defeat a sitting Missouri governor in a primary election.

In November of 2006, Claire became the first woman elected to the United States Senate from Missouri, vowing to bring Harry Truman's no-nonsense style of accountability back to Washington. It only seemed fitting that her place in the Senate chamber is a desk shared by none other than Senator Truman himself.

Claire sits on four Senate Committees, including Armed Services, Commerce, Homeland Security and Government Affairs (HSGAC), and Aging. Claire is Chairman of an HSGAC Subcommittee on Contracting Oversight, and hopes to root out government waste. Additionally, Claire was named as one of the select Senators to sit on the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, formerly known as the Truman Committee.

After a busy week in Washington, Claire returns home to St. Louis to a full house. After seven years as a single mom, Claire married Joseph Shepard, a St. Louis businessman, in April 2002. They each brought children to the marriage, which created a blended family that includes seven children: Benjamin, 34, Carl, 31, Marilyn, 29, Michael, 27, Austin, 21, Maddie, 19 and Lily, 17. Claire's 81-year old mother Betty Anne lives with the family and continues to join her on trips around Missouri.

[21]Jo Ann Emerson was elected to two terms in the 1996 general election. She ran as a Republican in the special election to serve out the remainder of the term in the seat held by her late husband, U.S. Rep. Bill Emerson, who died in June of 1996. With not enough time for her name to be added to the ballot for the next full term in Congress, Jo Ann Emerson ran for the upcoming term as an Independent. She won both elections, and began her congressional service during the 104th Congress, representing Missouri's Eighth District starting in November of 1996.

Historical Note: The election of early Missouri delegates was by general statewide ticket. In 1847, the state was divided into five congressional districts, from which representatives were elected. In 1863, the districts were expanded to number nine and ten years later in 1873, Missouri was redistricted to allow for thirteen congressional districts. By acts approved in 1882 and 1885, Missouri was allowed one additional district and in 1893, the congressional districts numbered fifteen. Missouri was allowed sixteen districts in 1901; these were in place until 1933. In that year, the state was allotted thirteen representatives, while the legislature redistricted the state. Those thirteen representatives were elected at large (indicated by an asterisk (*) in the listing). The state has been redistricted at various times over the last forty years, moving from eleven districts in the 1950s, to ten districts in the 1960s, to the current number of nine congressional districts in the 1980s. Because of the redistricting, it may be necessary to check the Revised Statutes of Missouri to determine which Missouri counties were represented by a district during a particular year. Redistricting changes generally occur in the years following the taking of the federal census.

The Missouri General Assembly

Legislative power in Missouri is vested by Section 1, Article III of the 1945 Constitution in the General Assembly, composed of the Senate and the House of Representatives. Their website is www.moga.mo.gov.

The Senate consists of 34 members, elected for four-year terms. Senators from odd-numbered districts are elected in presidential election years. Senators from even-numbered districts are chosen in the midterm elections. Each senator must be at least 30 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for three years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The lieutenant governor is president and presiding officer of the Senate. In the absence of the lieutenant governor, the president pro tem, elected by the Senate members, presides.

The House of Representatives consists of 163 members, elected at each general election for a two-year term. A representative must be at least 24 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for two years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The House is presided over by the speaker, chosen by the members, and in the absence of the speaker by the speaker pro tem.

Reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri General Assembly following each decennial U.S. census is provided for by the Missouri Constitution.

Senators and Representatives receive a salary of $31,351 per year, a weekly allowance for miles traveled going to and returning from their place of meeting and expenses for each day the General Assembly is in session.

Time of Meeting

The General Assembly convenes annually on the first Wednesday after the first Monday of January. Adjournment is midnight on May 30, with no consideration of bills after 6 p.m. on the first Friday after the second Monday in May. The General Assembly reconvenes on the first Wednesday following the second Monday in September for a period not to exceed 10 calendar days to consider vetoed bills.

A special session of the General Assembly may be called by petition of the General Assembly. If three-fourths of the members of the Senate and three-fourths of the members of the House sign the petition calling for a special session, the president pro tem of the Senate and the speaker of the House shall, by joint proclamation, convene the General Assembly in special session. The petition and proclamation must specifically state the subjects to be considered during the special session, and the signed petition must be filed with the secretary of state.

The General Assembly shall automatically stand adjourned sine die at 6 p.m. on the 30th calendar day after the convening of the special session unless it has adjourned sine die before the 30th day. No appropriation bill shall be considered in the special session if the General Assembly has not passed the operating budget in compliance with Article III, Section 25 of the Missouri Constitution.

The governor may convene the General Assembly in extraordinary session for a maximum of 60 calendar days at any time. Only subjects recommended by the governor in his or her call or a special message may be considered.

Organization of the General Assembly

Following the general election in November of even numbered years, the majority and minority members of each house caucus, separately nominate candidates for the offices to be elected by each body and organize their parties for the coming session. Nominees of the majority party and minority party are elected. Each party names its floor leader, assistant floor leader, caucus chair and secretary.

Both houses of the General Assembly convene at noon on the opening day of the session. The Senate is called to order by the lieutenant governor. Temporary officers are named and the roll of new and incumbent senators is read. Newly elected senators are then sworn in, usually by a judge of the Supreme Court. The president pro tem and other permanent officers are then elected and take an oath of office administered by the president of the Senate.

The House of Representatives is called to order by the secretary of state, and the oath is administered to all members. After the swearing-in ceremony, a roll call is taken and a temporary speaker is named. He or she presides for the nomination and election of permanent officers. Temporary rules, usually the rules in force for the preceding session, are adopted.

After each house notifies the other that it is duly organized, a House Resolution is adopted inviting the Senate to a joint meeting to receive the governor's message. Under the Constitution, the governor, at the beginning of each session, delivers a message concerning state government with any recommendations he or she wishes to make for the enactment of legislation. This message is commonly referred to as the State of the State Address.

Each house determines its own rules, and procedures and rules may not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent or concurrence by a constitutional majority. Both the Senate and House are required to keep a daily journal of their proceedings. At the end of the session, the journals are bound by the House and Senate. The Secretary of State's office maintains microform copies of the journals.

Term Limits

In November 1992 the voters approved an amendment to the Missouri Constitution to limit for the first time the amount of total service in the House and Senate to eight years in each. Total legislative service was limited to sixteen years. In November of 2002 voters approved an additional amendment to allow members elected through a special election, after the effective date, to serve the partial term and two full terms for the Senate and four full terms for the House, through a general election.

How Bills Become Laws

General Provisions

Bills may originate in either house and are designated as Senate Bills or House Bills, depending on the house in which they originate. No bill (except general appropriations bills) may contain more than one subject, which is to be expressed clearly in its title. No bill can be amended in its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose. No bill can be introduced in either house after the 60th legislative day of a session unless consented to by a majority of the elected members of each house. No appropriation bill shall be taken up for consideration after 6 p.m. on the first Friday following the first Monday in May of each year.

Introduction of a Bill

Missouri law provides for preintroduction of bills beginning December 1 preceding the opening of the assembly session and continuing up to, but not including, the first day of session. Bills filed during the preintroduction period are automatically introduced and read the first time on the opening day of session.

Bills also may be introduced by any senator or representative during session. Bills may be written by the legislator or by the staff of the Committee on Legislative Research at the request of a senator or representative. When introduced, a bill is assigned a number and read for the first time by its title. It then goes on the calendar for second reading and assignment to committee by the speaker of the House or the president pro tem of the Senate.

A public hearing before the committee to which a bill is assigned is the next step in the legislative process. Except in the case of unusually controversial, complex or lengthy bills, the bill is presented by its sponsor, and both proponents and opponents are heard in a single hearing. When hearings are concluded, the committee meets to vote and makes its recommendations. The committee may (1) report the bill with the recommendation that it "do pass;" (2) recommend passage with committee amendments, which are attached to the bill; (3) return the bill without recommendation; (4) substitute in lieu of the original bill a new bill to be known as a committee substitute; (5) report the bill with a recommendation that it "do not pass;" or (6) make no report at all.

Perfection of a Bill

If a bill is reported favorably out of committee or a substitute is recommended, it is placed on the "perfection calendar." When it is brought up for consideration, it is debated on the floor of the originating house. If a substitute is recommended by the committee or if committee amendments are attached to the bill, they are first presented, debated and voted upon. At this point, further amendments can be proposed by other members. When all amendments and substitutes have been considered, a motion is made to declare the bill perfected. Perfection is voted on by a voice vote or, on the request of five members, by roll call. If a majority of members vote to perfect, the bill is reprinted in its original or amended form.

Final Passage of a Bill

After perfection and reprinting, the bill goes on the calendar for third reading and final passage. When the bill is reached in the order of business, any member may speak for or against its passage but no further amendments can be offered. At the conclusion of debate, a recorded vote is taken. Approval of a constitutional majority of the elected members (18 in the Senate and 82 in the House) is required for final passage.

Passage of the bill is then reported to the other chamber where it is read a second time, referred to committee for hearing, reported by committee, read a third time and offered for final approval. If further amendments or substitutes are approved, these are reported to the originating house with a request that the changes be approved. If the originating house does not approve, a conference may be requested and members from each house are designated as a conference committee. Upon agreement by the conference committee (usually a compromise of differences), each reports to its own house on the committee's recommendation. The originating house acts first on the conference committee version of the bill. If it is approved it goes to the other house; and upon approval there, the bill is declared "truly agreed to and finally passed." If either house rejects the conference committee report, it may be returned to the same or a newly appointed committee for further conferences.

Upon final passage, a bill is ordered enrolled, printed in its final form and the bills are closely compared and proofed for errors.

Signing of the Bill

Bills truly agreed to and finally passed in their printed form are then signed in open session by the House speaker and Senate president or president pro tem. At the time of signing, any member may file written objections which are sent with the bill to the governor.

Governor's Part in Lawmaking

The governor has 15 days to act on a bill if it is sent to him during the legislative session, and 45 days if the Legislature has adjourned or has recessed for a 30-day period.

If he or she signs a bill, it is returned to its house of origin with a message of approval, then delivered to the Office of Secretary of State. The bill is delivered directly to the Office of Secretary of State if the Legislature is not in session.

If the governor vetoes a bill, it is returned to the house of origin with his or her objections. A two-thirds vote by members of both houses is required to override a governor's veto.

If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within the time limits prescribed by Article III, Section 31 of the Missouri Constitution, it shall become law in the same manner as if the governor had signed it.

Effective Date of Laws

The 1945 Constitution provides that no law passed by the General Assembly shall take effect until 90 days after the end of the session in which it was enacted, except an appropriation act or in case of an emergency, which must be expressed in the preamble or in the body of the act. Some bills specify the exact date when they are to take effect.

Duties of the Secretary of State

The Secretary of State preserves and the State Archives binds and maintains the finally printed and signed copy of the law. The laws are published annually by the Committee on Legislative Research, in a volume titled Laws of Missouri, which is distributed to members of the General Assembly, state officials and other interested persons.

The general statute laws are revised, digested and promulgated by the revisor of statutes, in the Office of the Committee on Legislative Research. These are known as the Revised Statutes of Missouri. The Committee on Legislative Research also publishes annual supplements to the statutes to include changes in laws since the last revision.

Jefferson City 65101
Telephone: (573) 751-4143

The Committee on Legislative Research is a permanent joint committee as provided by Section 35 of Article III of the Missouri Constitution.

The committee is composed of 20 members of the General Assembly, with 10 members appointed by the leaders of each chamber. No major party may have more than six members appointed as members from either chamber.

The committee is directed by statute to provide a variety of services for the General Assembly and its members. The committee's offices and staff are divided into three divisions, a Research Division, an Oversight Division and the Legislative Budget Office. The committee itself is not a policy making group and formulates no legislative program. Its staff renders only such technical and professional assistance as may be requested by the General Assembly or any of its members, or as required by statute.

The Research Division provides bill drafting assistance, prepares concurrent and courtesy resolutions, operates a legislative reference library and publishes the Revised Statutes of Missouri and subsequent supplements, and Session Laws of Missouri.

Bills are drawn at the request of any member of the General Assembly but the fact that a bill has been drafted by a member of the staff does not carry with it the endorsement of the Committee on Legislative Research. All bill requests are treated confidentially by the bill drafter and without comment or criticism of the subject matter.

One need of state government is a modern legislative reference library. The library maintained by the Committee on Legislative Research continuously acquires books, pamphlets, periodicals and reports and the staff works closely with the staff of the Missouri State Library and the Supreme Court Library.

Through its acquisitions, exchanges and loans with other libraries, the legislative library provides much of the material requested by members of the General Assembly for the analysis of public questions and provides a research tool for bill drafting and research services.

Courtesy resolutions continue to be of great importance to members of the General Assembly. More than 600 per month are prepared by the resolution-writers for a variety of observances.

The Oversight Division is supervised by a subcommittee of the Committee on Legislative Research. The Oversight Division is responsible for preparing fiscal notes on all bills pending before the General Assembly with the exception of appropriation bills. Fiscal notes must state the cost of the proposed legislation to the state for the next two fiscal years; whether the proposal would establish a program or agency which would duplicate an existing program or agency; whether the provisions of the proposal were federally mandated; whether the proposal would have significant direct fiscal impact upon any political subdivision of the state; whether any new physical facilities would be required; and whether an impact to small businesses would be expected. The division prepares approximately 3,000 fiscal notes during a regular legislative session.

Missouri's Judicial System

From its inception in 1820, Missouri state government constitutionally has been divided into three separate branches—the legislative, executive and judicial. The judicial branch's function is not to make the laws of the state or to administer them, but to adjudicate the controversies that arise between persons and parties, to determine fairly and justly the guilt or innocence of persons charged with criminal offenses, and to interpret the laws of the state as enacted by the legislature and carried out by the executive branch.

The roots of Missouri's judicial branch reach back to the days when Missouri was a part of the Missouri Territory controlled by the French and Spanish. When Missouri officially was organized as a territory in 1812, the judicial power was vested in a superior court, inferior courts and justices of the peace. The Constitution of 1820, the state's first constitution, placed the judicial power in a Supreme Court, chancery courts (later abolished by the General Assembly), and circuit and other courts to be established by the legislature.

Today, Missouri has a three-tier court system. Article V of the constitution, as amended by Missouri voters in 1976, vests the judicial power in a Supreme Court, the state's highest court, with statewide jurisdiction; in a court of appeals consisting of districts established by the General Assembly; and in a system of circuit courts that have original jurisdiction over all cases and matters, civil and criminal.

Effective January 2, 1979, the circuit court system absorbed all former courts of limited jurisdiction and became the state's single trial court. Cases once heard in magistrate and probate courts, in the St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections, in the Hannibal and Cape Girardeau Courts of Common Pleas, and in municipal and other local courts, now are heard in appropriate divisions of the circuit courts.

All the judges of these former courts have become either circuit, associate circuit or municipal judges. They may hear and determine different classes of cases within their respective circuits. A presiding judge, elected by the other judges in the circuit, has general administrative authority over all judicial personnel in the circuit. He or she may assign other judges throughout the circuit to relieve caseload and administrative backlogs. The Supreme Court and court of appeals have general superintending control over all courts and tribunals within their jurisdictions. Original remedial writs may be issued and determined at each level of the court system. Decisions of the Supreme Court are controlling in all other state courts.

Selection of Judges

In the first 30 years of Missouri's statehood, the judges of the supreme, circuit and chancery courts were appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. After much public discussion, the constitution was amended in 1850 to provide for the popular election of judges, and this system remains in effect for most Missouri courts today. In most circuits, the judges are elected by the voters in partisan elections.

In 1940, Missouri voters amended the constitution by adopting the "Nonpartisan Selection of Judges Court Plan," which was placed on the ballot by initiative petition and which provides for the nonpartisan (non-political) appointment of certain judges, rather than having them popularly elected.

The constitution, as amended further in 1976, provides that the Nonpartisan Court Plan applies in the Supreme Court, the court of appeals, and the circuit courts within the city of St. Louis and Jackson County. In addition, voters in Clay, Greene, Platte and St. Louis counties have elected to institute the plan, and the Kansas City charter extends a nonpartisan selection plan to Kansas City municipal court judges. While all other judges are elected in partisan elections, other judicial circuits may adopt the plan on approval by a majority of the voters in the circuit.

Under the Missouri Plan, as it often is called nationally, a vacancy on a court to which the plan applies is filled through a nonpartisan judicial commission of lay persons and lawyers. A judge selects three persons from those who apply, based on merit. The governor then appoints one of the three. A judge appointed in this way must stand for retention in office at the first general election occurring after the judge has been in office for 12 months. The judge's name is placed on a separate judicial ballot, without political party designation, and the voters must vote either for or against retention in office. The judge's name again is placed on the ballot for a retention vote at certain intervals if the judge wishes to serve subsequent terms. The Missouri Plan has served as a national model for the selection of judges and has been adopted by a number of other states.

Every supreme, appellate, circuit and associate circuit court judge must be licensed to practice law in Missouri. By constitutional amendment and statute, all judges must retire by age 70.

History and Organization

The Supreme Court has been the state's highest court since 1820, when the first Missouri Constitution was adopted. The earliest court, consisting of only three members, was required to hold sessions in four different judicial circuits in the state. At various times, the court sat in Boonville, Cape Girardeau, Fayette, Hannibal, Jackson, Lexington, St. Charles, St. Louis and other cities.

The size of the Supreme Court was increased to five judges in 1872 and to its present size—seven judges—in 1890. Because of the court's increasing caseload, commissioners were appointed for a brief period in the 1880s. In 1911, the legislature authorized the court to appoint four commissioners, and in 1927, the number was changed to six. The commissioners were required to possess the same qualifications as judges of the Supreme Court. They received the same compensation and were appointed for four-year terms. The commissioners heard cases along with the judges, and their written opinions, if approved by the court, were issued as opinions of the court.

Under terms of the 1970 constitutional amendment of article V, the offices of the commissioners ceased to exist when the individuals holding the offices retired, resigned, died or were removed from office.

In 1890, the Supreme Court was divided into two divisions to permit it to handle and decide more cases in a shorter time. Under the present constitution, the court may sit en banc (all seven judges together) or in as many divisions as the court determines are needed. Today, all cases are assigned to and decided by the court en banc.

Supreme Court Jurisdiction

Originally, the Supreme Court had only the traditional powers to decide cases on appeal from the lower courts (either the circuit courts or the court of appeals) and to issue and determine original remedial writs, such as those in habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition. The Constitution of 1945 also authorized the court to establish rules for practice and procedure in the courts and to make temporary transfers of judicial personnel from court to court. Maintaining and updating the rules is a continuous process requiring substantial time. Each year, the Supreme Court, through its Office of State Courts Administrator, transfers several hundred court personnel on a temporary basis to assist other courts. This usually is done when a judge has been disqualified by the parties in a case or when a judge's docket has become overly crowded and the judge cannot handle all the cases expeditiously.

The constitutional amendments of 1976 and 1982 defined the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court more narrowly than in the past, resulting in its receiving fewer cases on appeal and directing more appeals to the court of appeals. Now the Supreme Court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction in all cases involving: the validity of a treaty or statute of the United States or of a statute or provision of the Missouri Constitution; the construction of the state's revenue laws; the title to any state office; and the death penalty.

Cases do not have to fall within this area of exclusive jurisdiction, however, to reach the Supreme Court. The court may order cases transferred to it from the court of appeals if the cases involve questions of general interest or importance, if the court believes the existing law should be reexamined, or for other reasons provided by rule of the court. The court of appeals also may order a case transferred to the Supreme Court either by order of the court of appeals itself or by the dissent of a court of appeals judge, if that judge certifies the court of appeals opinion is contrary to previous decisions of the Supreme Court or of other districts of the court of appeals.

In addition to its decision-making powers, the Supreme Court supervises all lower courts in the state. It is assisted in this task by its Office of State Courts Administrator, established in 1970. The Supreme Court also licenses all lawyers practicing in Missouri and disciplines those found guilty of violating the legal rules of professional conduct.

Qualifications and Terms

Supreme Court judges must be at least 30 years of age, U.S. citizens for 15 years and qualified Missouri voters for nine years. Supreme Court judges are retained for 12-year terms. They earn $137,034 annually. Compensation is determined by statute (section 476.405, RSMo).

Chief Justice

The seven judges of the Supreme Court select one of their members to be chief justice and preside over the court. The chief justice also handles many of the administrative details for the court. The present practice of the court is to rotate the position of chief justice every two years. The chief justice earns $139,534 annually. Compensation is determined by statute (section 476.405, RSMo).

During his time in St. Louis, Judge Wolff was active in trial practice and was co-author of Federal Jury Practice and Instructions, (4th edition) and numerous other publications. As a law school teacher, he has taught a variety of courses and was a recipient of the law school's Teaching Excellence Award. Judge Wolff also was on the faculty of the University's School of Medicine and School of Public Health. He is a member of the American Law Institute.

In 1992, Judge Wolff was Transition Director for Governor-elect Mel Carnahan, served as Chief Counsel to the governor in 1993-1994, and was Special Counsel to the governor 1994-1998 after returning to the law school.

Wolff also served from 1993-1998 as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Missouri Consolidated Health Care Plan, the health insurance program for public employees. Wolff was a candidate for attorney general in 1998 and 1992.

In addition to the Missouri Bar, Judge Wolff is a member of the Lawyers Association of St. Louis and the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis. He also has served several charitable and educational organizations in various capacities.

GREG LINHARES
State Courts Administrator

Acting under the direction of the Supreme Court of Missouri, the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) is responsible for providing administrative and technical support to the courts of Missouri as they pursue a judicial system that is accessible, equitable, and swift. The duties and responsibilities assigned to the state courts administrator are broad in scope and relate to all levels of the state court system.

Since the appointment of the first state courts administrator in 1970, the office has been responsible for providing technical assistance, management services, education and training programs, data processing and systems analysis, administrative procedure evaluation, compilation of statistics, and case processing support to the courts. The office also assists courts in developing and implementing court improvement projects in such areas as child abuse and neglect, juvenile services, family preservation, criminal history reporting, debt collection and judgment enforcement, crime victims' rights, mediation services, alcohol and drug abuse treatment and prevention, and the implementation of time standards for case disposition. With the passage of SB420 in 1994, the office has worked with the Missouri Court Automation Committee to automate all the courts in the state and, through the use of advanced technologies, provide Missouri citizens with the most timely and responsive judicial system possible. The office is organized into five divisions and one office: Administration and Budget, Court Programs and Research, Court Services, Information Technology, Judicial Education, and the Office for Project Management.

Administration and Budget

Administration and Budget provides essential administrative services and maintains programs developed to assist the judiciary. Budget staff compile and organize the Judiciary's annual state appropriation request, fiscal notes are provided for proposed legislation that would have an effect on the judicial system, and support is provided to the Circuit and Appellate Court Budget committees.

Fiscal staff is responsible for processing and accounting for all funds appropriated to the Supreme Court of Missouri for those judicial operations paid by the state and contract staff is responsible for administering contracts for the judiciary. In addition, the section also monitors and authorizes bill payment for all Missouri drug courts.

Sponsored programs staff develop internal and external partnerships with national, state and local funding sources. Grant funds are managed for areas such as improving child abuse/neglect case management, statewide juvenile court automation, automation of criminal history dispositions, electronic filing of adult protection orders, and improvement of mediation and other alternative dispute resolutions programs.

Finally, Administration and Budget provides legislative support to the judiciary, performs office management functions for OSCA, and handles a wide array of requests for information from the Legislature, Governor's Office, other public officials and the public in general.

Court Programs and Research

Court Programs and Research provides critical support in statistical analysis and program evaluation. Additionally, this division assists courts in developing and managing a wide range of innovative programs designed to improve case outcomes.

Program staff work with issues involving child abuse and neglect, foster care and adoption, divorce education programs for parents and children, alternative dispute resolution such as mediation in child custody and visitation disputes, domestic violence, juvenile victim/offender situations, adult, juvenile, and family drug courts, and other specialized courts such as mental health and unified family courts to improve court services to the public. Federally funded pilot projects to establish permanency planning for abused and neglected children placed in foster care are in progress as well.

Access to Justice staff provide technical assistance in courthouse design related to the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act, certify foreign language court interpreters, and identify resources for the courts to provide services for both non-English speaking parties and those persons covered by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Security staff provide technical assistance related to security for courthouse design, perform security assessments of court facilities, assist in developing court security and emergency planning programs and policies and develop security and safety training for court employees.

GARY WAINT
Deputy Administrator

WALT FISCHER
Director of Administration and Budget

NANCY GRIGGS
Director of Court Services

MICHAEL J. ROGGERO
Director of Information Technology

The Research Unit is developing new capacity to advance knowledge in the areas of juvenile and criminal justice, case processing, and other topics related to Missouri courts. The unit manages the following ongoing tasks: compilation of statistical caseload information, estimation of workload impacts of various legislative initiatives as well as workload estimates for judicial resource management, technical assistance to court personnel regarding research methods and utilization of the Judicial Information System to produce reports.

The Research Unit is expanding the following capacities: design, implementation, and provision of technical assistance of program evaluations; forecasting future judicial resources needs; court performance measurement; longitudinal studies of court program and population behaviors; and dissemination of analyses in multiple media outlets including self-published reports, conference presentations, and peer-reviewed journals.

Court Services

Court Services acts as a bureau for all court personnel statewide by: 1) developing procedures related to case processing and financial management; 2) preparing transcripts from sound recorded tapes submitted by the courts; 3) developing and updating procedural handbooks on case processing for court clerks; 4) providing on-site case processing reviews to make recommendations for improved efficiency; and 5) managing statewide debt collection efforts.

Court Services staff work closely with the software provider and court staff from around the state to customize software and continually monitor changing practices and legal requirements over time so that the software is updated as necessary. Staff also design and test software to share automated court information electronically with other agencies. Some examples are criminal case dispositions provided to Missouri State Highway Patrol for the criminal history repository, traffic case dispositions provided to Department of Revenue and Missouri State Highway Patrol, court hearings provided to Missouri Office for Victims of Crime MOVANS program, ex parte adult abuse orders to Missouri State Highway Patrol MULES.

One of the key functions of Court Services staff is to assist the courts with case management and financial accounting systems. OSCA staff provides on-site assistance several weeks after the court implements the automated system. After the court is automated, both financial specialists and court specialists provide telephone support and follow-up site visits.

In addition, a statewide court jury management automated system is maintained for use throughout the courts. Court Services coordinates court training, assists courts with forms design and procedural changes, and provides telephone and on-site support to the courts.

Information Technology

Information Technology (OSCA-IT) provides information technology management support for all Missouri courts and OSCA. The division is responsible for technical analysis, design, development, implementation, maintenance, quality assurance, and technical support for the systems that Missouri courts require. OSCA-IT provides this support exclusively to most courts, but also works in conjunction with the few metropolitan courts that have information technology staff on-location.

In 1994, Missouri Revised Statutes section 476.055 established a statewide court automation program and some offset funding with a $7 per-case court fee. The program oversight was given to the Missouri Court Automation Committee, under the Supreme Court of Missouri. OSCA-IT has been actively involved with the Court Automation Committee, which was recognized internationally in 2003 with a Gold Medal of Achievement from the Computerworld Honors Program.

In April 2008, Missouri completed its eleven-year project of implementing its statewide case management system, allowing for the electronic exchange of data between all Missouri state courts and several government agencies as well. The completion of this work has resulted in great benefits to the citizens of Missouri, and the Information Technology staff now retain responsibility for keeping this system operational for the long term.

One of the most relevant examples of this electronic exchange has been the ability of courts using the statewide case management system to electronically transfer ex parte orders of protection to the law enforcement system, providing immediate information to law enforcement officers and rapid protection for victims of domestic violence.

OSCA-IT also provides additional technical support for the office in the areas of judicial transfer, fiscal notes and inventory control. The staff develops special reports to assist in workload analysis, judicial research and special legislative requests.

Judicial Education

Judicial Education is responsible for coordinating education services for state court employees and judges. These services are designed to ensure the courts have access to a highly skilled, professional workforce that is technologically literate, conversant with practices that aid in the internal management of the courts, and oriented towards a high level of customer service.

The Coordinating Commission for Judicial Education provides strategic direction for a comprehensive statewide education program. The Commission has built a comprehensive education program that affords opportunities to acquire and enhance technical knowledge and skills, and supervisory and leadership skills and abilities.

Judicial Education is responsible for implementing the policies and programs established by the Coordinating Commission and its committees. Judicial Education offers a broad range of courses and certificate programs for court personnel. Education specialists, working with education committees and court personnel, design and coordinate the delivery of courses tailored to meet the unique needs of appellate, trial and municipal court personnel, including judges, clerks, juvenile officers, and court reporters. All courses are designed to provide court personnel with the knowledge and skills essential to discharging their judicial and administrative responsibilities. In addition, Judicial Education is responsible for developing and implementing alternative delivery methods of educational programming through the use of technology, which includes: web-based and computer-based learning, videoconferencing, and satellite broadcasts.

Missouri Court of Appeals

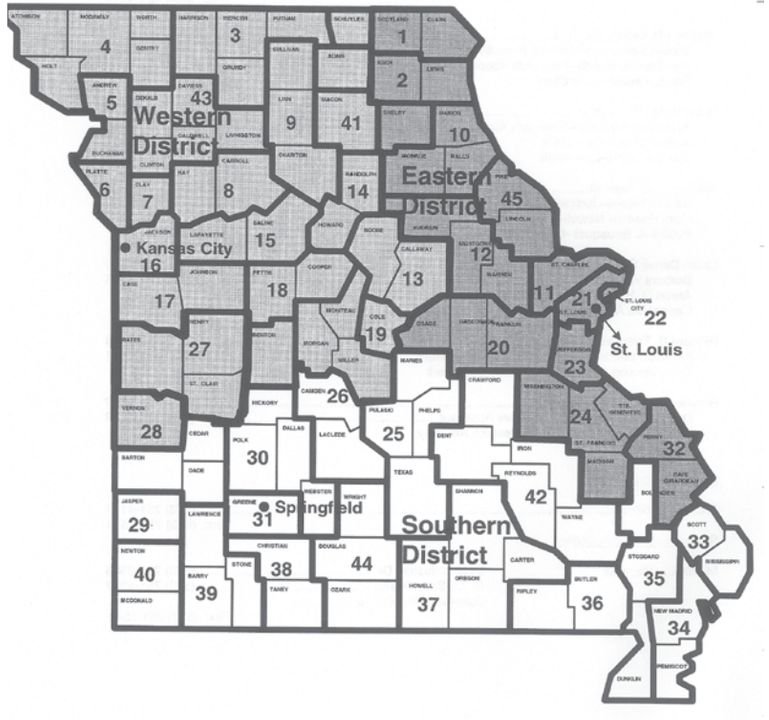
The Constitution of 1865 provided for Missouri's first general intermediate courts, known as district courts. There were district courts in Cape Girardeau, Jefferson City, Macon, St. Charles, St. Joseph and Springfield. Each district was composed of three circuits. Appeals were taken from the circuit court to the district court and then to the Supreme Court. The district courts, however, were abolished in 1870 by a constitutional amendment.

Alarmed at the congested docket of the Supreme Court, the St. Louis Bar Association urged the 1875 Constitutional Convention to provide for another appellate court. As a result, the convention created the St. Louis Court of Appeals, consisting of three judges who heard appeals from Lincoln, St. Charles St. Louis, and Warren counties. Its territorial jurisdiction was expanded to include several more counties in 1884.

Another constitutional amendment in 1884 established the Kansas City Court of Appeals and authorized creation of another appellate court, when necessary, by the General Assembly.

The Springfield Court of Appeals was organized in 1909. Missouri's current appellate structure—a single Court of Appeals consisting of three geographic districts—was established by a 1970 constitutional amendment.

The Eastern District of the Court of Appeals sits in St. Louis and consists of 14 judges. Eleven judges preside over the Western District in Kansas City, and seven judges sit on the Southern District bench, meeting either in Springfield or Poplar Bluff. Trained law clerks, who are licensed attorneys, assist each appellate judge with legal research.



The Court of Appeals may issue and determine original remedial writs and has general appellate jurisdiction in all cases not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Cases not within the Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction, however, may be transferred from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court when it is determined that a case involves a split among the districts of the Court of Appeals or an important issue that should be decided by the state's highest court.

A chief judge is elected for the Eastern and Southern districts of the Court of Appeals by the judges in the districts and serves for such time as the districts determine. Traditionally, the chief judge in the Eastern District serves for one year, while the chief judge in the Southern District serves for two years. In the Western District, the chief judge serves a two-year term by rotation according to seniority.

The districts are authorized to sit in divisions of three judges if they choose, which all three districts have elected to do.

Courts of Appeals judges must be at least 30 years of age, residents of their district, U.S. citizens for 15 years and qualified Missouri voters for nine years before their selection. Appeals judges serve 12-year terms. They earn $128,207 annually. Compensation is determined by statute (section 476.405, RSMo).

Missouri's 45 Judicial Circuits

Missouri Circuit Courts

Missouri's first two circuit courts were established in 1815. The 1820 Constitution provided for the creation of four circuits, each containing from four to eight counties. The number of circuits has increased over the years; today, 45 circuits operate in Missouri.

The first circuit judges were appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The life term of the judges and their method of appointment proved unpopular, however; in 1850, the constitution was amended to provide for popular election. Most circuit judges are elected today, although judges in six circuits – Clay, Greene, Jackson, Platte and St. Louis counties and the city of St. Louis – are selected under provisions of the Nonpartisan Court Plan.

Constitutional amendments approved by Missouri voters in 1976 provide that the circuit courts shall be courts of original civil and criminal jurisdiction. All trials start at this level. Former courts of limited jurisdiction became divisions of the circuit court effective January 2, 1979.

Within the divisions of the circuit court there are three levels of jurisdiction: circuit, associate and municipal. Circuit judges may act within all circuit jurisdictions.

The number of circuit judges is determined by the General Assembly. The constitution requires at least one circuit judge in each of Missouri's 45 judicial circuits.

Associate circuit judges may hear matters pending in the circuit court or assigned by the Supreme Court. Associate circuit judges hear all cases pursuant to chapter 517, RSMo, and have concurrent jurisdiction over all cases pending in the circuit court.

The constitution requires at least one resident associate circuit judge in each county. The statutes authorize additional associate circuit judges depending on county populations. Presently, 187 associate circuit judges are required by statute.

Municipalities with 400,000 or more people must establish a municipal division over which a municipal judge presides. Communities of fewer than 400,000 people may establish municipal divisions to hear ordinance violations, or the municipality may request that these matters be heard in the associate division of the circuit court. Municipal judges are paid locally.

By statute, each circuit judge appoints a court reporter, and the court in each circuit appoints a juvenile officer. A circuit clerk in each county is selected according to law, and salaries are set by statute.

Circuit court judges must be at least 30 years old, residents of their circuit, U.S. citizens for 10 years and Missouri voters for three years. Circuit judges serve six-year terms. Associate circuit judges must be at least 25 years old, Missouri voters and residents of the counties they serve. Associate circuit judges serve four-year terms.

Circuit court judges each earn $120,484 annually; associate circuit court judges earn $109,366. Compensation is determined by statute (section 476.405, RSMo).

The Fine Collection Center

The Supreme Court of Missouri established the Fine Collection Center (FCC) pursuant to section 476.385, RSMo. The FCC is a central bureau authorized by statute to process certain traffic, conservation and watercraft violations for the courts of counties that voluntarily join the center's program. The center began operation July 1, 1999, and 90 Missouri counties were members of the program as of July 1, 2007. Offenders who receive citations in participating counties have the option of pleading guilty by paying their fine and costs directly to the FCC or pleading not guilty and having their citations sent to the county prosecutor for processing in the court system.

The Supreme Court appoints the director of the FCC. Since April 2004, the ACS Corporation has performed most fine collection citation processing services under a contract with the state courts. The director of the center oversees the operation of the center by ACS. The Supreme Court also appoints a FCC Committee of at least seven associate circuit court judges. This committee provides oversight and policy guidance for the FCC program and establishes and maintains a uniform fine schedule to be used by the FCC. Counties that voluntarily join the program must agree to use the uniform fine schedule. This fine schedule contains all traffic, conservation and watercraft offenses that the FCC is authorized to process.

The FCC fine schedule sets uniform fines for the same offenses in all counties participating in the FCC program, resulting in a more equitable system for offenders. Benefits of participating in the FCC include better accountability, improved collection rates and a reduction in clerical workload associated with processing citations that allows court staff to redirect their efforts to other areas. The FCC also provides user-friendly customer service at a toll free number (877-866-3926) that offenders can call from anywhere within the United States. The FCC accepts payment by check, money order or credit cards, making payment more convenient for offenders. The FCC also has an automated system that allows payment 24 hours a day by phone at a toll-free number or over the Internet.

When an offender pays a citation to the FCC, the center legally is authorized to issue a record of conviction. Records of conviction for traffic offenses are prepared the same business day that the FCC receives the offender's guilty plea and payment of the fine and costs. The FCC electronically transmits these records of conviction each day to the Missouri Department of Revenue for entry on the offender's driving records and to the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

The FCC sends payments of fines and court costs to member county treasurers at the first of each month. The FCC keeps no part of the fine or costs. The county where the offense occurred receives all the fine money and the entire county's share of court costs for each case. The FCC sends courts costs and fees designated for state agencies directly to those agencies.

Judicial Organizations

Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline

2190 S. Mason Rd., Ste. 201
St. Louis 63131
Telephone: (314) 966-1007 / FAX: (314) 966-0076

The Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of judges was created by a constitutional amendment in 1970. It began operating January 1, 1972, and is governed by Supreme Court Rule 12.

The commission is responsible for receiving and investigating all requests and suggestions for the retirement of judges because of disability and all complaints concerning the alleged misconduct of judges and members of judicial commissions. It is composed of six members who serve six-year terms. Two non-lawyers are appointed by the governor, two lawyers are appointed by the Missouri Bar's governing body, one court of appeals judge is selected by court of appeals judges and one circuit judge is selected by the state's circuit judges.

The members as of January 1, 2009, were: David L. Dowd, circuit judge, 22nd Judicial Circuit (city of St. Louis); Joseph M. Ellis, appellate judge, Court of Appeals, Western District; Jennifer Gille Bacon, attorney, Kansas City; Barbara N. Bennett, lay member, St. Louis; Adrienne B. Morgan, lay member, Chesterfield; and Sheldon K. Stock, attorney, St. Louis.

On receiving a proper complaint against a judge or other judicial officer, the commission conducts an informal investigation. If at least four members of the commission find there is probable cause to believe the person may be guilty of misconduct, incompetency or other action constituting grounds for discipline as listed in Rule 12.08, a formal investigation is conducted. If at least four members find the person investigated should be disciplined, a report containing findings of fact and conclusions of law is made to the Supreme Court with recommendations for discipline (removal from office, suspension or other discipline). The court then makes a final ruling based on the commission's record and transcript.

A similar procedure is followed in cases involving retirements because of disability.

To protect the public from persons unqualified or unauthorized to practice law, the Supreme Court of Missouri has established an attorney discipline system. The Supreme Court appoints a chief disciplinary counsel to investigate allegations of professional misconduct, incompetence and incapacity of lawyers. The Court also has established an Advisory Committee, which oversees the disciplinary hearings process. Complaints filed against attorneys are reviewed by the Office of Chief Disciplinary Counsel. Regional disciplinary committees throughout the state, composed of at least four lawyers and two lay persons, also may investigate complaints referred to them by the chief disciplinary counsel or the Advisory Committee.

If the chief disciplinary counsel or a majority of a regional disciplinary committee finds that there is probable cause to believe that a lawyer is guilty of professional misconduct, they may issue a written admonition to the attorney or file an information making specific allegations of the lawyer's violations of the Rules of Professional Conduct. The lawyer may request a hearing to be held before a disciplinary hearing panel composed of two lawyers and one lay person, all of whom are appointed as disciplinary hearing officers by the Supreme Court. If the disciplinary hearing panel finds, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the lawyer is guilty of misconduct, it makes findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations for discipline, which then are filed in the Supreme Court. It is the Supreme Court's responsibility to impose any warranted discipline. If a lawyer who has been suspended or disbarred later seeks reinstatement, the chief disciplinary counsel investigates the application. The chief disciplinary counsel also investigates the unauthorized practice of law and institutes suits and other actions to stop such practices. The chief disciplinary counsel is Alan Pratzel.

In addition to providing oversight of the disciplinary hearing process, the Advisory Committee reviews complaint files that have been closed after investigation, at the request of the complainant. It also may issue formal ethics opinions, interpreting Supreme Court Rules 4, 5 and 6. Members of the Advisory Committee, appointed by the Supreme Court are: Jennifer Gille Bacon, Kansas City, chair; Susan Appelquist, Springfield; Richard E. Banks, St. Louis; Al Brooks, Kansas City; Doreen D. Dodson, St. Louis; Sidney Dulle, Jefferson City; Hon. John C. Holstein, Springfield; David P. Macoubrie, Chillicothe; Christina R. Neff, Jefferson City; Richard N. Priest, St. Louis; Richard G. Steele, Cape Girardeau; and Dorothy White-Coleman, St. Louis.

The legal ethics counsel, who serves as counsel to the Advisory Committee, may give nonbinding informal advisory opinions, interpreting Supreme Court Rules 4, 5 and 6, to members of the Bar. The legal ethics counsel is Sara Rittman.

The Missouri Bar is the official organization of all Missouri lawyers and judges. Established by rule of the Supreme Court of Missouri in 1944, it is the successor of the original Missouri Bar Association, a voluntary organization of lawyers founded in 1880.

Membership in the Missouri Bar is required of every lawyer who practices in Missouri and of every judge of a state court. To qualify for membership, a person must have completed an approved law school leading to a juris doctor degree. Those seeking membership in the Missouri Bar also must pass a comprehensive bar examination and character and fitness investigation and make application for admission to the bar with the Supreme Court of Missouri.

Committees

There are numerous standing committees of the Missouri Bar plus a number of special project committees. Committees of the Missouri Bar meet at least twice each year to discuss particular areas of the law and, in some cases, draft potential legislation in those areas. Committee members, as well as officers and other members of the Missouri Bar, are available to testify before the General Assembly in support of those bills. In addition, the bar's board of governors often votes to support or oppose other bills pending before the legislature and the bar's legislative services are directed accordingly. Because of its status as a mandatory organization for those practicing law in Missouri, the bar's legislative efforts are confined to bills affecting the administration of justice.

Education

The Missouri Bar's Continuing Legal Education Department (MoBarCLE) has taken the lead in keeping bar members informed of the latest developments in the law. Each year, the CLE Department organizes and presents a number of programs—live, videotaped and by telephone—to keep lawyers abreast of changes in state and federal laws. These sessions are regularly accompanied by detailed course materials designed to supplement the programs themselves. In addition, the department's renowned deskbook series (the "black books") and supplements provide attorneys with valuable reference materials they can make use of in their own law libraries.

Publications/Public Information

The Journal of the Missouri Bar, offering valuable perspectives on the law from its lawyer-authors, is published six times per year as the official publication of the legal profession in Missouri. Also available to members are the Legislative Digest, published during and after each year's session of the General Assembly; Precedent, a quarterly publication featuring practice-oriented articles and columns; and The Courts Bulletin, a monthly update on recent court decisions in pertinent areas of the law.

For more than 50 years, the Missouri Bar has conducted a broad program of public information and education. Thousands of informative pamphlets and other educational materials about the law are distributed annually, including materials from an extensive law-related education audio-visual lending library. Copies of the bar's brochures are also available on the Internet at www.mobar.org. The growth of the bar's public information programs has been aided by cooperative ventures with the Extension Division of the University of Missouri, the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, the Missouri Press Association, the Missouri Broadcasters Association, various state colleges, and other groups and associations.

Other Activities

Other prominent programs and services offered by the Missouri Bar include: a Client Security Fund that considers partial financial reimbursement to eligible clients who have been harmed by the unethical conduct of a lawyer; a Lawyer Referral Service that links attorneys with Missourians in need of legal assistance; a Lawyers Assistance Program that offers help to lawyers hindered by impairment issues; a mentoring program that matches older, more experienced attorneys with younger colleagues; a complaint resolution program that offers an alternative to the formal lawyer disciplinary system for matters considered to be less serious in nature; a fee-dispute resolution program that works to resolve disputes between a lawyer and a client over fees charged for services; and many more.

Through the years, the Missouri Bar has gained recognition on the national and international level. It has been cited many times by the American Bar Association as the outstanding bar organization in the nation. Its programs have won Freedom Foundation awards, the American Bar Association Award of Merit and the American Judicature Society's Justice Award. Similarly, staff members and officers serve on many important national committees and work with various national groups on problems of national scope.

In 1943, the General Assembly established the Judicial Conference of Missouri, which is composed of all state judges. The conference is charged by statute (section 476.350, RSMo) with studying the organization and administration of the state's judicial system, compiling data about the work of various courts and making biennial reports to the General Assembly, including any recommendations the conference may have for improving the laws. Since 1974, the chief justice of the Supreme Court, who is the conference's presiding officer, has presented an annual State of the Judiciary address to a joint session of the General Assembly, reviewing the problems, needs and goals of the judicial branch.

The statute also requires the conference to hold an annual meeting to be attended by all judges. At this meeting, the judges discuss the problems of court administration and invite experts in various fields to speak about matters of particular concern.

The clerk of the Supreme Court provides administrative and staff assistance and also serves as secretary to the executive council and the conference.

Nonpartisan Judicial Nominating Commissions

Under provisions of article V of the Missouri Constitution, any vacancy occurring in the office of judge of the Supreme Court, the court of appeals or the circuit courts within St. Louis City or Jackson County is filled through the "Nonpartisan Selection of Judges Court Plan," adopted through initiative petition at the November 1940 general election, which provides for the governor to appoint one of three qualified persons nominated by a nonpartisan judicial commission. This method of selecting judges was adopted by the voters of the 21st Judicial Circuit (St. Louis County) in 1970; by the voters of the Sixth Judicial Circuit (Platte County) and the Seventh Judicial Circuit (Clay County) in 1973; and by the voters of the 31st Judicial Circuit (Greene County) in November 2008.

Under the Missouri Plan, as it often is called nationally, a vacancy on a court to which the plan applies is filled in the following way. A nonpartisan judicial commission of lay persons, lawyers and a judge selects three persons from those who apply, based on merit. The governor appoints one of the three. A judge appointed in this way must stand for retention in office at the first general election occurring after the judge has been in office for 12 months. The judge's name is placed on a separate judicial ballot, without political party designation, and the voters must vote either for or against retention in office. The judge's name again is placed on the ballot for a retention vote at certain intervals if the judge wishes to serve subsequent terms. The Missouri Plan has served as a national model for the selection of judges and has been adopted by a number of other states.

Appellate Judicial Commission

Nominations for judges of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals are made by a seven-member Appellate Judicial Commission. It consists of a judge of the Supreme Court selected by the members of the Court and two resident citizens from each of the three court of appeals districts. One lawyer is elected from each district by members of the Missouri Bar residing in that district, and one non-lawyer is appointed from each district by the governor. The judge member serves a two-year term, while the other members serve staggered terms of six years each.

Members: William Ray Price Jr., Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Missouri, chair.

The Office of State Public Defender is created by Section 600.019.1., RSMo as an independent department within the judicial branch of state government.

The Missouri Public Defender System (MSPD) is the state agency created to fulfill the state's constitutional obligation to ensure that all persons accused of crime in its courts have the assistance of counsel in their defense. MSPD's lawyers provide legal representation to persons who are charged with or challenging convictions for state criminal offenses but do not have the means available to hire defense counsel.

Public Defender Commission

State law (Chapter 600, RSMo) provides for a seven-member Public Defender Commission to oversee the State Public Defender System. The members of the commission are appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate and serve without compensation for six-year terms. Four members must be lawyers, and no more than four members may be of the same political party.

MSPD is a statewide department primarily comprised of three legal service divisions: the Trial Division, the Capital Division, and the Appellate/Post-Conviction Division. Attorneys in district offices within each division provide direct representation to indigent clients.

Their practice includes: meeting with clients, investigating cases, drafting motions, briefs, and memoranda, trying cases before both judges and juries in jurisdictions throughout Missouri, litigating cases before Missouri Appellate Courts, the Missouri Supreme Court, and the United States Supreme Court.

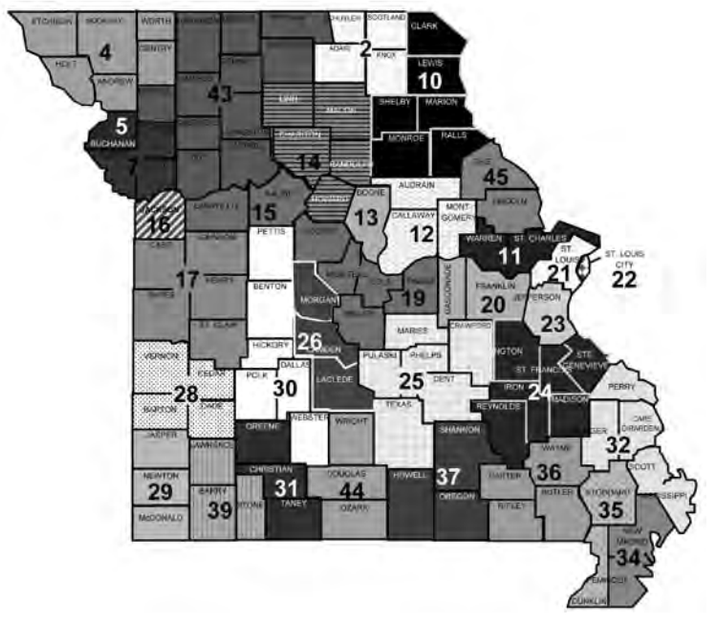
Trial Division

The Trial Division employs close to 300 full-time attorneys as well as investigators, paralegals, legal assistants, and sentencing specialists who evaluate client treatment needs and locate available resources to reduce client recidivism. Trial Division attorneys represent both adult and juvenile indigent clients charged with crimes at the state trial court level throughout Missouri.

The Commitment Defense Unit represents indigent people throughout the State of Missouri against whom the government has initiated civil commitment proceedings based on the allegation that the citizen is a "sexually violent predator" (SVP). The unit was created in 1999 in response to Missouri's sexually violent predator legislation. This legislation enables the state to incarcerate individuals after they have completed their sentences for eligible sex offenses, and allows for indefinite civil commitment upon a jury finding that an individual meets the legislative criteria of a SVP.



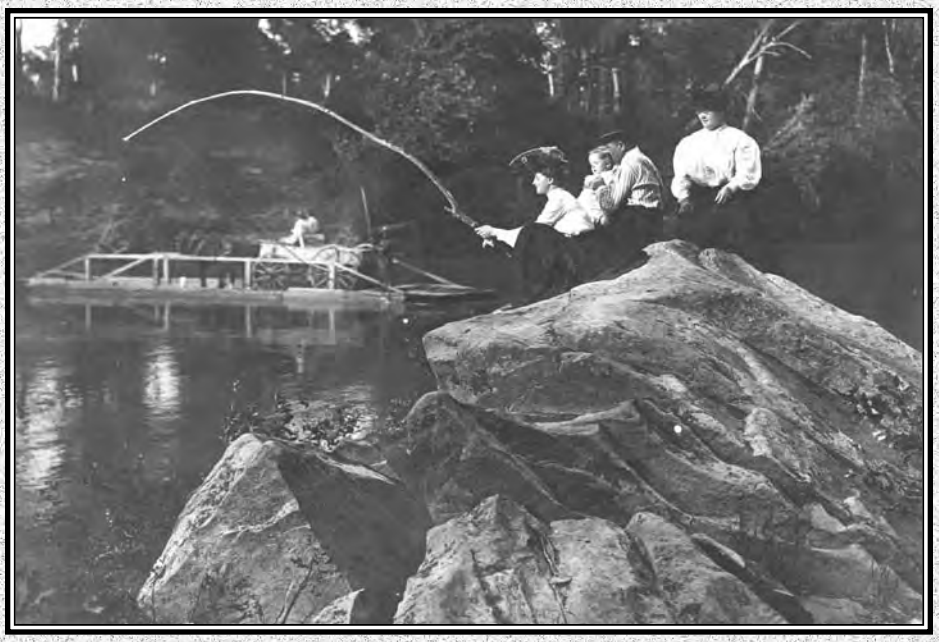
Capital Division

The Capital Division of MSPD was established in 1989 to handle the complex litigation involved when the state seeks the death penalty. The purpose of this division is to provide the highest-quality representation to individuals against whom the state of Missouri is seeking the death penalty in the State Trial Court, the State Supreme Court, and the United States Supreme Court.

The division employs experienced attorneys who excel as litigators to handle the initial trial of the case. The division also employs experienced attorneys with exceptional appellate advocacy skills to handle the direct appeal of cases following a trial and sentence of death.

There are three Capital Division district offices within the state, located in St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia. Trial attorneys in the division have the opportunity to try cases in both the urban and rural areas of Missouri.

Missouri State Public Defender Trial Division District Map



Division of Appellate/Post-Conviction Relief

This division ensures that the constitutional rights of citizens are preserved and protected, and that the trial or guilty-plea process was fair and legal. In essence, the division monitors and provides quality-control for the criminal judicial process.

There are six district offices in this division. The offices are located in St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia in close proximity to most of Missouri's appellate courts.

Attorneys in this division provide representation to indigent citizens who have been convicted of felony offenses, after either a trial or a guilty plea. These attorneys handle direct appeals from non-capital felony convictions, post-conviction trial court challenges and appeals from post-conviction proceedings. The post-conviction practice includes providing aggressive representation to death-row clients at the trial-court level, and in the Supreme Courts of Missouri and the United States.

Executive Departments

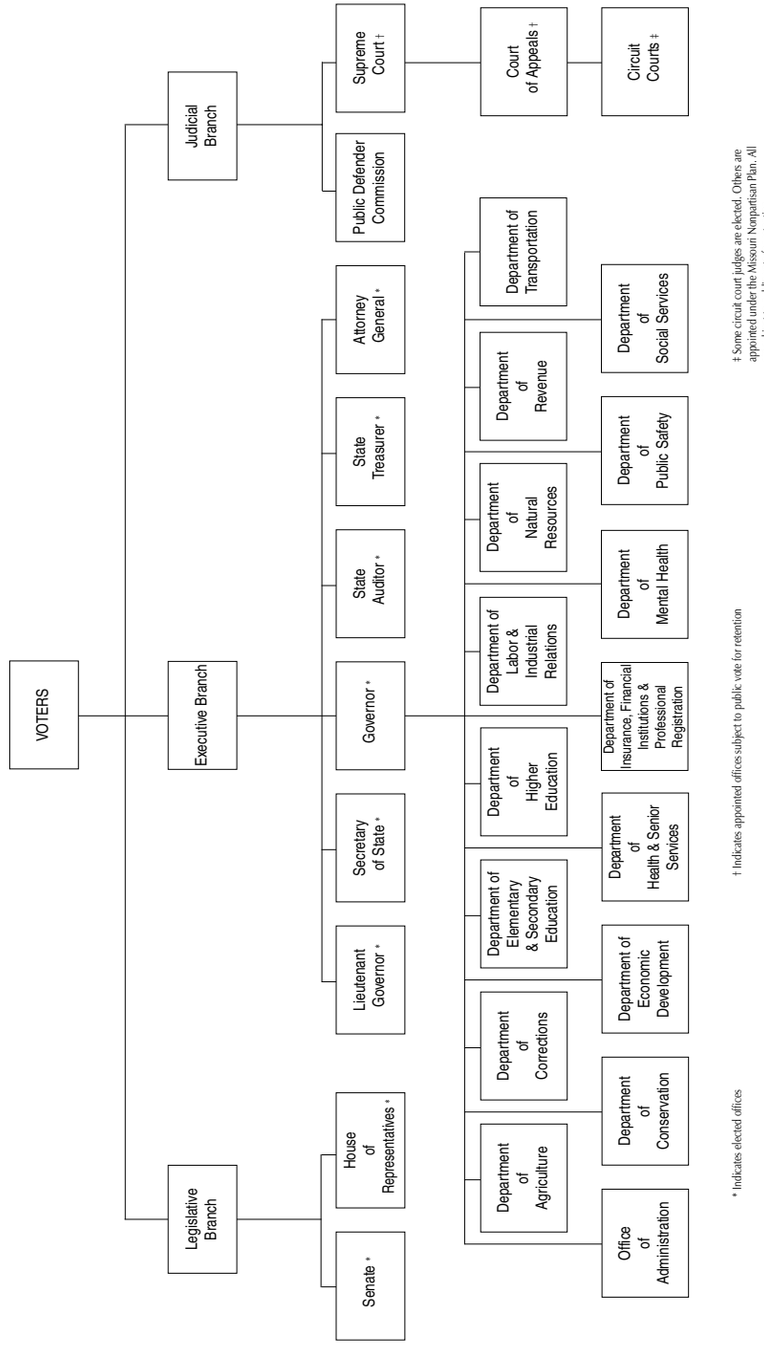
Government exists to serve, and a broad network of government organizations has been created to accomplish the purpose. The Missouri Constitution (Article II, Section 1) states: "The powers of government shall be divided into three distinct departments—the legislative, executive and judicial." This section also prohibits persons within each branch from exercising powers of the other branches. From these three branches spring the variety of organizations which deliver services of state government.

The many different names used by these groups—departments, divisions, agencies, boards, commissions, bureaus, units, sections, programs and others—can make it difficult to determine which area of government is responsible for certain services, and sorting out responsibilities or relationships within the governmental framework.

It is through the executive branch that the greatest proportion of state services are delivered. The Constitution (Article IV, Section 12) and the Reorganization Act of 1974 have established a number of "executive departments" to deal with specific areas of interest. A chart showing the present state departments is shown on the following page.

The Missouri Constitution provides for 16 specific departments: the Office of Administration and the departments of Agriculture, Conservation, Corrections, Economic Development, Elementary and Secondary Education, Health and Senior Services, Higher Education, Insurance, Financial Institutions and Professional Registration, Labor and Industrial Relations, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Public Safety, Revenue, Social Services and Transportation.

Within each executive department exists a variety of offices of varying size and scope which deal with specific services. Traditionally, "divisions" are the next-largest organizations within departments and function to bring together smaller-sized groups, such as "bureaus," "sections" or "units." Divisions may be governed by a "board" or "commission" composed of members who are either appointed by the governor, made members by law or appointed by a department official. State agencies may administer certain sections of state law as defined by the Revised Statutes of Missouri, may develop their own rules and regulations as promulgated in the Missouri Register and Code of State Regulations or may institute programs and policies which address the needs of their areas of service.



Generally speaking, the legislative and judicial branches rely on committees or other small, appointed groups to perform research, develop policy, provide advocacy services or handle administrative duties. In these two branches services are delivered through the offices of the elected officials themselves and not by related agencies.

The Missouri Constitution

Since achieving statehood and joining the union on August 10, 1821, Missouri has operated under four Constitutions. The first was adopted in 1820 and was presented to Congress before Missouri was allowed to enter the union of states. The state's second Constitution, born in the bitterness and strife of the Civil War, was drafted and adopted in 1865. It was replaced by a third Constitution only ten years later, in 1875. Missourians approved their current Constitution in 1945, and it has been amended a number of times in order to meet the changing needs of our state and its people.

The Constitution of the State of Missouri is published by the Office of Secretary of State pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Missouri (RSMo 2.110). Copies of the Missouri Constitution, which also includes the text of the U.S. Constitution, are available without charge by contacting:

The mission of the Information Technology Services Division (ITSD) is to provide technology and communication services and solutions to the state's departments and agencies so that they can efficiently and effectively serve the citizens of Missouri.

Under the leadership of the chief information officer, Missouri's information technology services division combines the staff and resources from fourteen of the executive branch departments into the ITSD as a single unified entity. The new organizational model allows for enterprise standards and guidance in the common areas of security, networking, data management, server administration, end user support, technical architecture and application management while maintaining a department focused perspective on service delivery.

Working in tandem with other state agencies through the Information Technology Advisory Board and other committees, ITSD aims to deliver available, reliable and accessible IT systems and services in an environment striving for optimization, collaboration, productivity and cost savings.

The Missouri Merit System is based on the principles of merit and fitness as determined by competitive examinations for employment, as well as objective and consistent human resource management policies and procedures. The system also grants employees the ability to appeal disciplinary actions. Approximately 34,000 state employees in six state departments and sections of three other departments comprise the Missouri Merit System.

The Uniform Classification and Pay (UCP) system is designed to promote equity in pay among state employees in most executive branch agencies and to provide coordinated compensation policies. The Division of Personnel is also responsible for the oversight of the statewide performance appraisal system.

The Division of Personnel is comprised of two sections:

Employee Services reviews applications for employment; ensures employees are assigned to appropriate job classes; develops and administers position classifications for agencies covered by the UCP; and develops, updates and administers merit system examinations.

Pay, Leave and Reporting provides information on the UCP system pay plan; interprets policies on pay, leave and hours of work; provides workforce reports and assistance with the SAM II HR/Payroll System; maintains lists of individuals from whom agencies can select for Merit System jobs; ensures personnel transactions are in compliance with state personnel law; coordinates labor relations activities statewide, develops and delivers statewide supervisory training and management programs; and provides administration of statewide employee recognition programs.

tive tribunal that decides disputes involving state agencies and another party, usually a private person or corporation. The AHC typically decides the cases after a trial-type hearing. It hears evidence and arguments from the state agency and from the other party. Any party, including the state agency, may seek review of the AHC decision from the judicial branch.

The statutes authorize jurisdiction for the AHC to resolve disputes over decisions of more than 100 state agencies. Chief among them are the director of the Department of Revenue's tax decisions, professional licensing decisions of many boards of the Department of Insurance, Financial Institutions and Professional Registration and other departments, the Department of Social Services' decisions on payments to Medicaid service providers and the Missouri Health Facilities Committee's decisions on certificates of need. The statutes commit other specific matters to AHC also. AHC resolves about 2,000 cases per year.

AHC consists of not more than three members, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate, who serve six-year terms.

Board of Fund Commissioners

The Board of Fund Commissioners issues, redeems and cancels state general obligation bonds and performs other administrative activities related to state general obligation debt as assigned by law.

The board is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, state auditor, state treasurer and commissioner of administration. The governor is president of the board, and the state treasurer is secretary. An executive secretary performs staff functions for the board.

Board of Public Buildings

The speaker of the house of representatives and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate serve as ex officio members of the BPB but do not have the power to vote.

Missouri law provides that the BPB has general supervision and charge of state facilities at the seat of government. The BPB also has the authority to issue revenue bonds for the construction of state office buildings and certain other facilities.

The board works with the Division of Facilities Management, Design and Construction and the Division of Accounting in carrying out its responsibilities.

Board of Unemployment Fund Financing

The Board of Unemployment Fund Financing is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and the commissioner of administration. The governor serves as chair, the lieutenant governor serves as vice chair and the commissioner of administration serves as secretary. Staff support is provided by the commissioner of administration.

The board is authorized to issue debt or credit instruments to provide funds for the payment of unemployment benefits or maintaining an adequate fund balance in the unemployment fund, and as an alternative to borrowing or obtaining advances from the federal unemployment trust fund or for refinancing these loans or advances.

In 1994, Missouri voters approved the creation of the "Missouri Citizens' Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials." This commission was established to ensure that the power to control the rate of compensation of elected officials of this state is retained and exercised by tax-paying citizens of the state.

Beginning in 1996 and every two years thereafter, the commission will review the relationship of compensation to the duties of all elected state officials. The commission's recommendation of a salary schedule shall become effective unless disapproved by the General Assembly. The 22-member commission serves four-year terms.

The Governor's Council on Disability (GCD) serves as the voice and advocate in state policy making for 949,000 Missourians with disabilities. GCD educates people with disabilities about their rights and responsibilities; increases employment opportunities for job seekers with disabilities; expands access to equal and full participation for all individuals with disabilities in their communities at the local, state and federal levels. GCD provides youth leadership programming for young people with disabilities.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman issued an executive order establishing the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. This federal agency was created to assist disabled World War II veterans with re-entry into the civilian workforce. Following President Truman's lead, Missouri established the Governor's Committee in 1949 after it became obvious that a local network was needed to disseminate information about work-related problems facing people with disabilities.

The mission of GCD has naturally evolved from strictly promoting employment to addressing all of the barriers to employment and full participation in community life. To more accurately reflect the mission, the 1994 General Assembly renamed this agency the Governor's Council on Disability. GCD was transferred by executive order in 2004 from the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations (DOLIR) to the Office of Administration (OA) to better meet its mission.

The GCD consists of 21 council members, including the chair and one member from each state congressional district, as well as the executive director. The majority of GCD is comprised of people with disabilities representing various disability groups. Family members of people with disabilities, persons who represent other disability-related groups and other advocates fill the remaining positions.

The governor appoints the chair with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor also appoints the 21 members-at-large. GCD meets at least quarterly to act as an advisory body to its staff and to discuss and suggest ways to address current issues affecting persons with disabilities in Missouri.

In the administration of its duties, GCD also offers assistance to help the various departments, divisions and branches of government to comply with all laws regarding persons with disabilities. To further that goal, the director of each state department designates at least one employee to act as a liaison with the council. The assistance offered includes educational programming and consultation on the rights of persons with disabilities.

Missouri Minority Business Advocacy Commission

State Capitol, Rm. 125
Telephone: (573) 751-1851 / FAX: (573) 751-1212

The Missouri Minority Business Advocacy Commission (MBAC) identifies and assesses the needs of minority businesses throughout the state; initiates aggressive programs to assist minority businesses in obtaining state and federal procurement; makes recommendations regarding state policies, programs and procedures; and provides a focal point to assist and counsel minority small businesses in their dealing with federal, state and local governments. MBAC also initiates and encourages minority business education programs, analyzes current legislation and regulations as they affect minority businesses; and receives complaints and recommendations concerning policies and activities of federal, state and local governmental agencies which affect minority small businesses. The purpose of MBAC is to increase economic opportunity for minority businesses so that we can improve the overall climate of the state of Missouri; and to develop and establish the inclusionary process for state departments so that they can meet or exceed the goals and objectives of the legislation and executive order designed to increase minority participation in state procurement.

Missouri Voting and Elections

Who registers to vote in Missouri?

Citizens of the U.S. living in Missouri must register in order to vote. Any U.S. citizen 17 years and 6 months of age or older, if a Missouri resident, may register and may vote after reaching age 18 except:

- A person who is adjudged incapacitated.

Those who may be eligible to register, but are not eligible to vote are:

- A person who is confined under sentence of imprisonment.
- A person who is on probation or parole after conviction of a felony until finally discharged.
- A person who has been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor connected with the right of suffrage. (RSMo 115.133, 115.135)

How do Missourians register?

Qualified citizens may register in person at the office of their local election authority, by mail, at the driver's license fee office, participating state agencies and other public locations. Registration in person is accomplished by filling out registration forms with information on identity, residence, and qualifications, which are signed and sworn to, then witnessed by the election authority or a designee. The voter must present appropriate identification such as a birth certificate, a Native American tribal document, other proof of United States citizenship, a valid Missouri driver's license, or other form of personal identification. (RSMo 115.151, 115.155, 115.159, 115.160, 115.161, 115.162)

Registration by mail, at the driver's license fee office, or at the participating state agencies requires submission of an application with information on identity, residence, and qualifications, which are signed and sworn to. If mailed, this form must be postmarked by the fourth Wednesday preceding an election for the voter to be eligible to vote in that election. The voter must include a copy of appropriate identification (see above). If the voter does not submit such information, the voter will be required to vote in person, after presenting additional identification, for the first time. The election authority must send a verification of acceptance or rejection of registration within seven working days. (RSMo 115.155, 115.160, 115.162)

When and where do Missourians register?

An unregistered citizen may register to vote in person during local election officials' regular business hours, when renewing a Missouri driver's license or receiving services from a participating state agency, or by mailing the local election authority. Special registration sites may be available prior to major elections. (RSMo 115.145, 115.151)

The deadline for registration is the fourth Wednesday prior to an election. (RSMo 115.135)

When do Missourians vote?

In general, the statutes require that public elections be held on the general election day, the primary election day, the general municipal election day, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in February or November, or on another day expressly provided by city or county charter, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June and in nonprimary years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in August. (RSMo 115.123.1)

The general election day is the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in even-numbered years. The primary election day is the first Tuesday after the first Monday in August in even-numbered years. (RSMo 115.121 (1 & 2))

Elections for cities, towns, villages, school boards and special district officers are held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April each year, known as general municipal election day. (RSMo 115.121.3)

A statewide presidential preference primary is held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in February of each presidential election year. (RSMo 115.755)

Elections may be held on other Tuesdays for bond elections necessitated by fire, vandalism, or natural disaster, where ownership of real property is required by law for voting, and for special elections to fill vacancies. (RSMo 115.123.2)

Who conducts registration and elections?

Voter registration and the conduct of elections are the responsibilities of Missouri's 116 local election authorities (election boards and county clerks). Boards of election commissioners administer elections in the counties of Clay, Jackson, Platte and St. Louis, and in the cities of Kansas City and St. Louis. The county clerk serves as the election authority in all other counties of the state. In 2005, legislation was passed giving Cass County the option of setting up a board of election commissioners. (RSMo 115.015, 115.017)

Special voting provisions

Voters with disabilities and voters who are unable to vote because of absence or illness may vote absentee. Persons with permanent disabilities may apply for permanent absentee ballot status by applying with the local election authority (RSMo 115.284). Voters with disabilities may vote their ballots from their vehicles at curbside, or they may be reassigned to a more accessible polling place. Voters should contact local election officials about absentee federal service balloting or ''new resident'' absentee ballots.

When voting, Missourians must show an approved form of personal identification (RSMo 115.427). Approved identification includes:

1. Identification issued by the state of Missouri, an agency of the state, or a local election authority of the state;
2. Identification issued by the United States government or agency thereof;
3. Identification issued by an institution of higher education, including a university, college, vocational, or technical school, located within the state of Missouri;
4. A copy of a current utility bill, bank statement, paycheck, government check, or other government document that contains the name and address of the voter;
5. Driver's license or state identification card issued by another state.

If you do not possess any of these forms of identification, you may still cast a ballot if two supervising election judges, one from each major political party, attest they know you.

Elections and political parties

Missourians do not register under party affiliation. Hence, at primary elections, voters may choose which ''established party'' ballot they vote (RSMo 115.397). Party nominees—and independent candidates—are then listed on the general election ballot.

There are presently four ''established political parties'' statewide—the Democratic, Republican, Libertarian, and Constitution parties. Persons may seek the nomination of these parties for any elective office from the county level and above. In order to become "established,'' a party must have received more than two percent of the votes cast statewide for at least one of its candidates. New parties are formed by petition and may exist on the county, district or state level. They must meet the same standard as any other party to remain established (RSMo 115.317).

At the time of primary elections, voters select county committee members of established parties in Missouri. Those committee people have certain duties and responsibilities. They serve, as appropriate, as members of legislative, senatorial, judicial, and congressional district committees (RSMo 115.609, 115.613, 115.619). County, district, or state committee members may be called on to fill candidate vacancies on party ballots or to select nominees for special elections as needed. The state committees are selected, indirectly, by local committee persons.

Poll Workers in Missouri

Missouri's local election authorities are charged with staffing their polling places on Election Day. There are certain qualifications one must have in order to work at the polls – you must be a registered voter; you must be able to speak, read, and write English; you must not have a close relative that appears on the current ballot; and you must not hold elective office at the time of service. Poll workers are compensated for their service on Election Day and are required to attend at least one training prior to Election Day for which they are compensated as well.

Over 20,000 poll workers are needed across Missouri to conduct a statewide election. As federal legislation implemented new changes to the nation's polling places, the Secretary of State's Office implemented a first-ever statewide recruitment effort to enlist new volunteers to work at the polls. Through partnerships with businesses, universities, and civic organizations across the state, the Secretary of State's Office has directed more than 5,000 volunteers to local election authorities to work at the polls on Election Day.

Poll workers are truly on the front lines of democracy. Their work is critical to protecting the integrity of our elections and ensuring that the voting process is fair and accurate. Individuals that are interested in signing up to be a poll worker or would like more information are encouraged to visit the Secretary of State's website at www.sos.mo.gov/pollworker or contact their local election authority. Constitutional Amendment 1

[Proposed by the 94th General Assembly (First Regular Session) HJR 7]

Shall the Missouri Constitution be amended to add a statement that English shall be the language of all governmental meetings at which any public business is discussed, decided, or public policy is formulated whether conducted in person or by communication equipment including conference calls, video conferences, or Internet chat or message board?

It is estimated this proposal will have no costs or savings to state or local governmental entities.

Constitutional Amendment 4

[Proposed by the 94th General Assembly (Second Regular Session) SJR 45]

Shall the Missouri Constitution be amended to change provisions relating to the financing of stormwater control projects by:

- limiting availability of grants and loans to public water and sewer districts only;
- removing the cap on available funding and existing restrictions on disbursements;
- requiring loan repayments to be used only for stormwater control projects?

It is estimated the cost to state governmental entities is $0 to $236,000 annually. It is estimated state governmental entities will save approximately $7,500 for each bond issuance. It is estimated local governmental entities participating in this program may experience savings, however the amount is unknown.

Proposition A

[Proposed by Initiative Petition]

Shall Missouri law be amended to:

- repeal the current individual maximum loss limit for gambling;
- prohibit any future loss limits;
- require identification to enter the gambling area only if necessary to establish that an individual is at least 21 years old;
- restrict the number of casinos to those already built or being built;
- increase the casino gambling tax from 20% to 21%;
- create a new specific education fund from gambling tax proceeds generated as a result of this measure called the "Schools First Elementary and Secondary Education Improvement Fund"; and
- require annual audits of this new fund?

State governmental entities will receive an estimated $105.1 to $130.0 million annually for elementary and secondary education, and $5.0 to $7.0 million annually for higher education, early childhood development, veterans, and other programs. Local governmental entities receiving gambling boat tax and fee revenues will receive an estimated $18.1 to $19.0 million annually.

Proposition B

[Proposed by Initiative Petition]

Shall Missouri law be amended to enable the elderly and Missourians with disabilities to continue living independently in their homes by creating the Missouri Quality Homecare Council to ensure the availability of quality home care services under the Medicaid program by recruiting, training, and stabilizing the home care workforce?

The exact cost of this proposal to state governmental entities is unknown, but is estimated to exceed $510,560 annually. Additional costs for training are possible. Matching federal funds, if available, could reduce state costs. It is estimated there would be no costs or savings to local governmental entities.

Proposition C

[Proposed by Initiative Petition]

Shall Missouri law be amended to require investor-owned electric utilities to generate or purchase electricity from renewable energy sources such as solar, wind, biomass and hydropower with the renewable energy sources equaling at least 2% of retail sales by 2011 increasing incrementally to at least 15% by 2021, including at least 2% from solar energy; and restricting to no more than 1% any rate increase to consumers for this renewable energy?

The estimated direct cost to state governmental entities is $395,183. It is estimated there are no direct costs or savings to local governmental entities. However, indirect costs may be incurred by state and local governmental entities if the proposal results in increased electricity retail rates.

Classification of Municipalities

Missouri statutes classify municipalities on the basis of population and limit the form of government options of each classification. The statutes provide that a community may incorporate as a city of the third class, fourth class or village on the basis of the population at the time of incorporation.[1] Once a community is incorporated under a given classification, the municipality does not automatically change classification with a gain or loss of population. A municipality may change classification only when the change is approved by a majority vote of the people.

There are certain forms of government permitted for each classification of municipality. Villages are permitted only one form of government—an elected board of trustees, five in number if the village has less than 2,500 population and nine if more than 2,500 population. Fourth-class cities are permitted to have either a mayor/board of aldermen form or a mayor/city administrator/aldermen form. The board of aldermen may adopt a city administrator form by ordinance, without a vote of the people. Third-class cities are granted greater flexibility with the authority to establish a mayor/council form, a council/manager form, a commission form or a mayor/city administrator/council form. Finally, constitutional charter cities may adopt any form of government that the people approve in the charter.

[1]From 1821 to 1875, the Missouri General Assembly passed special charters for specific cities, until the 1875 Constitution prohibited further granting and amending of special charters. However, eight Missouri municipalities are still operating under special charters granted before 1875. They are Augusta, Carrollton, Chillicothe, LaGrange, Liberty, Miami, Missouri City and Pleasant Hill. If the voters of these municipalities decide to relinquish their special charters, they will be governed by the appropriate sections of the statutes relevant to their population classification.

Class	Population Requirement	Form of Government	Total Number
Village	less than 500	Board of trustees	266
4th Class	500-2,999	Mayor/board of aldermen Mayor/city administrator/alderman	584
3rd Class	3,000-29,999	Mayor/council Mayor/city administrator/council Council/Manager Commission	62

The Missouri Press Association is an organization of newspapers in the state.

Organized May 17, 1867, as the Editors and Publishers Association of Missouri, the name was changed in 1877 to the Missouri Press Association (MPA). In 1922, the association became a nonprofit corporation, and a central office was opened under a field manager whose job it was to travel the state and help newspapers with problems.

The association, located in Columbia, became the fifth press association in the nation to finance its headquarters through member contributions. The MPA's building was purchased in 1969.

As a founder of institutions the Missouri Press Association aided in the establishment of the Confederate Soldiers' Home, the upbuilding of the normal schools, support of the public school system and advancement of the University of Missouri.

The association founded the State Historical Society of Missouri in 1898 and today several of its members serve on the board of trustees. Greatest among its achievements is the establishment of the first school of journalism in the world in 1908. The Missouri School of Journalism at the University of Missouri–Columbia continues as the largest and foremost school of its kind. It celebrated its centennial in September 2008. The association led the drive to fund the chair in Community Newspaper Management at the School of Journalism and its donations helped fund the student lounge in the school's Lee Hills Hall.

Through their association, the publishers in Missouri have worked to keep the press free and alert, as well as responsible; to keep it financially independent so it can render impartial public service; to understand changing trends in business and in reader needs. Activities of the association include setting up workshops, seminars, conventions, publishing of a magazine, The Missouri Press News, supplying information to members, helping newspapers find skilled personnel and assisting with the placement of students.

DOUG CREWS
Executive Director
Missouri Press Association

On the occasion of its 100th anniversary in 1966, the association re-established the old Saline County Herald newspaper office in historic Arrow Rock and maintains a newspaper equipment museum in connection with it.

The Missouri Press Foundation administers and funds seminars and workshops for newspaper people, supports Newspapers In Education programs, and funds scholarships and internships for Missouri students studying community journalism in college.

Membership in the association is voluntary. All daily newspapers in the state are members and 99 percent of the weekly newspapers are members. In 2009, there were 242 weekly newspaper members and 46 daily members. The association also has 185 associate and sustaining members. It is supported wholly by dues paid by these members.

The central office in Columbia has nine employees. Doug Crews serves as executive director by appointment of the board of directors.

Show-Me Press Association

The Show-Me Press Association was formed in June 1995 at Lake Ozark when members of the Central Missouri Press and Northeast Missouri Press associations voted to combine their organizations with one board of directors.

The Central Missouri Press Association was organized February 27, 1925 in Jefferson City with 30 charter members. Edgar C. Nelson, then owner and publisher of the Boonville Advertiser, was elected the first president. The district extended from St. Louis County on the east to Jackson, Cass and Bates counties on the west and included all 28 counties through the central part of the state bordering the Missouri River on both sides. In these counties are located the State Capitol, University of Missouri, State Fair Grounds and the University of Central Missouri. The first organizational meeting of Northeast Missouri Publishers was held in Hannibal in November 1889. Meetings of this group were held up to and including 1896, after which the organization disintegrated and was succeeded by the Northeast Missouri Press Association, organized in 1920 in Kirksville with Charles H. Democratic Editors of Missouri

The present Democratic Editors of Missouri organization had its beginning on June 5, 1894. A meeting of leading party editors of that day was held at Pertle Springs, a well-known resort near Warrensburg, and the first Democratic Press Association was formed. H. Martin Williams was the first president and U.A. McBride, then editor of the Warrensburg Journal-Democrat, was chosen secretary. It was named the Democratic Editorial Association of Missouri.

Ten years later a statewide meeting of Democratic editors held in St. Louis changed the name to Missouri Democratic Press Association. George H. Scruton of the Sedalia Democrat was named president and served until his death two years later. For many years John C. Stapel of the Atchison County Mail at Rock Port was president. He was followed by W.C. Hewitt of the Shelby County Herald of Shelbyville.

The interest of Mark R. Holloran, national Democratic committeeman from Missouri, in a strong party press led to the reorganization of the Democratic Editors of Missouri. He appeared at a breakfast meeting during a Missouri Press Association meeting in Kansas City in November, 1955, and called for an active Democratic press in Missouri. An advisory committee was named including: Edgar Blanton, Shelbina Democrat; Kay Miles, Benton County Guide; John Henry Cox, Atchison County Mail; Jess Stewart, Farmington Press; James C. Kirkpatrick, Windsor Review; and Ben F. Weir, Nevada Daily Mail. The organizational meeting was held March 24, 1956, in Jefferson City with the following officers elected: President, James C. Kirkpatrick; vice president, Edgar Blanton; secretary, Kay Miles; and treasurer, Lane Davis, Houston Herald.

Missouri Press Women became a charter member of the National Federation of Press Women, established in Chicago, Illinois, in 1937, on the date of the Missouri group's founding. Each May, the Press Women gives the Virginia Betts White Quest Awards to professional communicators who excel and continuously represent the quest of the highest standards of professional ethics and excellence in the field of communications.

The Missouri Affiliate sponsors annual contests for members and high school journalism students. Categories are specified in all fields of communication. First place winners in the state contest are entered automatically in the national contest. In 1971, MPW received the Sweepstakes Award for earning the most points in the national competition.

In 1999, the St. Louis Chapter, now the Missouri Affiliate, established an educational scholarship fund for a mature woman pursuing a career in journalism, with matching funds provided by the Press Club of Metropolitan St. Louis and administered through the Journalism Foundation of Metropolitan St. Louis.

At one time, the group met twice each year. One was a social gathering, usually in the fall at some resort in the area. The business meeting was held during the spring, at which time members and their families discussed newspaper problems and trends, saw exhibits by newspaper supply companies, and heard speakers prominent in journalism and other fields.
